Toasts 'n Tidings BY Your Minnesota Hostess

No one is sure who invented beer, but you'll enjoy this possibility. An imaginative historian could well visualize a busy cave-wife chancing to mash some grain in a bowl of water to make prehistoric bread, then setting the bowl aside to tend to other matters. Tiny yeast cells in the air would ferment the forgotten mixture. Suddenly . . . beer! Mr. Caveman, dipping his water-gourd into the bowl, would beam and ask for more. What followed is history.

Sips and Statistics

Could you guess the country whose people like beer the most? In 1959, tiny Luxembourg led the world in beer consumption per capita. In 1960 the Belgians regained first place, according to the Brewers' Society of London. Next in line: Luxembourg and Australia. The U.S. was eleventh, with 15.1 gallons—less than half the beer consumption of Belgium.

Lenten Swiss Fondue

The Swiss spear French bread cubes on forks and dip them in Fondue. A wonderful party mixer! Serve with mugs of cold beer:

1½ cups beer
1 lb. Swiss cheese, cubed
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. white pepper

Use chafing dish if possible; otherwise heat water very hot in bottom of double boiler. Pour all but 2 Tbsp. beer into upper pan. Bring to boil. Add cheese, a little at a time. Stir till all is melted. Mix together rest of beer, cornstarch and seasoning. Stir into Fondue. Don't stop stirring till it's smooth and thick! Serve immediately to four or five guests, who all dip from one bowl . . . Dip into my free cookbook for more beer recipes! Write Minnesota Hostess, 333 WCCO Bldg., Minneapolis 2, Minn.

PENNINGTON COUNTY HOME AGENT

When is the best time to bake a "specialty bread"? Some women think that trying out an unusual bread recipe is a good cure for those end-of-winter doldrums. Some say it's the best way to pep up an otherwise uninteresting meal. I ran across this one that might just hit that uninteresting part of a meal.

Casserole Bread

1 c. milk
3 Tbsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. salt
2 Tbsp. shortening
1 c. very warm water
2 packages yeast
1-3 c. shredded blue cheese
4½ c. flour

Scald milk; stir in sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast into very warm water, stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, blue cheese and flour. Stir until well blended, about 2 minutes. Cover. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until more than doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Stir batter down. Beat vigorously about ½ minute. Turn into greased 1¼ qt. casserole. Bake, uncovered, at 375 degrees F. 1 hour.

Card File for Garment Tags

Most homemakers have a card file for recipes, but how many have a file of garment tags? Recipe files guide you to put in the right ingredients to make a better product. Files of garment tags guide you in keeping your clothes in their best condition. Considerable time and money were required to get and test the information on the label of your blouse, dress or skirt. But don't many people discard this time and money by ignoring or throwing away the labels or garment tags?

In today's world of new discoveries of fibers and fabric finishes, it's necessary to know the correct cleaning procedures. Often the label will give you directions that should be followed in caring for your garment.

The process of establishing a garment file has three phases: first, ask for the label or cleaning instructions when you buy it; second, save the label; and third, use it! A helpful hint is to write the family member's name and garment on the tag — for example, "Mary's blue skirt"—to remind you of which label goes with which garment.

Begin with your new spring fashions and keep a file of the informative labels. You can avoid the chances of mistreating the fabric by wrong laundering procedure. Take as good care of your clothes as you do of the food your family eats!

Soon the Easter Bunny will come hopping down the lane. His basket is filled with eggs—eggs he decorated himself. How did he go about this little task? Not all his eggs are candy eggs; some are real eggs. They might be the egg with their contents blown out and served for a breakfast omelette or custard for lunch. There are some hard boiled eggs that were cooked 5-8 minutes BELOW boiling point.

There are all sorts of ways to "dress-up" an egg shell. The old favorites are the bunnies, ducklings or chicks. But this bunny might happen to have a sailor or soldier in his basket. He made all the necessary pieces such as ears, eyes, hats and coats beforehand, ready to stick in place when the day came.

If this bunny had time he may have made the egg out of crepe paper. If he did he used two strips of white crepe paper 10" wide, 15" long for the foundation, stretched each strip fully and folded it in half three times across the grain. (Little lines in the paper indicate grain). He doubled one folded strip over on it several times until it was about 2½" long, then wrapped with piece, bandage fashion, padding a little more to one end so it had an egg shape.

This bunny said, "don't be afraid to stretch the strip tightly as it is being wrapped. A little paste will help to keep the strip in place and you can shape the egg better". When the egg is completed, color in funny faces and cut eye lashes, ears, hair and other details to make the animal wanted.

Everyone is anxious to see the green leaves once again on the trees but why not bring some magic into the house. Go out and cut a handful of branches fro mthe trees outside.

Once in water near a sunny window (make sure the stems are cut fresh), the small buds open into leaves and sometimes even flowers. The plum branch will bloom before the leaves appear.

After the branches have leaved, distribute them in an attractive manner through the house.

Planting Your Vegetable Garden

Proper soil preparation is one of the steps to a successful garden. It's very desirable to spade or plow down some organic matter such as well rotted manure, compost or peat at the rate of 3 to 4 bushels per 100 square feet of area. This will improve the structure of the soil and provide better tilth.

Each spring it's also important to replenish the nutrients which were taken out by previous crops. Broadcast a complete fertilizer such as 5-20-20, 8-16-16 or 10-10-10 at the rate of 15-20 pounds per 1,000 square feet of area. This should be raked into the upper 2 or 3 inches of soil.

Avoid locating your garden near trees or large shrubs. Even if there is ample sunlight on the area, the plants can suffer from root competition for moisture and nutrients in the soil.

Don't plant all your vegetable seed at one time. Allow for succession plantings to assure a continuous harvest of good-quality produce. Warm-season crops like beans, corn, cucumbers, melons and squash should not be seeded until mid-May after the soil and air temperatures are warm. Tomatoes, egg plant and peppers should not be set out until after Memorial Day when frost danger is past. Most of the other vegetables can be seeded as soon as the garden is ready in the spring.

Granular dieldrin is effective in controlling soil insects like root maggots, cutworms, white grubs, and wireworms. Apply it along with the seed or on each side of the row.

$1,595,000 Question!

Record Vote Expected for School Bond Issue Monday

Turnout of voters is expected to be a record number Monday, April 23, when the special election on a $1,595,000 bond issue for construction of a new junior high school and elementary school is held in School District 564. Balloting will be from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. There will be no other polling place.

The question on which district voters will indicate their opinion is as follows: "Shall Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, issue its general obligation bonds in an amount not exceeding $1,595,000 for the purpose of constructing an elementary school and a junior high school, and for the betterment of schoolhouses and sites?"

A "Yes" vote in the election indicates that the voter is in favor of issuing these bonds while a "No" vote opposes the bond issue. Persons of voting age who have been residents of the district for 30 days and of the state of Minnesota for six months may cast their ballots in the election.

The proposal which the board of education is placing before the voters is the construction of two separate school buildings, sharing a common entrance, and built on school property located on the east side of this city. The elementary school would have 10 classrooms, according to the plan, while the junior high school would be suitable for use by about 650 students.

A number of architectural sketches have been reviewed and rejected by the school board prior to approval of the present plan which would permit use by both junior high school and elementary school of central heating plant, gymnasium, cafeteria and library. The bond figure of $1,595,000 is based on the estimate given by the architect, plus reserve for contingencies, and is not a final figure, since bids would have to be taken before a construction contract could be let.

It is the hope of the education board that the district's voters will turn out in force Monday so that a truly representative interpretation of district opinion will be registered in the balloting.

April 30 Deadline to Apply for Wool Payments for '61

ASC Office Reminds Area Growers to File Their Applications at Once

Monday, April 30, is the last day for filing applications for payments for the 1961 marketing year under the wool payment program. Growers were reminded today by Edward A. Johnson, chairman of the Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

The payments for the 1961 marketing year cover shorn wool and unshorn lambs marketed between April 1, 1961 and March 31, 1962. Later marketings will be eligible for payments for the 1962 marketing years.

The chairman stressed the fact that the payments on wool and lambs are not made automatically--growers must file applications which are supported with all the necessary sales records in order to receive payments under the program.

Since these sales records will be the basis for calculating the national average price received by farmers for wool during the entire marketing years, it is to the grower's advantage to file his application early. When the average price can be determined, the payment rates for shown wool and unshorn lambs sold during the 1961 marketing year will be announced. The payments will be made to growers during the coming summer.

Retarded Activity Plans Take Form

Pennington-Red Lake Group Plans to Start Recreation Program

Plans are taking form for an activity program to aid the mentally retarded in Pennington and Red Lake counties, according to Mrs. Richard Mosbeck, chairman of the Pennington-Red Lake Association for Retarded Children. The association is proposing the establishment of a recreational or activity center.

Considerable planning has gone into the initiation of such a program and considerable work remains to be done, Mrs. Mosbeck said. With about 20 youngsters currently enrolled in special classes for the trainable and educable youngsters, the program would be a great help at the present time.

It is difficult to state just how many children would receive help under such a program. "We will serve as many youngsters as the parents will bring," the chairman said. "We believe that after the program is started we will have quite a large number of children taking part in it."

Tentative approval has been given to the association for a site to hold the recreational activities. Recreation will have to be varied since it is difficult to hold the interest of the youngsters in any one activity for any length of time. Various games and handicraft would likely be used at the start of the program. Present plans call for a recreation period one or two afternoons per week.

Only One for Children

"It is believed," the chairman said, "that this activity is the only one that children can participate in due to the degree of their handicap. The fact that the retarded do enjoy fun-type activities is reason enough for giving them the chance to play. Mental and emotional health thrives on happiness."

Statistics have shown that three per cent of the population of the United States suffers from some degree of retardation. If this average holds true for Pennington

Bye Delivers Banquet Talk Here Tuesday

Former Gopher Great Tells Athletes Story of Gaining a Fried

Billy Bye, former Thief River Falls resident and now business manager of the Minnesota Vikings professional football team, came home Tuesday to deliver the main address at the annual high school athletic banquet. A total of 277 athletes, cheerleaders and sports-minded area residents attended the affair held at St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Charles Richards, Pennington county sheriff, served as toastmaster for the evening and introduced the speaker. Invocation was given by Rev. Keough Patnode, welcome by Roger Tunberg, introduction of coaches by Ralph Skay, Lincoln high school athletic director, and musical selection by a high school girls trio.

The 12th annual banquet was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, Lions and Rotary clubs and Junior Chamber of Commerce. Prowler letter winners in all sports for the past year totaled 81 plus 11 girls winning letters as cheerleaders.

While Bye devoted most of his talk to athletic experiences, both factual and whimsical, his basic message to the athletes attending the banquet was based on a statement by Socrates, one of history's greatest philosophers, who said, "Know Thyself".

"Kids now are better than ever," the former Golden Gopher football star told his audience. "They are smarter and in better health. We older people are the ones who have to adjust to modern times." But he noted that in the turmoil of progress, young people are much the same. They want to be accepted and one of the crowd.

He challenged those at the banquet to go home when the house is empty, sit down in front of a mirror, and ask the image, "Do you like me? Am I doing what you want me to do? Am I going to be the guy you want me to be, the guy I could be, the guy you know I can be?" This is the way to find your very best friend, he said.

Billy Bye Guest Speaker at Lions Club Wednesday

Gordon Reierson, club president, reported briefly on the successful tri-zone Lions meeting held at the Legion club Saturday evening.

Second reading of an ordinance establishing a planning commission and awarding of contracts on a number of city projects were main items of business when the Thief River Falls city council held its regular meeting Wednesday evening. One more reading of the planning commission ordinance and its publication is necessary before appointment of commission members can be made by the mayor.

J. W. Craig company of Minneapolis was awarded the contract for street improvement projects in the city with a low bid of $188,941 with Robert Gab and Sons of Fargo being the low bidder on watermain replacement and storm sewer construction at $15,927.

With a number of bids and alternates called in regard to electrical equipment and repair, the following contracts were awarded: General Electric, rewinding two generators at the city power plant $19,788; Dakota Electric Supply company, 300 kva transformer, $1,380 and materials, cables and miscellaneous hardware, $5,100; and Westinghouse Electric, switchgear, cable and other supplies, $17,820 total.

Plans and specifications for labor on the power conversion to be accomplished this summer were approved and bids called for May 15 at 4 p. m. Bids received for equipment rental were tabled to permit the city engineer to check a possible non-conformance by the low bidder.

A petition to provide street improvements on Duluth avenue between Sixth and Seventh streets was tabled subject to other street projects. The resignation of Daniel A. Illies as manager of the municipal airport was officially accepted. Approved for purchase was a new sink and drainboard for the municipal liquor store as required by the state health department.

150 Attend Meeting for Information On Sunflowers and Millet

Extreme interest in growing 1,500 acres of sunflowers, white millet and red millet under contract in Pennington county was expressed by county farmers Wednesday afternoon when approximately 150 attended an informational meeting held in the basement meeting room of the municipal auditorium in Thief River Falls.

It had been previously announced that a processor of bird seed was interested in having 500 acres each of the three above-mentioned crops grown for processing in this area this year. Contracts signed by the majority of farmers attendnig showed that the 500-acre quota could easily be met.

Roland K. Larson, executive secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, revealed at the meeting that a telephone conversation with the processor only several hours earlier confirmed the fact that he is definitely interested in processing the product in Thief River Falls. It was also noted that he would fly to Thief River Falls within the next week or 10 days to appear at another meeting and assist in securing actual contracts for growing the wanted crops.

Contracts Important

Roy Barzen, local seed dealer, impressed upon the group the importance of having contracts for production of such crops. In addition to price protection, he said, it gives the contracting firm an opportunity to find a market for a relatively predictable supply. He also stressed the importance of honoring contracts once they had been signed.

Attention was called to the fact that the processor would furnish seed in the spring with payment to be made at the time of harvest delivery. The sunflower seed would be available for $12.50 to $15 per 100 pounds with the fall contract payment of $4.75 per 100 pounds. Millet would be available at $4.25 per 100 pounds for seed with contract payment of $2.25 per 100 pounds at harvest time.

Reviews Crop Handling

Paul Steimaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent, reviewed the growing conditions, types of fertilizer, weed control and planting and harvesting equipment necessary to handle the crops. He also listed characteristics of each crop and what expected yields should be, noting that nearly all farmers in the county had raised millet at one time or another and were quite familiar with its production.

In discussing the seed firm, Roland Larson also noted that it has been found to be very reputable.

Eagles Auxiliary Adopts "Home on the Range" Boy

Eagles Auxiliary met Monday evening, April 16 with President Edna Pederson conducting the regular order of business. An invitation was received from the Eagles auxiliary in Hallock to attend their fourth anniversary banquet at 7 p. m. Saturday, April 28 with a social evening to follow the banquet.

The auxiliary will take part in the cancer drive on April 25 and 26 and plans are underway for another membership party to be held May 6.

Recently another boy at "Home on the Range" was adopted and the auxiliary sent $25 to the home and $25 to Billy Allison, the newly adopted boy. Letters were received from Billy and from Father Fahnlander of "Home on the Range" by Mrs. Morris Odegaard, secretary. The following is a publication of their letters:

Dear Friends,

"This is just a note to say "Thanks" for the money you sent me. It will come in very handy as I'm a little short of clothes. I've been planning on making a few purchases and this gives me the green light (go signal).

The time sure passes fast out here. I've been here 3½ months and it seems more like one or two. I suppose that's because there's so much to do you're never laying around to pass the time away. You are either always working in school or riding or playing games.

I can't wait until school gets out. We are in our last six weeks but I think it will go slower than all the others put together. I plan to come home for my vacation as soon as school is out and I hope I have the pleasure of meeting a few of you. Thanks again for the gift and also I appreciate very much that I was worthwhile asking for. It makes a guy feel he can't let them down.

Well, that's about all I can think of or should I say have time for. Time to get to work."

Yours truly,
Billy Allison.

Dear Mrs. Odegaard and Ladies:

"Upon my return from a short trip last night, I was most thrilled to find your letter with the two checks of $25.00, one for Bill Allison, and the other for Home on the Range. When I told Bill of this he was just as thrilled as I was. You would be interested to know what his comment was—"Now I have an auxiliary too". I am sure that you will be hearing from Bill very shortly.

I do want you to know that I am deeply grateful for your kind and generous gift, both to Bill and to Home on the Range. It means a great deal to both of us to know that you are so interested in us here at Home on the Range.

Bill is getting along very nicely here, and I have every reason to feel that someday you will be very proud of him, and proud to have had a part in his progress. It means a great deal to the boys to know that their Auxiliaries are interested in them, and they frequently talk about "My" auxiliary.

My family is now over forty boys, and I am sure that you realize that this is only possible because of many good Eagle Aeries and Auxiliaries, showing a wonderful support of Home on the Range. I do hope that if any of you who can possibly get out this way will make it a pont to stop in to see us, and see both Home on the Range and my boys.

God bless you for your kindness. The boys and I will try to thank you by keeping you in our prayers."

Sincerely and fraternally,
Father Wm. J. Fahnlander

Door prize was won by Darlene Davidson but attendance prize was forfeited by Yvonne Green being absent. In charge of entertainment were Ella Larson and Helene Eckhart. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by Ramona Storhaug, Ella Erickson and Mabel Ness.

Election of officers and initiation will be held at the next regular meeting of the auxiliary on Monday, May 7. All members are urged to attend.

Elaine's CHATTER

Over here in this corner, or somewhere on this page, with a maximum amount of regularity, we hope, will appear this ad.

And don't any of you folks start calling it a column . . . It's true we have tried our hand at a number of things, just as all merchants do, judging beauty contests, canning pickles, serving on committees, falling off of garage roofs??, boasting of the charms of our city to people who live in other cities while we are on buying trips, filling our store with the newest and smartest merchandise . . . and we think it might be fun to chat with you about it.

You can expect this in the form of a column; however, we do not pretend to be in the League with Dorothy Kilgallen, Earl Wilson, Winchell, Huck Olson, or even Mrs. F.D.R. (altho we do have our days!)

We simply want to drop a few observations now and then on what goes on in the fashion world, if someone should make headlines, we might add our two cents. But truthfully speaking . . . THIS IS AN AD . . . we have to pay for it . . . and we want the opportunity to talk to you every few days.

This is a busy week. Eggs, dozens of them are being colored. Don't know who has the most fun, the grown-ups who color and hide them or the children who hunt for them.

Ministers are burning the midnite oil preparing sermons — Choirs are rehearsing all over town — Churches are being decorated — Florists are working over time — Communion silver is being polished — Everybody is invited to worship. That something-good-is-about-to-happen feeling is abounding all over the land.

Is it any wonder that women want new frocks and bonnets? Why, it is as natural as life itself because you realize you are privileged to live in this world and you want to be worthy of it. Like everyone else, we are busy at ELAINE'S with last minute arrivals of new merchandise for the grandest Lady in the Easter Parade. Just come in and browse around and if you want suggestions we will be happy to give them.

And now that you know THIS IS AN AD, we hope you will be watching for it and we will be waiting to serve you at ELAINE'S in Thief River Falls.

State Group Charges False Statements by Mental Health Assn.

Charges that the Minnesota Association for Mental Health mailed campaign fund publicity flyers containing false statements for the purpose of raising funds were leveled in a 53 page investigative report issued by Leo Allen Bernat, chairman of the Minnesota Committee for Responsible Charities.

"Expenditures of the association listed in the flyer were inflated to the public presumably to encourage contributions," Bernat said.

Bernat is an instructor of statistics at the University and business representative of Local 1958, State, County and Municipal Employees, also charged the association with failing to conduct an effective program in Minnesota relative to the funds collected by the Association.

"The association has concealed its financial operations through the use of 'acounting magic'. The association has counted that its revenue has been increasing at the rate of 25 per cent or more a year. In reality, the income was declining," Bernat said.

"The investigation reveals that the illusion of increased revenues was created by the use of 'sixteen-month' years, and the use of two fund drives as typical of one year's revenue.

"On this basis, the Association misrepresented its income to the Hennepin County and Greater St. Paul United Funds, so the Association could receive more funds than it was entitled to. During this period the mental health program in Hennepin County was negligible," Bernat said.

The report comments that it is apparent that the Association operates to maintain the salaries of the staff rather than to perform a service. This is tragic, it says, in view of mental health being the number one health problem in the country.

Bernat pointed out the Association dissipated assets of probably more than $100,000 over a three year period, and went into technical insolvency. These facts were concealed. Even the preliminary report to the state of Minnesota as required by the new reporting act contains improperly identified information concerning the receipt and expenditure of association funds. One exaggerated item was the 'Payments to County Chapters'. Certain funds spent by the state association were listed as returned to county chapters when they were not.

The report cites the association for being derelict in its duty to contributors on two major counts: (1) Not providing services for which the association was organized, and (2) Not keeping the public correctly and completely informed on its financial operations.

The Arthur Andersen Co. accounting firm which audited the books of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, this week began an exhaustive audit of the mental health association's books.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gilbertson, Craig and Stephen of Circle Pines, Minn. spent a few days visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Gilbertson. Their new son, Stephen, was born March 22.

Thanks Received by C of C for Honeymoon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Verne Green Express Appreciation for Trip to Twin Cities

Expressions of thanks were received early this week by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce from Mr. and Mrs. Verne Green, Newfolden, winners of the honeymoon trip for two to Minneapolis. The trip was awarded by the retail trade committee to the winner of a free registration held in connection with the spring Friday night opening of Thief River Falls stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Green stated that the North Central Airlines flight from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis and the return trip at night were very enjoyable. While in Minneapolis they stayed in the senatorial suite at Hotel Dyckman—the suite being complete with grand piano and crystal chandelier. Dinner at the hotel's Chateau de Paris restaurant included seafood in the shell and chicken baked in wine.

In addition to attending most of the Minnesota Twins game Saturday afternoon, the Greens also attended the ice follies and took in part of a mink grower's convention which was of interest to Mr. Green. They returned from the Twin Cities on the North Central late flight Saturday.

Zehlian Art Group To Sponsor Art Exhibit

Paintings and drawings by local citizens will be featured in an exhibit to be held by the Zehlian art group April 23 through 28 at the Neal Fox studio in Thief River Falls. The Zehlian group is a subdivision of the Thief River Falls Federated Women's club.

The public is invited to view the exhibit which will be on display from 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. daily. A member of the Zehlian group will be present at the exhibit each day to answer questions and conduct the sale of paintings which will be offered for sale.

About 50 separate items will be included in the display which will feature oil paintings, charcoal drawings, water color and pastel work. Pictures will range in size from 9x12 to 18x21 inches.

Club members having art work on display will be Mrs. L. G. Owen, Mrs. James Disse, Mrs. Stanley Mortenson, Mrs. Timothy Conners, Mrs. Harold Elofson, Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen, Mrs. Ray Kiland, Mrs. C. T. Reich, Mrs. William Holmes and Mrs. Harold Rasmussen. Mrs. Holmes is chairman of the group this year.

Named after Mrs. Della Zeh, local artist a poet well known throughout Minnesota, the Zehlian group has been active for more than 20 years in promoting and encouraging art in the community. Since it meets in the homes of members, it has been a relatively small group.

Among many of the group's projects was the job of refurnishing 14 rooms of the nurse's home in this city following a fire a number of years ago. A sum of $500 was provided to the group by the hospital and the entire job was completed with $3.24 left in the fund. All work done by the members of the group was donated.

In 1944 the Minnesota Federation announced the Penny Art Award Contest to the club having the best project in promoting and encouraging art in its community. For five years the local group won this award and received each year a painting done by a Minnesota artist.

In 1947 the Zehlians were placed as the outstanding club of the month by the General Federation of Women's clubs at the national convention in New York City. One of the group's most prized possessions is a scrapbook containing an original water color by Mrs. Zeh, clippings of artists of Minnesota and reviews of art clippings and other activities in the art circles of the state. The book is illustrated by Mrs. John Stewart, a former Zehlian member.

Rotary Hears Tale of Outdoor Recreation

Information in regard to the demand for outdoor recreation and what is being done to provide suitable areas in the state and nation was given by U. W. Hella, director of the Minnesota Division of State Parks, at the noon dinner meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club Monday.

"There is a nation-wide concern for outdoor recreation," Hella told the Rotarians, "and this concern is based on four relating factors—more people, more lesure time, more spendable income and greater mobility." He added that by the year 2000 it has been predicted that all factors will have doubled in scope.

In 1956, he said, the National Park Service initiated "Mission '66", a program to bring the outdoor recreation program as close to the needs as possible by 1966. It has since been shown that the projected need was under-estimated. Of the 5.6 million acres of state parks in the nation, New York state has almost half of the total area, he said.

Of Minnesota's 51 million acre area, 27 million acres are under public ownership of one form of government or another. About 136,000 acres are under the control of the division of state parks with other areas controled by the forestry service, national fish and wildlife service, national park service, U. S. engineers, bureau of land management, state forest service, division of game and fish, highway department and many other state, federal and local agencies.

Counties own 400,000 acres of the state lands and the need for the establishment of county parks is becoming increasingly apparent, Hella stated. It was also noted by the speaker that the state needs 190,000 acres for park purposes at the present time to adequately meet the demand. He stated that 35 new areas have been recommended for park establishment in the state to bring the total up to the 190,000 figure.

Thirteen of the proposed 35 acres are located within 100 miles of the Twin Cities, an area which now has only three state parks, Hella said. He also noted that land values increase when parks are established in an area and that parks are valuable to business interests in the area.

Ernie Jewell, superintendent of Old Mill State Park located between Newfolden and Argyle, also spoke briefly at the session. He invited all visitors to the park to ask the park personnel for assistance whenever it is needed.

Following the meeting, Hella, Jewell and Roy Barzen, chairman of the Thief River Falls Park Board, toured the city's parks. Hella expressed enthusiasm for the local system, stating that the city has made a valuable investment in providing recreation for its citizens and others who come to the city to take advantage of recreational facilities.

WE BELIEVE

. . . That crowded conditions in the Thief River Falls school system mean that our community's children are not being given a full opportuinty for education.

. . . That construction of a new Junior High School and Elementary School are desperately needed to provide this opportunity:

. . . That the cost of such a program is a worthwhile investment in the future of our community and nation:

. . . That the condition of the old Washington building makes it a safety hazard to children forced to attend classes in it:

. . . That the proposed buildings are both practical and adequate to serve the immediate needs of the local education system:

. . . That construction costs will not become less expensive if we wait:

. . . That the current outlay of almost $19,000 annually for rental is wasted expense to the district for inadequate facilities . . .

Construction Man Says Old Washington School Is Structurally Sound

Editor's Note:

Because of conflicting views on the condition of the old Washington school we hired S. O. Nelson now retired and living at Strathcona to inspect the building and report on its condition. Mr. Nelson was recommended to us by James Walker of this city as a competent builder. He supervised construction of a number of schools and churches in the area, was superintendent of construction for a prominent firm in San Francisco and served in a similar capacity on a number of government projects in Alaska and Newfoundland. He is respected by construction men. Following is his report:

Mr. W. E. Dahlquist, Editor
Thief River Falls Times
Dear Sir:

As per your request, I am herewith submitting a report of my inspection of the Washington school building.

I find the second floor classroom to be as reported in the engineers statement dated March 7, 1962. This is the only area that does not have a steel center beam, as installed in the other first floor classrooms. The installation of a steel beam will increase the safe load of this floor to two times the safe load required.

We found that the north wall mentioned in the engineers report to be plumb and true, and not as represented. There is no sign of failure of this wall, nor is there any outward movement.

What appears to be a temporary partition made up of 1x4 T&G Fir ceiling boards has separated at the ceiling of the north wall. This is caused by the shrinkage of wood. This is not a structural failure.

There are several pieces of flooring that have splintered out. It is a simple maintenance item to replace these short pieces.

The Staircase is in sound condition. The treads are wore down, these can be replaced at a nominal cost.

With reference to the windows, while they are worn, they operate freely in their frames. The bottom sash have generally been repaired. They are solid and in fair condition. There are a number of bottom sash that should be replaced. The top sash are in good condition.

The present window frames are in fairly good condition, however we found some sill members that show decay. This is a maintenance problem and a simple item to replace.

The masonry exterior wall and the mortar joints of the brick are in exceptionally good condition. We found in no place of the walls where failure has occured. It appears that these walls are constructed of 16 inches of solid brick to the second floor and reduces to 12 inches of brick to the roof. This type of masonry construction is exceptionally strong.

The roof appears to be in very good condition. This building has an asphalt shingled roof which appears to be quite new. No evidence of failure was detected.

The wood fascia and soffit appears to be sound, no evidence of rot was detected. This area is in urgent need of paint.

The gutters on the roof leak, which is evidenced by black streaks over the eave moulding. They should be repaired before any painting is done.

It is my belief that this building can be placed in very good condition with a minimum of repairs. We estimate the cost, not to exceed $10,000 which would include the additional electrical conduit work necessary to replace the drop-cord lights in the coatrooms and the light fixtures of the corridor, this added to the existing conduit serving the existing new strip fluorescent light fixtures of the classrooms.

The building is structurally sound.

Public Opinion

To the Editor:

In connection with the school bond issue, there was an inference in a recent newspaper article that the Thief River Falls area cannot afford the proposed school addition—that the area is depressed and now is not the time to proceed with a building program. If we cannot afford adequate facilities for our children, then, I believe, there are some of us that have made some very wrong decisions in locating and expanding in Thief River Falls.

We, of the Dow-Key Company, are just completing an expansion program which will double our plant capacity. Fred Forsberg & Sons completed an addition to their plant and Edgar Hetteen started Polar Industries here last year. Were all of us wrong in putting our faith in the future of Thief River Falls?

We are all hoping that the J. C. Penney Co. will take over, remodel and refurbish the Old Ward building. How can we expect the J. C. Penney Co. to invest in Thief River Falls if we do not have enough faith in our own community to build the necessary schools for our children?

Let's not muddy up the issue with where the school should be located or how many floors the buildings should be. We need good substantial buildings—with no frills which we know that Superintendent Hankerson and the School Board will provide.

Let's vote "YES"! and get started now!

Lowell T. Swenson
Dow-Key Company, Inc.

Editor Times:

An editorial in the April 9th issue of the Times was titled "There are always two sides". One side was presented in the editorial. May I be so bold as to perhaps challenge some of the statements made and present at least a part of the other side.

The first contention sets forth in addition to the $1,600,000 bond issue, there will be additional costs for street development, sidewalks, curb and gutter, water, etc. This statement is erroneous because the anticipated costs of the utilities, streets, etc. are included in the bond issue.

It is stated that additional staff (teachers) will be required to add to the costs. This is a mis-statement of fact. We have the students and staff here now. The eight classes in the old Washington, and 3 Jr. H. S. classes in the Sr. H. S. building will occupy the space in the new Jr. H. S. building. No more staff needed there. The 2 elementary classes in the Armory, the two classes in the Trinity church, and the two classes in the temporary rooms at the Knox school will be placed in the new elementary building. This calls for no more staff. In 1964, however, when 64 new pupils will be entering school, two new staff members will be added to the staff. There will be additional janitor service and additional heating cost, but no additional administration or staff costs.

There seems to be confuson concerning the school population increase, so lets try to simplify that a bit. From 1951 to 1961 student increases are: Kindergarten, 81; elementary, 345; H. S., 150; and vocational school, 254. This is what has been done to house this group: in 1953, 3 class rooms, 1 kindergarten room, and utility room was added to the Northrop school to make room for the two oversize classes in the Zion church. In 1956 some class room space and utility room and kindergarten room was added to the Knox school, and in 1956-57 the new Washington school was built. This provided 13 class rooms, 1 kindergarten room, and assembly and utility rooms. The elementary grades from the old Washington and the three classes from the Zion church were moved into the building, and by the opening of school in the fall of 1958 this building was fully occupied. It is apropos to state also that it was necessary to rent additional space that same year, 1958. The vocational students are housed, of course in the new vocational building with the exception of three classes moved into rented space to make room for three Jr. H. S. classes that could not be crowded into the old Washington building.

How about the old Washington building. Is it safe to use or is it not? The building is 61 years old. It has been thoroughly inspected by professionally trained and experienced people—engineers, architechts, and construction people. They are in agreement that the building is unsafe for public use. We are assured it is no fire hazard because there is no heating plant in the building. There was none in 1942 either, but we had a dandy fire there. Personally, I would be reluctant to have any child attend school in the old Washington.

I should like to comment on the other items; rent payments, possible federal aid grants, the one or two story structure, etc., but space does not permit. One statement is made in the editorial with which I am in agreement. Quote "We favor a top-level, practical system of public education for our community." End of quote. We all do, Mr. Editor, but we will not get it by rejecting and opposing every effort and attempt to achieve that goal.

So lets get with it as the moderns put it. The need is here now. It is indeed costly to provide for the educational needs of our young people. Good judgement and restraint must be exercised in determining what is necessary, and what we are able to do. I am satisfied that the school board, the school administration and the citizens advisory committee studied this proposal very thoroughly. They have presented it to us with a recommendation that we approve of the plan. I think we would be well advised to act favorable on this proposal as we vote on Tuesday, April 23rd.

Dr. A. E. Jacobson

Editor Times:

The Public School is the greatest tax bargain in any community.

Average expenditure per pupil in Thief River Falls, for all levels in 1960-61 was $401.87. That figure included all salaries, all supplies, all fixed charges, all capital outlay general fund expenditures and all debt service.

Our schools are in session 175 days. So the daily cost of educating a pupil is $2.30. The average pupil is in school under supervision six hours a day. This means it cost only 37 cents an hour to educate a pupil in Thief River Falls during 1960-61.

Where, except in school can one have his youngsters under the supervision of college-trained professional educators for 37 cents an hour? The teen-aged baby-sitter is seldom satisfied with 50 cents an hour.

The proposed increase of 8.63 per cent in taxes would mean an increase of 3 cents per hour. Think of what we could do to improve educational opportunity if the community would be willing to spend 40 cents per hour for children for their education.

Cliff Bjorkman

Editor Times:

We have three children in the Thief River schools now and we have been proud of and grateful for the quality of education they have been receiving. We recognize the need for additional classroom space now, but we don't think that even the urgency of this need should make us accept a plan of which we do not approve.

We agree that the elementary classroom space should be provided on the east side where the crowded conditions are. We do not agree that the proposed Junior High School should be there. In the "Guide for Educational Planning of Public School Buildings and Sites in Minnesota" published by the State Department of Education we find "all schools should be located within walking distance of the greatest number of pupils". There is no law which states that schools must be located on any specific number of acres. A large site is desirable only if it also meets many other standards such as being centrally located and being near the library.

When there are three schools on the same site, one of which does not belong with either of the other two and you can afford to move only one, which one does it make the most sense to move?

Moving the vocational school would separate BOTH the high school and the junior high school students from the older vocational students NOW!!! Also, since most of the vocational students drive, central location is no problem and parking space could be provided.

Leaving both the high school and junior high students in the centrally located site eliminates the cost and nuisance of transporting at least 180 students from 18 to 31 blocks to school. At the present site no child walks more than 20 blocks to school. The figure 180 was obtained from the Domain Report for the 4th, 5th, and 6th Grades and there will be at least that many for all the forseeable future.

We suggest that the School Board have architects make a thorough study of the present site with the idea of making a long range plan to be carried out as we can afford it. Making use of the Vocational building, relocating the bus garages and possibly using some of the athletic field adjacent to the present building, we think a good architect can find ample space for the additional rooms we need right now and make plans for tearing out old buildings and replacing them with new as it becomes wise and we can afford to do so.

To us it makes better sense to have physical education classes go four or five blocks to the present football field during the short time in the spring and fall when they can be outdoors than it does to make children travel from 1½ to over 2 miles to school during the whole school year.

The only way to have these plans investigated is to vote NO on the bond issue next Monday. A YES vote commits us to the present plan in its entirety.

LONG LOST banner of the Boissevain, Manitoba, Lion club was at long last restored to its rightful owners at Saturday evening's Tri-Zone Lions meeting held in Thief River Falls. Gordon Reierson, left, president of the Thief River Falls club, is shown returning the banner to Russ Jasper of the Boissevain club. The club banner mysteriously disappeared from Boissevain after Reierson and James Parkins of the Thief River Falls club attended the mid-winter conference there earlier this year.

HOLDING aloft one of the bantam chickens which was received as a gift by the Thief River Falls Lions club Saturday evening at the Tri-Zone meeting held in this city, is Gordon Reierson, president of the local club. The bantams were in a box given by the McIntosh club to Frank Shelton of Boissevain, Manitoba, who in turn made the presentation to the Thief River Falls club. and Red Lake counties, the total affected would be 375 in Pennington and 174 in Red Lake county, according to latest census figures.

"The Pennington-Red Lake association was organized with this purpose:" Mrs. Mosbeck said. "To promote the general welfare of all mentally retarded children of all ages, those in the home, in the communities, in institutions, and in public, private and religious school, and to serve the retarded children in the entire chapter territory so as to accomplish the most good for the greatest numbers.

Try to Explain Needs

"We have tried to acquaint parents and the public to the need of a program of education and help to all handicapped children of which metal retardation is the leading handicapping condition, and that these children can be helped."

Mrs. Mosbeck added that the statement often made by persons who work with the retarded is this: "Every time we think they've reached their limits, they take another step." She added that a father of a mentally retarded child said that, "Others like her can do as well if given the opportunity. In too many cases, the backwardness of a child reflects the backwardness of the opportunities he is given."

"There are many retarded Timmies, Marys, Mikes and Johnnys in our two counties," the chairman concluded. "Even those with brothers and sisters will live lonely lives unless something more can be done for them. Now that we have decided to do something for activity and care for the retarded, let's do it well."

More than 200 examples of art and craft work were on display with two walls of the gymnasium covered with items made by the elementary students. Exhibits were arranged by grades and showed the progress made by students as they advanced through eighth grade level.

Approximately 160 students of various ages took part in the minstrel show which was written and directed by Mrs. Frank Harger, vocal and instrumental—music instructor at the school. Teachers of the individual grades assisted in the presentation of the program.

Two auto mishaps were recorded by the Thief River Falls police department during the past week with damage totaling approximately $425 to the three cars involved.

At about 1:30 a. m. Sunday a car driven by Delphis Bergdahl was traveling north on Main av. The mishap was reported at 9:35 a. m. the following day and Bergdahl was cited for careless driving.

At 4:25 p. m. Tuesday a car driven by Lloyd Jorgenson, Plummer, was pulling out of a parking space near the intersection of third st. and LaBree av. N. when struck by a car driven by Donald H. Nelson, rt. 1, Alvarado, which was traveling west on Third street. About $75 damage was done to the Jorgenson car, $150 to the Nelson car, and no citations were issued.

Temperature Hits Seasonal High Of 56 Tuesday

Signs of spring are advancing rapidly in the Times area with temparatues hitting the season's high of 56 degrees Tuesday following the season's highest low of 39 degrees the previous evening. The mercury is expected to rise into the 55 to 65-degree range today, dip to only 35 to 42 tonight and hold about steady for tomorrow.

Break-up of the ice on the river in this city was officially recorded at 10:31.02 a. m. Tuesday and the water flow is now extremely rapid. Parents are warned by the local police department to keep youngsters away from the banks since the river is especially treacherous at this season of the year.

High and low temperatures respectively were 47 and 39 on Monday, 56 and 32 on Tuesday and 52 and 32 on Wednesday with last night's low reaching down to 26 degrees. Little of the flooding experienced in some surrounding areas has been noted in this immediate community.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Hanson and declared carried.

Moved by Almquist seconded by Hanson that that portion of road formerly a part of SAH 3 extending to the east from State Highway 32 at the northerly edge of St. Hilaire and extending across the bridge that is currently being replaced to the east end of where the new bridge abutment extended joins the old highway, be designated as a haul road for said bridge project and shall remain as a haul road until completion of the project.

Carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Almquist that the Engineer and Auditor be authorized and instructed to advertise for bids for construction of base and bituminous on SAH 24 known as the Highlanding road and for grading the West end of SAH 3 to the West end of the St. Hilaire road at the earliest possible date.

Carried.

Moved by Olson seconded by Hanson that the Road Committee and the Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads and bridges and culverts at 1:00 P. M. April 23, 1962.

Carried.

Moved by Olson seconded by Lindberg that application to the State of Minnesota for a Bottle Club license was presented for approval by the County Board by the Thief River Golf Club pursuant to MSA 340:14 and the fee as stipulated for Private Clubs operating a part year was set at $50.00 per fiscal year starting July 1 and the Chairman was directed to affix his signature as approval of the application.

Motion carried.

Moved by Lindberg seconded by Hanson that the sum of $25.00 be appropriated to the Goodridge Community Club and $100.00 to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2773 of Thief River Falls for appropriate observance of Memorial Day.

Baseball Prowlers to Open vs. RLF Apr. 25

Coach Ralph Skay's baseball Prowlers, always rated as a "power" in District 31 baseball competition, will begin play on their 1962 schedule on Wednesday, April 25, when they make the short jaunt to Red Lake Falls for a game against coach Mike Hajostek's Eagles. The first home for the Prwlers will be on Friday, April 27, when they meet the Roseau Rams in an 8:00 P. M. on the Fair Grounds diamond.

If the present warming trend continues, coach Skay and his assistant, Jack Junker, hope to have the Prowlers outdoors in a couple days. At present the squad has been engaging in warm-up drills in the spacious confines of the armory, but the Prowler coaches are anxious to begin intensive practice.

The Prowler squad, except for the pitching staff, is well-supplied with veteran talent for this season's schedule. Jerome (Tony) Poole and Mike Aune, both righthanders, are the only hurlers with experience that are available for this year's competition. Jack Goulet, Gary Anderson, and Eddie Lietzow, the hurlers who handled the major part of the pitching duties last season, were lost thru graduation.

An oddity with regard to this season's squad is the number of brother combinations that are on the squad. And these brother combinations—John and Mike Aune, Paul and Gary Klungness, Tony and Larry Poole, Gerry and David Erickson, and David and Jim Ellingson—will play vital roles in the success of the Prowlers.

The 1962 Prowler baseball schedule:

April 25, Red Lake Falls, there, 4:30 p. m.
April 27, Roseau, here, 8:00 p. m.
April 30, Lake Bronson, here, 8:00 p. m.

Cancer Crusade Dates Near in Pennington County

Kenneth Wendel, County Chairman, Urges Full Support of Society

Pennington county chapter of the American Cancer Society will open its annual Crusade here April 25 on a hopeful note. "By the end of the year, about 1,100,000 Americans will be able to say they have been cured of cancer," said Kenneth Wendel, county cancer crusade chairman. "This is nearly seven times as many people as were cured of the disease in 1937."

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

"That's the bright side of the cancer problem, Wendel said. "On the other hand, there are many thousands who die of cancer needlessly. About 87,000 men, women and children will probably die in 1962 who might have been saved by earlier and better treatment. A much greater effort must be made to urge people to see their doctors in time."

To emphasize this point, Wendel announced that the familiar slogan of the American Cancer Society, "Fight Cancer With a Checkup and a Check", will have a companion slogan in 1962 — "To Cure More, Give More."

"To cure more," he said, "more funds are needed to give people life-saving facts about cancer and to keep physicians informed of latest methods of diagnosing and treating cancer.

"To cure more, more funds are needed to support scientists in their search for cures and, let's hope, preventives for all types of cancer, including leukemia.

"To cure more, more money is needed for broadening the Society's service program to ease the burden of cancer patients and their families."

Pointing out that the public support of the Society's attack against cancer has grown from $800,000 in 1944 to more than $36,000,000 in 1961, the chairman urged all residents of Pennington county to give generously to the Crusade to make it the best in history.

"The progress made in cancer control depends on the amount of money invested in the program to fight it," Wendel said. "Your contribution is one of the greatest investments in the world—to eliminate a disease which at present rates will strike 45 million Americans now living. Let us give more, to cure more."

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

The Early Leaders

The men's bowling leagues concluded their season's schedules last week, and this week the keglers are engaged in the annual city bowling competition.

The team event bowling is on the schedule this week, and the score to beat, to date, is the 3115 aggregate score piled up by Jim Muzzy's Daleford Farm's team on Monday night. The team, bowling on the second shift on Monday night, chalked up actual-pin games of 940-1006-824, for a 2770 total. And carrying a 345-pin handicap, the Dalefords, who won the Monday night National league title, had an aggregate of 3115.

Individually, the team scored in this manner: pilot Bernard Myers, who had only one "blow" in his three games, rolled games of 163-236-152, and had a 90-pin handicap, for a 641; second Percy Hagen had games of 200-164-140, and carried a 74-pin handicap, for a 578; Helmer Skomedal had games of 210-189-160, and a 65-pin handicap, for a 624 total; Joe Klein rucked up games of 199-242-198, for a 639-pin actual, and with a handicap of 47 pins, totaled a 686; and anchor Jim Muzzy had an aggregate of 586, having games of 168-175-174 with a handicap of 69 pins.

The city's high-average team, the Elaine's squad of the Business league, made their bid on Tuesday night, bowling on the 6:00 p. m. shift. And the team bowled real, turning in a 2878-pin actual-pin total. With a handicap of 93 pins, the Elaine's had an aggregate of 2971, and this total carried the team into second place in the team totals. Stan Cockrell was the star performer for the Elaine's, having games of 172-216-224, for a 612-pin actual, and with an 18-pin handicap, had an aggregate of 630.

Election of Officers

The annual meeting and election of officers for the city's senior baseball organization will be held this evening, Thursday, at the Eagles club. The meeting is slated to begin at 8:00 p. m.

At a preliminary meeting held on Monday evening it was decided that the Thieves baseball team would continue its membership in the Norman-Polk league, and that the Bums team would remain in the Pen-Ro-Shall league.

The Norman-Polk league, at present, is being organized into a seven-team league. And the Pen-Ro-Shall loop, which had possibilities of being expanded to include several teams from the northwestern part of the state, will remain a six-team circuit. Kennedy, Stephen, Hallock, and the other teams that expressed interest in joining the Pen-Ro-Shall league, have formed an independent league. Teams that will be definitely in action in Pen-Ro-Shall league play this year, in addition to the Bums, are Grygla, Badger, Greenbush, Plummer, and possibly Middle River.

Play ball time can't come too quickly for the fans in this part of the country. It's the one sure sign that spring has officially arrived.

It Was a Success

The athletic banquet held at the St. Bernard's church parlors on Tuesday evening was one of the more successful in the twelve years that this affair has been held. And native son Billy Bye proved to be a fluent and entertaining featured speaker.

Bill, as the featured speaker on Tuesday night's gathering, joined an illustrious group. The roll-call of the speakers at previous banquets reads like this: Wes Fesler, former Ohio State All-America football star and Minnesota football coach; Ozzie Cowles, Minnesota basketball coach; John Mariucci, Minnesota hockey coach; Murray Warmath, Minnesota football coach; Joe Hendrickson, Minneapolis sportswriter; George Mikan, Laker basketball star; Jim Adelson, sportscaster; Bob May, North Dakota hockey coach; John Kundla, Minnesota basketball coach; Steve Myhra, professional football; and Marv Helling, North Dakota football coach.

Statewide Group Sets Minneapolis Meeting

Forestry and conservation leaders from throughout the state will meet in Minneapolis May 4 to hear Governor Elmer L. Andersen present his annual forestry message to Minnesotans and to spotlight the "cream of the crop" among foresters and tree farmers.

The event — open to the public — is the 18th annual Keep Minnesota Green (KMG) Governor's Banquet, set for 6:30 p. m. at the Leamington Hotel.

In previewing his message, Governor Andersen revealed that this year's meeting will focus on multiple use of Minnesota's forest and tree farm lands. The Governor serves as honorary chairman of KMG, a statewide organization of conservation-minded citizens, industries, and public agencies.

KMG will spotlight several outstanding individuals at the Governor's Banquet, according to Floyd T. Ryan, KMG executive secretary. Selections will include a "Tree Farmer of the Year" and four Senior Forestry Award winners.

The KMG organization carries on a three-fold program—prevention of wildfire on the land, conservation education for youth, and supervision of the state's tree farm system.

PTA Council Acts On School Issue

Unanimous endorsement of the proposed school bond issue for construction of a new elementary and junior high school in Thief River Falls was given by the local PTA Council at a telephone meeting held late last week. A council had decided earlier not to hold a regular meeting in April, making the telephone session necessary to poll opinion of the group.

Engineer Graduates' Pay Hits Record Peak

Salaries for 1962 engineering and science graduates have reached an all-time high, according to a salary survey completed this week by the institute of technology (I.T.) placement office at the University of Minnesota.

An average salary of $583 per month is being offered to I. T. graduating students, the survey reveals, representing an increase of five per cent over last year's figures. The survey is based on salary offers received to date by I. T. students scheduled to receive bachelor of science degrees in June.

Electrical engineers head the list with an average offer of $598 per month. Graduates with master of science degrees now average over $8,000 per year, Paul A. Cartwright, I. T. placement director said, and those holding doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.) degrees will average over $11,000 per year.

Cartwright, who is also an associate professor of electrical engineering, said a heavy demand for scientists and engineers lies ahead. He quoted a National Science Foundation study which shows that 81,000 new engineering graduates are currently needed, but only about 36,000 graduated in 1961.

Present enrollments indicate that there will be no increase in the graduation rate in the next four years, Professor Cartwright said, yet by 1970 this country will need at least 75 per cent more engineers and scientists than now. In fact, Cartwright pointed out, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and related industries alone could employ most of the Ph.D. graduates in science and engineering from now until 1970.

Professor Cartwright quoted Julius H. Stratton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who said, ". . . we need technically trained manpower in quantity and quality at all levels".

Traffic Accident Prevention Drive Will Start in May

'Operation Survival' in Minnesota to Continue for Coming Six Months

"Operation Survival," the 1962 traffic accident prevention program, begins with an emphasis on those improper driving maneuvers that lead to injuries and deaths on the highways.

The program will combine public education in automobile driving, pedestrian and bicycle driving, with strong emphasis on particular violations. Running for six months, the program will stress a different driving maneuver each month.

It is coordinated by the safety division of the Minnesota highway department, with local police and sheriff's departments. A strong link for the program will be a series of stories, feature articles and photo features being prepared by various communication media.

During May, emphasis will be placed on the proper way to change lanes, the proper signals when changing course and the proper times to use low-beam headlights.

Minnesota traffic regulation acts require drivers to give a "signal of intention to turn right or left continuously during not less than the last 100 feet traveled by the vehicle before turning."

"No person shall stop or suddenly decrease the speed of a vehicle without first giving an appropriate signal to the driver immediately to the rear," is another requirement, and, furthermore, "No person shall turn a vehicle at an intersection unless the vehicle is in proper position or otherwise turn a vehicle from a direct course or move right or left upon a highway unless and until the movement can be made with reasonable safety, and then only after giving an appropriate signal in the event any other vehicle may be affected by the movement."

Proper signaling of intention to make a driving maneuver helps all traffic move safely and quickly. Proper driving habits reduce accidents which, in turn, reduces the tragedies of injuries and death.

Taxpayer Must Die or Retire to Cash in on Forgiveness

State Association Says Most Persons Paid 29 Pct. More Taxes Than in 1960

Individual income taxpayers must wait until they die or retire to 'cash in' on the '75 per cent forgiveness' provided in the 1961 Minnesota tax withholding law, Charles P. Stone, general counsel of the Minnesota Taxpayers association, said today.

"Minnesotans who have just finished sending in their 1961 state income tax returns should not be fooled into thinking they are paying less now because of the '75 per cent forgiveness credit' ", Stone said.

"Actually, most taxpayers paid 29½ per cent more in claendar 1961 than they did in 1960, and will pay about 4½ per cent more this year than in 1960, even if their incomes are no greater.

"Last year they paid their full 1960 tax bill in the usual manner, plus taxes for the final three months of 1961 by withholding, plus a new 5 per cent surtax on all of their 1961 income. This year they will pay their entire 1962 tax bill by withholding, including the new 5 per cent surtax.

"With our individual state income tax now the third highest in the nation at the $5,000 a year level of income, and second highest at the $10,000 a year income level, it is important to keep this in mind when and if an attempt is made in the 1963 legislative session to boost the state income tax rates even higher to finance expenditures for the 1963-1965 fiscal two-year period," Stone warned.

71,646 Automobile Accidents Listed in State in 1961

Highway Dept's Safety Division Reports More Mishaps but Fewer Deaths

The year 1961 witnessed new highs in total reported accidents and persons injured on Minnesota streets and highways, acording to the annual summary of motor vehicle accidents prepared by the safety division of the Minnesota highway department.

At the end of the statistical year, there was a slight reduction in fatalities as the 1960 record, which showed 724 fatalities, was nearly reached in 1961 when 719 persons were killed.

During the year, the accident records section received reports of 71,646 motor vehicle accidents involving 126,824 drivers, the largest number reported in any single year in the history of the state. This represents an increase of 4.6 per cent over the 68,442 accidents reported in Minnesota during the calendar year 1960.

Of these, 49,528 resulted in only property damage, with a minimum damage of $50. Many other accidents were reported, but were not included in the summary unless the total damage was over $50, or personal injury or death resulted.

Personal injury accidents increased 7.5 per cent, from 19,995 to 21,494. Of these, 34,709 persons were injured to the extent that they required medical attention. In the most serious category, fatal acidents increased slightly from 616 in 1960 to 624 in 1961. However, less fatalities occurred during 1961.

The summary shows that an accident happened on the average of one every seven minutes; a person was injured every 15 minutes; and a person was killed every 12 hours on Minnesota highways during 1961. One out of every 14 licensed drivers was involved in an accident of some severity during the year.

Copies of the annual summary are available on request to the Safety Division, Minnesota Highway Department, St. Paul 1, Minnesota.

Yes, We Will Vote No

Thank you Phil Hess for calling attention to our record on bond issues for educational purposes. We have favored most of them and we have not opposed any of them until now. There were a couple of bond issues that we thought later, when we saw what we were getting for our tax dollars, should have been opposed. We are satisfied that too many of our tax dollars have been wasted, but that is water over the dam.

We favored junking the old Central school because it was structurally unsound and the many things it needed to make it both sound and safe would have cost too much to justify the spending. That is not true of the old Washington which, we are satisfied, is still structurally sound and is not a hazard to occupants, and we favored junking the old Central too because the school district was in a strong financial condition at that time and could afford it.

Elsewhere in this issue is a report by a competant construction man, who was hired by a group of local citizens to inspect the building and make recommendations as to whether or not it is structurally sound and, if it can be used safely, tell us what improvements might reasonably be made and at what cost. His report confirms in general what local construction men have told us. The building still is structurally sound.

Last summer we drove around the city of St. Paul where, many, many years ago we attended school. We noted that the school we attended was still standing and was still being used. It is much older than our old Washington and we are sure that around the state there are hundreds of school buildings that are just as old that are still giving good service.

Ours is not a rich community. We have faith in its future but that future will not be helped by the imposition of taxes that can be postponed. Each year that we get along with what schools we have we will be saving at least $60,000 a year in interest and in our community that is a lot of money.

There are some educational facilities that should be provided but there is nothing in the growth records that justifies 16 more classrooms at this time. During the past ten years our elementary and secondary school enrollment has increased a little over four hundred. During that period we have added more than twenty new classrooms, which could have made room for six hundred. There is no emergency.

We still are for education and we do not think it is necessary to point out that we like this community very much and want it to make progress, in all ways. We have found that living within our means is one of the best ways to assure progress.

Are You In Doubt?

Are you in doubt about how you should vote on the proposed school bond question? If you are then the safest way to vote is "NO". If the proposal is rejected at this time there still is a good possibility for agreement on a sound program later on. But if the proposal is approved then there can be no turning back. Our school district will be mortgaged for the next 28 years.

Considering all that will be involved in the building plan as proposed, requiring a development program for a large area, the total debt that the district will assume, will be close to two million dollars. The interest cost for such a debt woud start out well over $70,000 a year and for many years there would be little reduction in the principal. This is not a contract that should be entered into lightly.

If in doubt the safe way to vote is "No".

Castro's Extortion

Castro's offer to free the 1,200 Cubans who were captured in the attempted invasion, for the sum of 62 million dollars, should not be accepted. All of these prisoners are native Cubans as we understand it, and they staged an armed invasion in the hope of overthrowing the Castro Regime. No doubt most Americans wished them success and they have the sympathy of most Americans now. But paying a ransom for their release is another thing.

Paying the ransom would establish a precedent that would bring on many more extortion attempts not only from Cuba's Castro but from other revolutionary governments throut the underdeveloped areas of the world. One successful kidnapping always encourages more.

Progress Backward

Politician Kennedy's speech on the steel price increase had great popular appeal. The situation provided him with an opportunity to prove that he was not being dictated to by the money boys and for this purpose he put on a great act.

And maybe the industry officials deserved a spanking. They agreed to the wage settlement, and considering the wage increases that have been made in recent years without price increases, the industry probably was justified in a price boost. But it would have been better if an announcement to that effect had been made at the time they were negotiating.

So we are not proud of the conduct on either side in this particular argument. The industry officials were not as forthright as they should have been during the bargaining. President Kennedy talked like a dictator who had been challenged, and he talked like a juvenile when he referred to all of the things he and brother Bobby were going to do.

Unfortunately the episode further muddied the already-muddy waters and added to the tensions and misunderstandings that are retarding progress. We are not moving forward in the spirit of harmony that is essential to real progress.

A Good Guy?

Dr. Ralph Knutti, director of the National Heart Institute evidently has some doubts about cholesterol being the tough killer it is reputed to be. At any rate he admits that cholesterol is not feared as much now as it was a few years ago and that in the foreseeable future it may return to good standing. Under a "March of Science, Headline Department" heading he offers the following satire:

Pre-1916: Cholesterol is a good guy.

1947: Cholesterol is found to be associated with arteriosclerosis.

1950: Cholesterol is killing you.

1954: Cholesterol is killing you, but it has help.

1958: Cholesterol, stress and lack of exercise are killing you.

1962: Cholesterol isn't even helping other things kill you—much.

1966: Cholesterol is a good guy.

The Court Decision

Raymond Moley, writing in Newsweek, is critical of the majority opinion of the Supreme Court in the state legislative districting case. He says:

"Those liberals who have so enthusiastically hailed the majority opinion of the Supreme Court in the state-districting case fail to realize that Justice Holmes, whose memory they do devoutly revere, would have agreed with Justice Frankfurter's vigorous and eloquent dissent. For many of the most famous Holmes, dissents held that the states should be permitted to make their decisions, possibly make mistakes and rue them and correct them, rather than make them children of the Court.

"It is not the relentless accumulation of years—80 in November—that has changed Frankfurter, the firebrand of four decades ago, to the most conservative Justice on the Court. It is the march of events and policies. A lot of us believe that those events and policies have been marching in the wrong direction.

"It is not a popular matter to seem to defend the inaction of the states in redistricting. But there are those who place principle over popularity. In this instance neither Frankfurter nor this writer is raising the question of the wisdom of the present status of representative government. Rather, the Frankfurter dissent denies the right of the Court to inject itself into a political matter; denies the stupid assumption, even if there is a right, that the courts are capable of making the mathematical calculations and the cartography essential to redistricting, and, finally, denies the assumption, so generally held, that representative government is also a democracy.

"The Frankfurter dissent deserves careful reading and reflection. For it is not only wise, it is a splendid piece of judicial prose.

Moley stresses the need for area as well as population in the selection of representatives, a practice that is well established in our government. Referring to the majority decision he said:

"While the majority inserted a few words suggesting that geographical consideration should be weighed along with population in the selection of representatives, the clear implication is that population should be paramount. This concept has never been generally practices: "It was not the English system, it was not the colonial system, it was not the system chosen for the national government by the Constitution—it is not predominantly practiced by the states today."

"True representation involves interests as well as majorities. And a sparsely settled county, as well as our smaller states, can have a voice in the government only through representation. Only in that manner can we escape the ruthlessness of an over-riding majority."

Interesting Opinions . . .

"In Germany featherbedding and restrictive practices do not exist. In Hamburg I saw a British-made packaging machine which enables seven men to do the work previously done by 14, and which is not used in the United Kingdom because the unions insist on featherbedding.

"When I asked a German union leader why the unions did not object to this machine, he said, "Why should we? The money that it saves helps to provide higher wages all round."

—Jossleyn Hennessy in "The Statist" of London.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

Two elderly friends were discussing their ailments. "That pain in your leg must be due to age," said one. "Nonsense!" replied the other. "My other leg is the same age and it doesn't hurt a bit."

Yard 'n' Garden

Tomatoes

One of the most popular vegetables in the garden is the tomato. In most parts of Minnesota this vegetable may be seeded directly in the garden if early varieties are used. Crops from these plants may be used for canning. For early fruits for the table, a few plants should be started early or purchased from a greenhouse for transplanting to the garden.

Selection of good varieties is important. In northern Minnesota, the Fireball or Hybrid EE are good. For southern Minnesota try Moreton Hybrid or Big Boy. Other good varieties are Firesteel, Sioux, Stokesdale, and Rutgers. Jubilee or Sunray are excellent yellow varieties.

Don't make the mistake of setting the plants out doors too early. In Minnesota we usually suggest Memorial Day as a guide when soil and air temperatures are warm enough for transplanting tomatoes.

If space is limited in the garden, set the plants 18-24 inches apart and plan to prune the plants to one or three stems. Tie these to a stake for support. As the plants begin to branch, remove the small side shoots that develop where the leaf joins the main stem. If plenty of room is available, space the plants 3-4 feet apart and don't prune or stake.

When transplanting use a starter solution of ½ cup of complete fertilizer in one gallon of water. Use ½ cup of this solution to each plant.

Blossom-end rot of tomatoes is often caused by root pruning. A mulch of clean straw, ground corn cobs, sawdust, or black plastic will reduce this problem by eliminating the need for cultivation. Apply the mulch early in July after a rain.

Begin spraying tomatoes when they are 8-10 inches tall for blight control. Use maneb fungicide (Manzate or Dithane M-22) for best results.

Guidance Offered to Limit Flood Damage

Federal guidance to communities wanting to restrict future building on lands subject to flooding is available under a new program announced by Col. W. B. Strandberg of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Colonel Strandberg, St. Paul district engineer, said that it is generally impractical to move existing buildings and facilities from areas subject to floods. However, he said, where such areas have not yet been occupied, it is now time to zone these areas and plan wisely for their proper use.

"If we can regulate the expansion into flood areas, we can save millions in flood damages."

Unlimited use of flood plain lands results in developments that lead to costly expenditures for flood protection works, emergency measures or disaster relief, Col. Strandberg said.

"Flood plain zoning promotes the public welfare by reducing public expenditures."

The Corps of Engineers will assist local communities in evaluating information on potential flood plain areas. Such information may include the history, frequency, and extent of floods; maps showing flooded areas; records listing flood losses, and other engineering data.

Requests for federal assistance for flood plain information studies should be made to respective state governments, which in turn will contact the Corps of Engineers.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

The School expansion project that is such a popular subject for discussion at this time is remindful of similar situations of the past. Each of us whose names appear below has served on the school board of former years, as far back as 1935. Each of us has served when building programs were found necessary. When the present Lincoln High School was built the board was subjected to severe criticism because:

1. The building as proposed was far too large; no need for it; we would never have use for all that space.

2. There are too many frills, too many useless things included in the proposal.

3. The cost is prohibitive, far beyond our means, taxes will be so far out of line our people just cannot pay them.

4. This is not the right time to build, building costs are too high now, it will be so much better, so much cheaper, so much more suitable at some later indefinite time.

Some years later it was deemed necessary to enlarge the Northrop school to provide space for the increased enrollment there. The board was subjected to severe criticism because:

1. The same as No. 1 above.
2. The same as No. 2 above.
3. The same as No. 3 above.
4. The same as No. 4 above.

Again, some years later, the congestion in the elementary schools compelled an expansion of housing, and the board found that the most economical and practical solution was to add class rooms, kindergarten, assembly hall, kitchen and hot lunch serving space at Knox School. The Board was severely criticized because:

1. The same as No. 1 above.
2. The same as No. 2 above.
3. The same as No. 3 above.
4. The same as No. 4 above.

Following reorganization of the school district and another bulge in enrollment, the new Washington School was built. At the risk of becoming monotonous we must repeat that the board was again severely criticized for the same 1-2-3-4 reasons as listed above.

We wish it could be made clear that no member of any school board that has served this good community has ever had any reason for advocating the addition of any building, or any equipment, or any facility of any kind that was not needed. It was needed at the time because old equipment or facility or building was worn out or used up or was too small, or for some other reason was inadequate to meet the present need.

Each of the above mentioned building programs was forced upon the community because of the need for school rooms not because of the whims of the board. The children of school age were here and space had to be provided for them. The exact situation prevails today. Again the school board is making arrangements to provide housing for school children who are here but for whom there is not available space in our schools. We are inclined to believe the present board is as sincere and as fully convinced of the present need as we, the undersigned, were when the responsibility of meeting the challenges of needed space was our obligation.

Again the board has been quite sternly and severely rebuked for the plan it has presented because:

1. The building as proposed is far too large, no need for it, we will never have use for all that upace.

2. There are too many frills, too many useless things included in the proposal.

3. The cost is prohibitive, far beyond our means, taxes will be so far out of line our people just cannot pay for tho.

4. This is not the right time to build, building costs are too high right now, it will be so much better, so much cheaper, so much more suitable at some later indefinate time.

Yes indeed, history repeats itself.

We believe that the present school board has exercised good judgment and restraint in the proposal that has been presented. They have satisfactorily demonstrated the need for more teaching space; they have submitted a good building plan to meet that need; they have submitted cost figures and a payment plan. The cost is very large, yes, we agree. But we believe it is a sound plan, and we believe it is within our ability to pay.

We commend the School Board and the School Administration for the thoroughness of their plans based on two years of study. We approve of the proposal being offered and recommend to the Voters of the School District that when you are asked to express your opinions at the bond election to be held on April 23rd you will indicate by a "Yes" vote that the best investment for tomorrow is Education of today.

Signed,

Editor the Times:

Having been an avid reader of your editorials on Education for the last 13 years, and after reading your last one "There are Always Two Sides", a pertinent question came to my mind. Have you ever written anything on the FOR side of better education in Thief River Falls, or have you always been critical or AGAINST the issues of a fine school system?

Knowing your stand on the last two school issues, I referred to the September 22, 1938 edition of the TRF Times, and found these opinions in your editorial. This was 24 years ago when the school board was trying to get the backing of the voters to build what is now the Lincoln High School. In your traditional style you said, "In view of the large bond required to build the proposed Lincoln High School, it is well for the voters to review the needs." Most of the voters then and likewise today agree with you on that statement.

You went on to tell the voters that the old Central School (7th & 8th grade school that was located on the land that now is a city parking lot east of the Telephone Company) was worn out and beyond repair — that the proposal of combining the Junior High with the new Lincoln would reduce costs — that restricting enrollments will not reduce operating costs (apparently you saw wisdom and practicability in consolidation) — and you predicted that the bonds would sell for 3 per cent or less. In other words you were FOR that bond issue. You said "We favor this project and urge its approval. Our community is growing. As we grow it becomes necessary to expand our facilities to meet the public need!" We know the rest. The voters approved what seemed like an enormous building program at that time. As a result, we have a fine high school that is still serving us well today, 24 years later.

Yes, Mr. Editor, you were for that one, but why not now? Isn't our 61 year old Washington just as antiquated as 46 year old Central School was when you favored its replacement? I'm sure it is. Isn't the School Board's careful decision to protect the lives of the 200 to 300 youngsters just as important today as 24 years ago? Fires start from causes other than heating plants. Suppose the building collapsed? Whose responsibility would that be?

The present proposal calls for building the Elementary and Junior High schools together using the same heating plant, lunch room and library facilities. Isn't that just as practical as housing the Junior and Senior High together was 24 years ago? The architect estimates this will save the taxpayers approximately $200,000.00. Doesn't this indicate that our present school board is making every effort to be just as practical as the 1938 School Board that you supported? I think so.

The 1938 bond issue was sold for 3 per cent. Today the School Board has every reason to believe the present bond issue, if approved, would sell for less than 4 per cent — not much of an increase in cost compared to 24 years ago! Waiting won't make it any cheaper!

Our city is a growing community. "As we grow it becomes necessary to expand facilities to meet public need — the need for a new school and enlarging facilities has been recognized for several years" You said this 24 years ago when your children were in school. The same thing is just as true today. We citizens in this School District have to face the facts, and the fact still remains we have a need for more classrooms. Why don't you vote YES on April 23rd, Mr. Editor? I'm going to.

Sincerely,
Phil Hess

Job-holders Gain in State in March

Seasonal Upswing Gains over 4,000 During Month

Nonagricultural employment in Minnesota began its seasonal upswing in March, with a gain of 4,600 over the February level, it was reported today by Frank T. Starkey, state commissioner of employment security.

The 941,000 persons on jobs in the state (in addition to those in agricultural occupations) last month totaled 24,500 more than the number working in March 1961, reflecting the continued general improvement in business over last year.

Contributing most to the increases in the past month were government (1200), manufacturing (1,000) and construction (800). Additions to county and municipal road crews contributed heavily to the increase in the governmental category. Gains in manufacturing were concentrated in metalworking industries, while additions in construction were general for most types of firms. The latter gain reflected normal seasonal influencees and came in spite of the rather severe weather in late February and early March.

Production workers in Minnesota's manufacturing industries earned an average of $102.11 per week in March, an increase of $1.12 from February. This was mainly due to increased overtime and a one-cent gain in average hourly earnings.

The work week for production workers was up .2 of an hour from the previous month and the same amount above a year ago.

Unemployment in Minnesota, at 112,200 in March, was down 2,200 persons from February and 22,000 below a year ago.

The rate of unemployment in March was 7.9 per cent compared to 8.2 per cent the previous month and 9.8 per cent a year ago.

There Are Two Sides!

A Right Side and a Wrong Side

There are several points regarding the proposed building program that we, the school board, feel should be corrected so you, the voters, will be aware of the facts on April 23rd.

1. Thief River Falls School Dist. is NOT planning to build 25 additional classrooms, junk 8, and have a NET gain of 17. Our district, right now, has a deficit of 10 classrooms (which will increase to 13 in the '62-'63 school year. 8 MUST be removed from use; therefore, the 25 rooms mean a net gain of 4 which will be filled by children already born.

2. According to a registered firm of structural engineers, the "Old Washington" is NOT good for a few more years. The board and the administration invite any or all residents of the district to come to the school for a personal inspection.

3. Building the proposed schools does NOT mean additional improvement assessments as the architects have included these costs in the proposal. i.e. streets, curbs, sewers, sidewalks, water, etc.

4. Building the proposed schools does NOT mean an expanded staff of teachers. We have the children NOW and number of students, not number of classrooms, determines the number of teachers.

5. Waiting a couple of years does NOT mean a saving of $40,000. a year. Construction costs and costs of borrowing increase as time goes on. Our rental costs will NOT remain at $19,000. Three downtown classrooms, the district now rents, costs $3350. annually. We can assume the 3 additional rooms needed for the '62-'63 year will cost about the same; therefore, the total is already over $22,000. next year.

6. True — Part of the 700 enrollment growth in the past ten years is due to the vocational school. Considering the Area Vocational School separately or together with the elementary and secondary school does not change the fact that it is OUR school and OUR students and they must be provided for. Or shall we begin reducing what is one of Thief River's finest assets?

7. Federal Aid? Against it, but wait in case it comes? This is folly. Our need is now — There is no federal aid now and none in the foreseeable future. We cannot afford to wait for sometihng that may never come to be.

8. One or two story building? The architects have drawn very detailed plans housing the same classrooms first in a single story and then in a two story building. After extension of costs, it was determined the two story building would cost approximately $50,000. more. They tell us that only 5% of new schools are built multistory and these in metropolitan areas where land costs are very high.

9. Finally, we, the school board members, are taxpayers also. We are not anxious to raise our own nor your taxes without very careful consideration and justification. The NEED is apparent; the ABILITY is ours; the WILL must be shown. We feel fully justified in asking you, the voters of our district, to give your full support in providing the type and quality education that our children deserve — and need in this modern world so they may provide for their children.

Since the first Easter, the Cross has remained the one great and enduring symbol of Christianity because it best expresses the meaning of faith. Like a precious jewel, the Cross shines with many facets of truth.

† The Cross signifies the hope of faith. It reveals God's love for us in the sacrifice of His Son. It is our assurance of His promise of salvation.

† The Cross signifies the challenge of faith. It reveals God's love for all men which we must share. It is the motivation of Christian action.

† The Cross signifies the victory of faith. It is the pledge of God's loving purpose in saving the world. It is the source of peace.

What does the Cross mean to you? On Easter — this greatest festival of our Faith, will you come to Church and discover its message?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Prospectus Reveals 1975 County Land Use

Agricultural Agencies Combined Services To Provide Information

Projections as to estimated changes in use of Pennington county land and its conservation needs by 1975 have been published in a brochure form and are now available to interested persons. The prospectus was prepared from a study made by the Pennington Conservation Needs Committee in 1959, according to Robert Kloubec, work unit conservationist for the Pennington County Soil Conservation District.

Cooperating in the study were the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, Farmers Home Administration, County farmers, Minnesota Forest Service, Pennington county extension service, soil conservation district supervisors, Soil Conservation Service and state department of conservation. Production of the brochure was sponsored by the county soil conservation district, ASC county office and Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Copies of the brochure are available at the local ASC office, Farmers Home Administration office, extension office, conservation district office and the Chamber of Commerce office in this city.

Purpose of the inventory is to provide land and water resource data useful to federal, state, local agencies and private interests for efficient planning, research, administration and legislation affecting soil and water resources. Figures presented are estimates based primarily on statistical quarter section soil survey samples, secured by the Soil Conservation Service.

Much Tillable Area

With 92 per cent of Pennington county area suited to cultivated crop production, 67 per cent of the county is now in cropland and 71 per cent is expected to be in production by 1975. Bulk of the soil in the county is Class II and is considered to be very good productively.

Predictions made call for continuance of the trend toward larger and fewer farms, increased emphasis on better fertilization of cropland and pasture and improved utilization of forages produced for livestock. There is a need for acceleration of needed conservation practices, the report states, and considerable local planning by

TO FILE Terry Knutson, a student at Bemidji State college and son of Coya Knutson, announced this week he will be a candidate for the state legislature from the new 6th legislative district. The new district comprises the counties of Red Lake, Terry's home county, Pennington and Polk.

In announcing his candidacy Knutson said, "I have gained valuable experience working with my mother, Coya Knutson, while she was a Congresswoman from Minnesota's 9th district. In addition, I have worked for two U. S. Congressmen in Washington, D. C. and the U. S. Employment Service.

"My wife, Barbara, who is a Registered Nurse, will campaign with me as much as she can.

Excess Wheat Penalties Are Raised by ASC

Chairman Knutson Advises Farmers to Dispose of 'Excess'

Growers who have received notice that they have "excess" wheat acreage were told today that it will be to their advantage in at least four or five different ways if they dispose of the excess acreage in accordance with program provisions.

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, said that he and other officials keep reminding farmers at every opportunity that wheat program provisions are revised somewhat for the 1962 crop making it much more serious in cases where the "excess" wheat acreage is not adjusted.

He pointed out that any excess wheat produced on farms where the wheat allotment (or the marketing quota exemption acreage if this is larger) is not complied with will be subject to a marketing quota penalty based on 65 per cent of parity as of May 1, 1962. Formerly, the penalty rate was 45 per cent. The marketing quota exemption acreage is the smaller of (a) 13.5 acres or (b) the highest acreage of wheat on the farm in any of the crop years 1959, 1960 or 1961.

Further, the amount of wheat subject to the penalty will be figured at twice the farm normal yield on all of the excess acres. If the proved 1962 actual yield is less than this amount, a reduction will be made in the amount of the excess based on actual production, if a request is filed before the specified deadline.

Other ways in which the farmer with excess wheat acreage stands to lose by not disposing of the excess are (1) loss of diversion payments he might have earned by participating in the 1962 wheat stabilization program — complying with his wheat allotment and putting the diverted acres into an approved conservation use, and (2) loss of price support on his 1962 wheat crop. Where the final acreage remains in excess of the allotment, and the excess wheat is not stored or delivered to the Secretary of Agriculture in accordance with regulations, the farm also will be subject to a reduction in future wheat allotments.

Crookston Couple Victims of Plane Crash in Honduras

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Eickhof Killed; Two Minneapolis Couples Also Lose Lives

A report that a light plane carrying three Minnesota business men and their wives has crashed in Honduras was received Friday from the State Department. All were killed, and the bodies were recovered Saturday.

R. B. Hartman, vice president of Shedd-Brown, Inc., a Minneapolis specialty firm, relayed the information.

He said the three couples left Minneapolis about 10 days ago on a pleasure flight to Central America, planning to return this weekend. Killed were:

Charles Eickhof, Crookston, Minnesota, contractor and Mrs. Eickhof.

H. Plymouth Shedd, president of Shedd-Brown, Inc., Minneapolis calendar manufacturers, and Mrs. Shedd.

William Knutsen, Wayzata, with Brown and Bigelow, Inc., St. Paul, and Mrs. Knutsen.

Hartman said he understood the plane may have gone down Wednesday and he presumed the six were flying home at the time.

Eickhof is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Eickhof of Crookston and a member of the Eickhof contracting firm in Crookston.

His wife is the former Barbara Stangler, daughter of the late Robert M. Stangler, former manager of the North Dakota Mill and Elevator at Grand Forks.

Eickhof's two brothers, Ralph and Jack, also are residents of Crookston and members of the Eickhof firm.

New High Record for Spring Set by Reading of 59

Spring's high temperature of 56 degrees on April 17 lasted only three days as the record reading for the season as a high of 59 degrees was recorded on Friday. For six consecutive days, April 16 through 21, the mercury failed to dip below the freezing mark.

Continued warmth is predicted for the next few days with generally fair weather and warmer temperatures locally for tomorrow. High readings today will be between 55 and 65 degrees with lows tonight from 32 to 40, according to the forecast received by North Central Airlines at the municipal airport.

High and low temperatures respectively during the past few days include 55 and 33 on Thursday, 59 and 34 on Friday, 56 and 32 on Saturday, 52 and 28 on Sunday and a low reading last night of 30 degrees. Only precipitation during the period was .08 inch on Saturday.

Cancer Drive To Open Here On Wednesday

County Quota Set at $1,600; Wendel Urges Support of Campaign

Pennington county's 1962 Cancer Crusade will open Wednesday with canvassing of the Thief River Falls residential and business areas, according to Kenneth Wendel, county Cancer Crusade chairman. Workers are asked to pick up their envelopes of materials today and Tuesday at the Wendel Agency.

Quota for the campaign in Pennington county this year has been set at $1,600 with collections last year totaling $1,089.75. Working on the residential canvass Wednesday will be members of the BPO Does, Eagles auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary and American Legion auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. Walter Halvorson and Mrs. Lester DeBriyn, co-chairmen for the city campaign.

Solicitors are asked to turn in their receipts and surplus materials during the two-day campaign to the Cancer Crusade office located in the basement of the municipal auditorium. Coffee will be furnished to workers who report to the office headquarters.

"To Cure More—Give More" has been added to the regular Cancer Crusade slogan of "Fight Cancer with a Checkup and a Check." "Only through research and public awareness as to the importance of early diagnosis and treatment can medical science hope to make continued inroads into the cancer death rate," Wendel stated.

The cure rate for cancer climbed from one out of seven in the late 1930's to one out of three in the late 1950's. Today, according to the American Cancer Society, it could be one out of two if all cancers were diagnosed early and treated properly.

It is estimated that in 1962 some 42,000 men, women and children will be saved from cancer who would have died had they developed the disease 10 years ago. Progress is attributed to two major factors—developments in research resulting in new diagnostic techniques and improved methods of treatment; and response to public and professional education which has resulted in earlier detection, prompt treatment and better, more available facilities.

Wangberg Youth Ordered Sent To Mental Institution

As a result of an order handed down by Hon. Arnold C. Forbes, Ninth District judge, Paul Wangberg of Thief River Falls has been committed to the Minnesota Security Hospital at St. Peter for "safekeeping and treatment." Wangberg, son of Rev. and Mrs. Reuben Wangberg of this city, has been held in custody since he was charged with the fatal shooting of Police Sgt. Donald D. Myers February 17.

Charged with second degree murder by Warren A. Saetre, Marshall county attorney, the 19-year-old youth was defended by the law firm of Chommie and Charlson of this city. The court ordered a phychiatric examination by a commission consisting of Dr. Howard C. Reid and Dr. Donald H. DeKay of the Upper Mississippi Mental Health Clinic at Bemidji.

Findings of the commission were reported to the court in a confidential report which has been ordered sealed, kept under lock and key at the clerk of court's office and not exhibited until a contrary order is issued by the court. The order for commitment was made April 19.

The order states that the defendant be committed to St. Peter ". . .for safekeeping and treatment there or in any other institution with better facilities and with sufficient restraint where said defendant shall be received and cared for until he shall recover, when he shall be returned to this court to be placed upon trial under said information."

Findings Reported

Included in the confidential report to the court from the commission and released in part in the order for commitment were findings of the psychiatrists who conducted the examination.

Gas Storage Cavern Visited by Newsmen

Huge Rock Cavity 533 Feet Below Ground Is Marvel of Engineering

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

To the person who is entirely unfamiliar with mining, a journey down a 42-inch shaft to a cavern 533 feet below the surface of the ground is truly an unforgettable experience. Such was the experience of a number of area newsmen who were permitted to view and photograph the Solar Gas company propane gas storage cavern located about three miles east of Mentor and just south of highway 2 on Thursday.

While the carving of storage facilities out of rock below the surface of the ground is not unique, the project near Mentor is the first of its kind in this area. Since the project began in March of 1961, considerable interest has been registered in the project but few people actually knew much about the operation.

As Solar Gas officials told the newsmen Thursday afternoon, an open house for the public is an impossibility. As you continue to read this article you will understand why it is not possible. It was partly because of this that the firm invited the press, radio and television representatives to view the operation and explain it to the SAFETY BARREL is the term given to this cylinder which was used to lower visitors into the Solar Gas company storage cavity near Mentor Thursday. The trip into the cavern, located 533 feet below the surface of the ground, was made by hoist through a 42-inch shaft. Four persons at a time rode the bucket with the trip upward made notable by the rush of cold air which streamed past riders and the clanging of the barrel against the steel-cased shaft.

Arctic Enterprises Is New Name of Polar Company

Business Increase Is Cause for Incorporation of Manufacturing Firm

Arctic Enterprises, Inc., will be the new name of Polar Manufacturing company which has operated in Thief River Falls for slightly over a year. The firm manufactures all-season, rough terrain vehicles and has developed distribution from Alaska to the New England states.

Edgar Hetteen, who has headed the company here after being associated with Polaris Industries at Roseau, said the name change is concurrent with incorporation of the company. He added that incorporation was made necessary "because of the increasing volume of business during the winter and early spring which made a corporate structure seem advisable."

Hetteen added that last fall's expectations were exceeded by a great deal with the demand much greater than the ability to deliver at last year's production rates. With about 12 variations of the all-season vehicle being manufactured, the company is looking forward to a large business increase this year. Sales distributors have also been secured over a wide area.

Incorporators of Artic Enterprises, Inc., include Hetteen, L. B. Hartz, L. A. Ihle, William LaFave, Steve Rugland, J. J. Womack and Robert A. Wurst.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson were Sunday afternoon visitors at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Jensen, in Crookston.

Geraldine Austin Weds Paul Tessman March 17

Miss Geraldine Ann Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Austin of Grand Rapids, Minn., formerly of Thief River Falls, became the bride of Paul Gary Tessman, son of Mrs. Elvera Wallin and Paul Tessman of Minneapolis, on Saturday, March 17. Pastor Reuben Anderson officiated at the 8 p. m. double ring ceremony at the Salem Lutheran church in Minneapolis.

Dorcus Bendix of Minneapolis was organist and played the processional, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the bride entered in on the arm of her father. Miss Janet Bloomquist of Minneapolis was soloist and sang "Jesus Shepherd Be Thou Near Me" and "O Lord Most Holy."

The bride was attired in a floor length gown of artistically hand fashioned chantilly lace enhanced with cascading gossamer ruffles and a chapel train. The bodice featured a scalloped square neckline and long sleeves which came to a point over the wrist. Her fingertip veil fell from a crown of pearls and she carried a colonial style bouquet of white roses with white hyacinths.

Mrs. Jeffrey Hartje and Miss Kathy Austin, sisters of the bride, were matron of honor and bridesmaid, respectively. They wore light blue street length dresses with bell shaped skirts, sabrina necklines, and elbow length sleeves and matching headpieces with veils. Their gloves and single strand pearl necklaces were gifts of the bride and they carried colonial style bouquets of pink roses and pink hyacinths.

Attending the groom as best man was Paul Tidemann while Tommy Tessman was groomsman. Ushers were Bill Kalstad and Don Swanson. The gentlemen of the wedding party wore dark tuxedos and white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Austin chose a teal blue sheath with white accessories and Mrs. Wallin wore a beige lace dress with white accessories. They wore matching corsages and the grandmothers of the couple also were given corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors for about 150 guests. A four-tiered white wedding cake with green ferns and white carnations surrounding the bottom tier and candlebra gracing the cake on each side, centered the serving table.

Mrs. Allen Gilbertson, sister of the bride, of Circle Pines, Minn. and Mrs. Archie Schneider of Rochester poured while Miss Gloria Bushaw of Milwaukee, Wisc., served punch. At the guest book was Teddy Wallin, brother of the groom, and Diane Bugge and Connie Botten, friends of the bride, of Minneapolis were at the gift table.

For her traveling costume the bride chose a beige short sleeve sheath dress with accessories. The couple are now making their home at 2624 First ave. south in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Tessman is a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and is employed at Northwestern Bell in Minneapolis. Mr. Tessman is a graduate of Patrick Henry high school in Minneapolis and attended two years of college at Gustavus Adolphus before transferring for one year to Augsburg college. He is now completing his last year at the University of Minnesota and plans to enter Northwestern Theological Seminary in Minneapolis this fall.

Oral Polio Vaccine Use Is Endorsed by State Board of Health Unit

On Monday, April 2, the poliomyelitis advisory committee to the state board of health considered recommendations for the use of the newly licensed oral polio-virus vaccines. On April 9, the board approved these recommendations, which are as follows:

I. The committee strongly recommends widespread community campaigns as soon as there is assurance of adequate supplies of oral polio vaccine of all three types, with the campaigns to be conducted in the fall, winter, and spring months. In epidemic situations, type specific vaccine should be used immediately on a community-wide basis, regardless of season.

II. In the interim period while vaccine is in short supply emphasis should be placed on unvaccinated children in the following order, — infants, preschool and school children, — and on pregnant women.

III. The committee recommends the development of programs of immunizations in newborns with oral polio vaccines as soon as the vaccine is available in sufficient supply. This would supplement but in no way replace the recommended schedule for immunization of infants beginning at six weeks to three months of age as outlined by the U. S. surgeon general on March 28.

IV. The community programs and plans should follow the pattern which has been widely employed in Minnesota for many years, namely — that immunization programs are planned and developed at the community level in cooperation with the local medical society.

V. The committee recommends that in the use of oral vaccine in private practice the physician be urged to give such immunization on a family basis without regard to previous polio immunization.

VI. Since oral vaccine will be in short supply for 1962, the committee strongly recommends that anyone who has not been immunized against polio or who is only partially protected, be urged to complete his series of Salk vaccine shots, including a booster dose, such immunization to be later supplemented by the oral vaccine when available.

of Rhyme & Reason

SPRING! SPRING! BEAUTIFUL SPRING! Balmy weather of late certainly stimulates the mind to thoughts of dangling a line into the rippling surface of quiet lake, piling the kids into the car for a trip into the country, return of the countryside to verdant green and the silent growth of spring seeding into patterns of prosperity. There can be no other season of the year which is more welcome or holds more promise than Spring in this area.

This is the time of year when the citizenry awakens to the value of nature and turns, at least in part, from the lure of television to the bountiful viewing which is available in the panorama of nature. I like the contest of a statement by Joseph Wood Krutch, Broadway drama critic, professor of literature, writer and philosopher. "Look Up" is the title of the philosophical statement which was supplied by a reader of this column.

"Many take it for granted that progress means the gradual elimination of everything which God and Nature put into our world and the substitution for it of the conveniences which man has made.

"I like many of them well enough myself, and I have no illusions concering the 'Noble Savage'. Civilized life is the only truly human life. I will take wild flowers and television if I can have them both. But a civilization which has no appreciation of or love for the beauties of Nature is only a new kind of barbarism.

"It is good that we have our parks, our museums, our nature-study clubs. Nevertheless, opportunities to see wild birds in flight or a wild flower blooming in lonely loveliness grow fewer because we do not value them enough.

"Of course, we need paved highways. But we need quiet wood roads, too. We need television, yet we also need the opportunity to see geese flying against the autumn sky. Unless we realize how much we need these simple pleasures, the time may come when we won't have them. 'Nature is the Art of God', and a flower is more wonderful than the most ingenious of man's machines."

To which can be added, I believe, only a fervent Amen.

It is told that an Indian chief in the Old West had a beautiful daughter who was being wooed by two equally fine young braves. The chief decreed that the two should go into the wilds and whichever returned with the most game should have the hand of the beautiful maiden. And so Sleepy River and Falling Rocks set forth into the wilderness in quest of game.

Two days later Sleepy River returned with a deer, seven rabbits and many birds. The tribe waited anxiously for the return of Falling Rocks, but many moons passed and he did not return. Finally the chief lay on his death bed, and his tribe vowed they would never give up the search for the vanished brave. To this day the search continues, for as one drives through the western mountainside, it is not unusual to see the reminder, "Look Out for Falling Rocks."

THERE MUST BE A REASON!
(and there was)

Joe Jones was a talkative worker
Whose wordage held little restraint;
It seemed that in each conversation
His words were in tones of complaint.

For 20 long years he had labored
With advancement made ever so slight.
Men with much less seniority passed him.
And he deemed that this just wasn't right.

One day a young man was promoted
And moved up the ladder a rung.
The more Joe, overlooked, sat and doted
The more this "ingratitude" stung.

He went to the big bosses office
Determined to speak out and win,
Demanded to know all the reasons
Why his ship still remained to come in.

"You may not be aware," said the big boss,
And his eye held a sly, knowing gleam,
"That in ships and in men there is progress—
You see, wind has been outdated by steam."

Senator E. McCarthy Opposes Bill to Raise 2nd Class Mail Rates

Senator Eugene J. McCarthy today announced that he will propose an amendment to the postal rate bill to prevent sharp increases in postal rates for publications using second-class mail.

His amendment will keep present second-class postal rates for publications under 50,000 circulation for mailings in contiguous counties.

Senator McCarthy said, "The postal rate bill as passed by the House of Representatives provides for a 1 cent per piece increase in postage by July 1, 1963. This would be a particular hardship on rural weekly newspapers and on small daily papers in rural areas. this would amount to a large postage increase for these small publications. If a newspaper, for example, mailed 1,000 copies, the increased postage rate would be $10 for each mailing. If the paper were mailed about 300 times each year, the increased postage would be about $3,000 for the year.

"Small daily and weekly newspapers have a relatively fixed ceiling on their circulation and their income because they can expect to secure subscribers in a relatively small area. In many cases, these papers circulate in more than one county. Therefore, the present 'free-in-county' mailing privilege is of limited value to them. My amendment would permit these publications that are located in a multi-county trade are to continue their mailings in contiguous counties at the present postage rates.

"The bill as passed by the House of Representatives works too great a hardship on small publications. It should be recalled that these publications have already had substantial postal rate increases imposed on them in three annual increases of 10 per cent. Again in 1958, there was another three-stage increase imposed on publications of 18 per cent a year for three years.

"In view of these recent increases in second-class postal rates, I belives that the present bill as passed by the House of Representatives proposes to put too great a burden on second-class publications."

Cancer Crusade in Pennington opens Wednesday

"Final victory will come from the laboratory," chairman Wendel said, "and while today we are in the midst of the most massive research attack ever launched against a disease, there is still great need for expanding the cancer research effort. The best way to observe Cancer Progress Year is to have a health checkup and to make a contribution to the American Cancer Society's April Crusade."

Land Use Change In County Listed In Prospectus

local people working together will be basic to the future of Pennington county.

List Conservation Needs

Conservation needs listed for the county on cropland include grass waterways, field shelterbelts, cover cropping, wind strip cropping, open field ditches, outlet ditches, stream channel improvement, balanced fertility program, minimum tillage, conservation crop rotations and crop residue management to add organic matter.

On grassland the conservation needs listed in the report include stock water pits, drainage, pasture seeding and fertilization, brush and weed control, rotation grazing and permanent hayland improvement. Woodland needs are protection from fire and livestock, tree planting and woodland improvement and harvesting.

Expected changes in land use within the county are also listed in the brochure, as well as the present acreage of various soil classes. The county has no Class I soil which is land which is nearly level, deep, easy to work, takes and holds water well and has few or no limitations to restrict its use.

Of the county's 383,666 acres, the following classes of soil are present in the following amounts: Class II, 174,889 acres; Class III, 116,890 acres; Class IV, 60,744 acres; Class V, 25,705 acres; Class VI, 2,853 acres; and Class VII, 2,555 acres. Classes V through VII are not considered suitable for cultivation. Further details are contained in the brochure which all interested persons are encouraged to secure at the places mentioned earlier in this article.

Storage Cavern for Gas Viewed by Area Newsmen

Construction started with the drilling of a core or test hole and then drilling of a 6-inch main hole to bedrock. A 54-inch pipe was then inserted and sealer forced between the shaft and the pipe. A 42-inch pipe was then inserted and sealed in the same fashion.

From that point a man was lowered into the shaft to drill a few holes for blasting. The broken rock was collected and hoisted up the shaft. As the cavern grew larger, equipment was lowered piece-by-piece and assembled for use. Everything used in the cavern and all broken rock taken out has traveled through the steel-cased shaft.

Fast-Moving Outfit

The hoist used employs buckets which have a capacity of one-third yard and travels at a capacity of 2,000 feet per minute. One complete cycle of raising a bucket of rock, emptying it and returning the bucket to the cavern takes 52 seconds. The buckets have made 225,000 round trips in the process.

Crews are currently working three eight-hour shifts with about 40 men employed on the project. Up to 75 men have been employed at one time, all but one of which were classified as skilled labor. When the work is completed and the cavern filled, the staff in charge will include one to three persons, depending on the season.

Circulation of air in the cavern is provided by three blowers with capacities of 3,450 cubic feet per minute and located at three vent holes throughout the cavern. Two of these holes will be used to take propane from the storage area later. The central shaft will be used for filling the chasm only, officials said. Engines used in the mine have equipment installed which prevents the escape of carbon monoxide into the mine.

All Rock Blasted

Every bit of stone which has been taken from the cavity has been blasted with the use of dynamite. Blasting is timed so that it can be done while the crew is on the surface of the ground during lunch periods. The rock in this formation is so hard that dynamite rarely creates a back-blast pocket.

Why carve a hole in rock for gas storage? Solar officials say that it is four to five times cheaper than arranging equivalent tank storage above ground. Cost of the project was not revealed. The storage area will provide a place to hold the propane which sometimes is "flared" at the oil fields because of lack of storage space. Gas will be forced into the cavern in summer and drawn out during the winter heating season.

Work of excavating the cavern, the third largest of its kind ever mined, is being done by Fenix and Seisson, Inc., Tulsa, Okla., engineers and contractors. All but three of the similar projects completed or in the process of construction were handled by the Tulsa firm.

Mining ranks second to lumbering nationally as the most hazardous occupation. Several acidents have occurred in equipment operation, one man receiving a broken neck, another an injured back and a third a broken foot. All are back on the job at the present time and the accidents were of the nature which could also have happened above ground.

Compression and pumping equipment will be installed in a ground surface building which will serve as the facility's operating center. Underground storage, with its natural refrigeration, provides for maximum safety and affords a substantial saving in storage costs. Deliveries to liquified propane supplies to the terminal and to consumer areas will be made both by rail and tank truck.

Chemists and geologists have failed to agree fully on an analysis of the rock in which the cavern was constructed, company officials said. Marble-like in appearance, the rock is of a gray color tone and is extremely hard. In the absence of agreement on its classification, it has been referred to as "Erskinite", a term borrowed from the town of Erskine located east of the storage site.

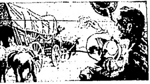
The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862—the same year that



IN MINNESOTA, on June 16, the first of the famous Fisk expeditions left St. Paul for the Montana gold diggings. But whether they found gold or just-plain-dust, Minnesota's early pioneers knew that refreshment could be found in a glass of beer.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of hospitality to any occasion. Minnesotans have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

F. F. Hospital to Note Mental Health Week

Robert F. Hoffman, hospital administrator announced today that the Fergus Falls state hospital is again making plans for Mental Health Week, April 29 through May 5th". He added, "I hope that all interested citizens in our receiving area will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit our hospital and see the facilities and programs available."

The hospital chorus will start the week off with a concert for the public on Sunday, April 29th at 7:30 p. m. On the week-long agenda are two scheduled tours through the hospital each afternoon at 1:00 and 2:00 p. m. with showing of the "New Treatment Story" in colored slides during the time coffee is served.

Group meetings planned during the week include: A joint luncheon meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary on Monday, April 30; the employees service award April 30 at 2:00 p. m. with Gov. Elmer L. Andersen, Dr. David Vail and Mrs. Miriam Karlins as guests from St. Paul; the pastoral institute centered around teen-age problems Wednesday, May 2nd, from 10:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m.; special tours for members of the Fergus Falls, Crow Wing, Beltrami and Clearwater county mental helath committees on Thursday, May 3rd at 2:00 p. m.; and the award banquet for volunteer council members and mental health committee members at 6:00 p. m. on Thursday, May 3rd.

The theme this year is "Understanding Mental Health." As Dr. Karl Menninger defines it, "Mental health is the ability to maintain an even temper, an alert intelligence, socially considered behavior and a happy disposition".

To the hospital as a whole, better mental health has been reflected this last year in many ways, such as increased number of admissions with more of them being voluntary admissions, shorter hospital stay for newly admitted patients, more patients being able to stay out with the aide of tranquilizer drugs, with the opening of the Oak Terrace Nursing Home at Glen Lake and the Ah-gwah-ching Nursing Home at Walker many geriatric patients from the hospital have been transferred to nursing homes and more open wards progressing towards the "Open Hospital" policy.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

Easter is a significant day that most of us look forward to each year. Now we look back on a nice Easter Sunday that I hope was as pleasant for you as it was for me.

At this time of year we look back on what has been a relatively severe winter and we wonder how or why we put up with it. However, in looking ahead, as each of us should do, we can see that we have several weeks of beautiful spring weather ahead of us followed by what is always a beautiful summer. It should make our life considerably brighter in every respect this 1962. There are dozens of activities that will take place this summer in which we in the community might partake and help make successful.

With the advent of spring people also find themselves in a buying mood. This is good for business and also for our good nature. There are other things that help our community, our business, and our good nature, such as new businesses and industries in Thief River Falls.

As we look over the various situations here in Thief River Falls we can see that this year there will be several business and industrial expansions and additions. These expansions and additions will take place because someone has faith in the future of Thief River Falls. If each of us maintain our faith in Thief River Falls, our state and nation, we will find ourselves in a growing and developing community for many, many years to come. This is perhaps the key to community development. As President, Joe Holter stated at the annual Chamber meeting, "Think, speak, and work well for Thief River Falls," for if you do others will do the same and when the entire community has faith in itself and in its future, it will be so motivated that it cannot help but realize a natural growth and development.

I hope that you keep these thoughts in mind as you happily Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

The Congressman also will appear as an invited guest of Minnesota Farm Bureau officials and members on Thursday, April 26th in Moorhead.

G. Forks Air Base Man Held Innocent of Arson Charge

Jury at Crookston Finds Donald Miatech Not Guilty of Setting Blaze in EGF

A District court jury in Crookston Thursday found Donald C. Miatech, 22-year-old Grand Forks airman, not guilty of second degree arson in connection with a $100,000 East Grand Forks fire March 3.

The jury, composed of seven men and five women, returned the verdict which acquitted Miatech at 9:38 p. m. after going into deliberations at 5:35 p. m.

Miatech, who had been held in Polk County jail since early March was defended by Crookston attorney John R. Kelly, who was appointed by the court.

The young Air Force man testified Thursday afternoon in court he had visited several Grand Forks bars between 7:30 and 10 p. m. March 2 and could not remember all subsequent events until he was found in the basement of the burning building early on March 3.

Miatech said details of a confession he signed two days later in Minneapolis, following lie detector tests, had been suggested in earlier questioning by William Strait, East Grand Forks police chief, and Roland Cicchi, assistant deputy Minnesota fire marshal. He said he signed the confession to bring the case to a head so he could obtain a court-appointed lawyer.

Miatech had entered a plea of not guilty to the second degree arson charge at his April 9th arraignment before Judge J. H. Sylvestre of Crookston.

Presiding at the trial was Judge James F. Murphy of Grand Rapids.

Getting Anxious

Some of the city's more enthusiastic golfers have been getting in a few practice swings at the local golf course. For a couple of days, the flooding waters of the Thief River had inundated the fairways on number three and four, but the water level has lowered considerable now.

These practice sessions, of course, are informal, and they consist mainly of iron shots on the old number one fairway on the east side of the river.

Keith Spindler, a product of the Bemidji Town and Country club, will be the local club's pro this season, and he is already working on a couple of projects.

His number one project, perhaps, is to develop Hubert Matt's golf game to the point where the portly Plummer hardware-store proprietor can out-drive Wally DuChamp and out-score Emil Larson. This is a problem that verges on the unsolvable. Hubert will readily admit to a lack of athletic co-ordination, and he tells of the occasion last season, when he, Hubert, sprained a thumb while putting on his socks! I'm wishing all success to Keith in his endeavor.

A True Story

Phil LeGault, Soo Line roundhouse foreman at Bismarck, N. Dak., spent the week-end in the city visiting friends and renewing acquaintances. Phil, it will be recalled, was player manager of the baseball Thieves in 1951, the year that the local club won the Region 2B title and participated in the state tournament, which was held in Faribault that year.

Lefty, and Phil is a southpaw all the way, was relating a story about himself that merits repeating. He is a first-rate bowler, and this past season he was a participant in the western North Dakota singles classic, reaching the finals. At the time of the tourney Phil was packing about one hundred and ninety pounds on his five-foot, two inch frame, being pretty much of a "round man".

It so happened that the championship finals were televised on one of the Bismarck stations. A close friend of Phil's, who is employed by the Soo Line, was relaxing at home at watching the TV. Then came the bowling tournament, and when the television camera was trained on Phil, well, the lefthander just about filled the screen. This fellow's wife, thinking that the set had gone out of focus, hurried over to re-tune the set, but she was stopped when her husband exclaimed: "Don't touch the set. I know that fellow real well and he looks like that!"

Getting Organized

At Thursday evening's meeting at the Eagles club, the city's senior baseball organization elected officers for the 1962 season. Myles Jackson, who played a great deal of baseball for the St. Hilaire Saints back in the 1920's, when the Saints were one of the strongest teams in northwestern Minnesota, was elected president of the organization. Larry (Buzz) Ward was named vice president; Harold Johnson was re-elected secretary-treasurer; and Wally Grovum was re-named general manager. Lowell (Mukkett) Collins was elected business and promotion manager.

The executive officers will name a board of directors, and will make the decision as to the managers of the Thieves and the Bums teams.

Crookston Man Quits Duluth Port Agency

Campbell said he sent his resignation letter to Gov. Andersen April 13, saying that he felt he had served long enough and wanted to give more time to his private business and to his family.

He was appointed in 1955 by Gov. Freeman and reappointed in 1960 with his present term still having four more years to run.

C., following his graduation from the advanced tactical fighter course at Nellis Air Force Base, Nevada.

Lieutenant Gifford flew long range bombing and navigation missions, practicing air-to-air refueling under simulated but realistic combat conditions.

Gifford, who received his B. S. degree from the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., is married to the former Sharon R. Evenstad of Thief River Falls.

Hospitality of North Extended Travelers On Alaska Adventure

CHAPTER EIGHT

March 13, 1960

When we broke camp this Sunday morning, it was a relief to have winds of not more than 20 miles per hour force to contend with. This was the first time in several days that we did not have to move against these terrific winds.

We made it through the pass today and had to negotiate several miles of glare ice and sand bars that gave us a few problems.

We covered 22 miles and arrived in Kaltag, where our machines were the center of attention for hours. Everyone in the village was there to greet us upon our arrival.

We had dinner at the school house in Kaltag as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Fossman and their two daughters. The Fossmans are teachers in the Kaltag school. Father Jules M. Convert, S. J., and two missionaries of the Arctic Mission, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Parkins also were there for supper.

We spent the night at the Fossman home, and it was a very pleasant change after four days and nights without heat or proper shelter. Our stopover here gave us a chance to wash up, thoroughly dry our clothing and repair boots, socks and other gear that needed attention.

The hospitality we have enjoyed in this north country has been wonderful.

March 14, 1960

Today we covered 40 miles in rather easy fashion and arrived at Nulato, where the Public Health Service medical clinic was turned over to us. It seemed as though the town's whole population came out to greet us and make us welcome.

We had no winds of any consequence to hinder us today and the weather was mild, with the temperature reaching 10 above. Also, we had the best snow conditions that we have had since the trip began.

I am amazed at the performance of our three Sno-Travelers. It has been far better than I had dared to hope for. We have had to travel under some terrible conditions — conditions that have proved this to be a roadless machine.

We used the first aid kit this evening for the first casualty of the trip. I used it to repair my pipe, which was broken on the trail yesterday. We have met many many fine people at every stopping point.

This evening we had dinner with Father Baud and four sisters of the mission that was established here 62 years ago.

March 15, 1960

After leaving Nulato this morning we had the best traveling conditions of the entire trip thus far. We had good snow and there were no winds, but the temperature was 15 below.

We traveled the 18 miles from Nulato to Koyukuk and kept on to Galena where we put in the afternoon after covering a total of 40 miles.

We stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hart, who are friends of the Billbergs. Hart is Federal Aeronautics Authority station manager at Galena.

Everyone in Galena is amazed at the distances we have covered on this difficult trip and they are intrigued by our machines and what they provide in transportation through this frozen country. Many Galena people have been taking pictures of the Sno-Travelers, and we have given many of them rides on the machines.

March 16, 1960

Staying over in Galena, we spent the whole day in a shop here checking all of our equipment and making some adjustments. We find the Sno-Travelers are in excellent mechanical shape in spite of what they have been through. We plan to leave for Ruby in the morning.

This evening Jack West, FAA maintenance man, came and inquired if he might ride with us as far as Ruby. We will be glad to have him accompany us. He plans to take a plane home on Friday morning. Two air force pilots spent the eevning chatting with us.

Tractor Mishaps Took 43 Lives in Minnesota in '61

'U' M. Safety Specialist Reports 2,150 Injured in Similar Accidents

Here's a thought for the next time you get in a hurry with a tractor: 43 Minnesotans lost their lives in farm tractor accidents last year.

According to Glenn Prickett, extension safety specialist at the University of Minnesota, 25 tractors tipped on their victims.

Seven persons, mostly children, were killed when tractors ran over them.

Five fell from tractors and lost their lives beneath implements.

Three were killed when tractors and other vehicles collided.

Two were crushed to death between tractors and buildings.

And one met death when a tractor seat broke, tumbling the driver beneath a drawn implement.

Prickett lists these leading causes of tractor accident fatalities:

Speed. It often causes tipping.

Extra riders. Children often fall off and are run over.

High hitching. Hitching above the drawbar often causes backward tipping.

Lighting — improper or inadequate.

Careless fueling—not shutting off the engine, or spilling fuel.

Defective equipment.

The National Safety Council estimates 50 non-fatal tractor accidents for each fatality. On that basis, Minnesota would count 2,150 injuries caused by tractor accidents last year.

Prickett says Minnesota can expect a similar number of deaths and injuries in 1962 unless farm tractor operators sharpen their skills and use greater caution.

Bemidji College Gets Science Fund

Secondary Teachers To Share in Institute

Bemidji State college will use a $17,130 grant from the National Science Foundation to offer inservice institutes in mathematics, biology and physics during 1962-63.

The mathematics and biology institutes will be for secondary school teachers and the physics program will be for junior high school teachers.

The institutes will meet each Monday night during the next college year and will be open to not more than 60 teachers of the area. Tuition costs will be paid by the foundation and students will be given a travel and book allowance. Students may earn up to nine quarter hours of undergraduate credit under the program.

In announcing the grant, Dr. C. R. Sattgast, BSC president, said it is the third and largest National Science Foundation grant given to the college and he welcomed the opportunity to work through the foundation to aid the education programs of public schools of this section of Minnesota.

Teachers interested in participating should direct their inquiries to Richard Slinkman at BSC.

"If appeasing our enemies is not the answer, neither is hating them. Somewhere between the extremes of appeasement and hate there is a place for courage and strength to express themselves in magnanimity and charity, and this is the place we must find."
A. Whitney Griswold

To Resume Testing

It seems unlikely that Khruschev will yield on the question of inspection being incorporated in a test-ban agreement and our country probably will resume nuclear testing in spite of much opposition thruout the world. There seems to be no alternative unless we are willing to accept a Khrushchev promise that he will not break the rules. But we know from past performance that his word is not good and his promise would be meaningless.

Knowing that the Russians will resume testing whenever it serves their own interests, we cannot afford to discontinue our experiments in this field, and explosions in the atmosphere seem to be essential to nuclear experimentation. Fortunately we have the support of the British government and its permission to use a British island in the Pacific as a base for the operations.

Our government has made it clear that it will enter into an agreement to end all testing providing that there be adequate inspection to detect possible violations. That certainly is a reasonable qualification and should shift the responsibility for a failure to stop testing to Russia as long as its government maintains its present position.

Britain Bounces Back

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd announced last July that the government had determined to clamp a brake on the pleasant but potentially dangerous boom his country was then enjoying. Rapid wage increases were threatening to price out of world markets the exports that are so essential to the British economy. Imports were running far ahead of exports, cutting seriously into the nation's gold and currency reserves. Inflationary pressures were cheapening the value of the pound in international markets, and raising the threat of devaluation.

Mr. Lloyd is now able to tell Commons the situation is much better — as a direct result of high interest rates, a severe consumer credit squeeze and vigorous action against wage increases decreed by the government last summer. So reports Frank K. Linge in the Wall Street Journal. He states:

> "Lower imports, higher exports and a flow of foreign investment money into Britain to take advantage of high interest rates have greatly reduced the nation's balance-of-payments deficit. In 1960 Britains lent, spent and invested in foreign lands almost $1.4 billion more than foreigners lent, spent and invested in Britain. In the first half of 1961 the deficit was $215 million. But in the second half of last year, when the austerity measures took hold, the balance of payments swung to a surplus of $42 million, cutting he deficit for the full year to $173 million.
> "Britain's gold and currency reserves, which had dropped to a 3½ year low of $2.4 billion last July, have climbed back to $3.4 billion.
> "Wages hav ebeen held in line—and without the rash of strikes labor leaders had been predicting."

The program was not popular and has cost the conservative majority a few seats in Commons but the worst apparently is over. The crisis has passed and the economy is regaining its health.

Other countries of Europe that now are prosperous had to resort to similar drastic action as a means of curbing inflation and stabilizing their currencies. Here in our country we will have to adopt such an austerity program sooner or later, and the sooner we do it the less painful it will be.

German Austerity

Economic Minister Erhard told West German industrialists and trade unions last week that greed will kill recovery. He cautioned them about unjustifiable wage increases and exorbitant profits as damaging to Germany's competitive position and will lead to a grave economic crisis unless the trend can be reversed in time.

That's the kind of talk we need a lot more of here in our country. And it would be especially helpful if along with more of that kind of talk, our leaders in Washington would also show more concern about the contribution the government is making toward a weakening of our economy. It was government spending of printing press dollars that brought on the German inflation following World War I, and that led to a bankrupt nation and a Hitler.

The German people learned the hard way how to manage their affairs. It would be much less painful for us if we could learn by the mistakes of others.

Dictionary Hassle

(Turlock (Calif.) Daily Journal)

Ever since its publication, Webster's Third International dictionary has been dodging brickbats. It is accused of accepting words and usages that many scholars regard as sub-standard.

Dr. Philip B. Grove, editor-in-chief of the controversial dictionary, asserts that most of the criticism comes from people "who have not sufficiently studied it." He says that the protests involve less than one per cent of the words defined.

The dispute centers about the precepts followed by Dr. Grove and his staff—that "spoken language is the language", and that "correctness rests upon usage." Opponents of this theory term that a compromise with mediocrity and declare that if usage is the gauge this can only serve to hasten the language's deterioration.

The usage argument strikes us as too easy a rationalization. While language cannot remain static, standards should be preserved. Educators and linguists should fight constantly against the drift toward slovenly usage, refusing to give the nod to such monstrosities as "irregardless" and "finalize" merely because some celebrity, humorously or through ignorance, has cast them into the communications stream.

Getting Into College

(Wall Street Journal)

There's a long-playing record for just about every sort of listener. There's one, for instance, containing string quartet music minus a violin part for anyone who wants to fiddle along with a group of professionals.

So we suppose it's not surprising that a long-playing disc is now available for youngsters who are in a tizzy about gaining admission to college. It is appropriately labeled "Getting Into College Today," runs for 50 minutes and is filled with all sorts of practical advice, such as how to make a good impression on a college's admissions director.

Now this sort of thing maye be all very well, but we feel about it pretty much as we do about most how-to-make-yourself-irresitable books—that it's all too late. The best advice on getting into college ought to be given a child long, long before he enters high school. And it can be condensed into one little five-letter word: Study.

"A Game Fish Swims Upstream"

(Art Suel in New Prague Times)

After more than 20 years of a seller's market in all lines of merchandising and service, indications are that the economy has reverted to normal in a buyer's market where sales and service must be accentuated to meet increased competition for consumer patronage.

To a new generation who did not experience the vicissitudes of the great depression of the early 1930s, the transition may be a bit rigorous and discouraging. During these trying days of the depression, the competition for jobs, merchandise and service was intense and all too frequently disastrous.

There is an old adage to the effect that "a game fish swims upstream", and it has pertinent application to the present apparent return to normalcy.

Increased effort toward sales and service is the cue for continued commercial progress.

Violence on TV

(Manchester, England, Guardian)

"There is too much violence on television, but the worst influence is that of the American crime and thriller serials, with their cheapening of life and degrading of values. An isolated murder which strikes the viewer with horror is less corrupting than the incessant suggestion that murder is a bagatelle. Much lip service has been paid to the benefits of the competition which started with commercial television in 1955. There is, however, no doubt that in the multiplication of cheap films of crime and violence this competition has brought nothing but ill. It is into this aspect of television that the new inquiry should look most carefully, and it should not be deflected by the specious argument that violence on the screen is not harmful so long as the good man wins."

Interesting Opinions

"Rail enthusiasts feel we will see a return to high speed, high volume inter urban rail lines. What is envisaged is a line on which trains would cruise at 200 mph with stops every 25 or 50 miles."

"We may live to see once more confirmed a great truth of human history: That suicide, not murder, is the normal form of death of a cultural system.

"It is not the strength of the barbarians but the moral and intellectual weakness of the civilized that is usually their undoing."

Annandale Honor Student Banquet

Last week my wife, Eleanor, and I went out to Annandale to attend and participate in the first annual Annandale Honor Student Banquet. The top ten students in each of the four high school grades were in attendance, with their parents, members of the Student Council, and the Honor Society in what was a splendid evening.

There has been so much emphasis on juvenile delinquency that I believe we should turn equal attention to emphasizing the very outstanding records that our young people make, the fine progress in music, athletics, scholarsip, and through such organizations as 4-H, FFA, FHA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and many others.

Nothing is more thrilling than to see the skill, the poise, the maturity, the good judgment that most of our young people display in all of their activities. My hope is that every school district will plan honor student banquets and more special occasions to recognize outstanding accomplishment of our young people. I believe that we can do as much by good example as we can by enforcement against violation.

Wetlands Program Approved.

There has been a great deal of interest and some concern in reference to the proposed national program of wetland acquisition in Minnesota. When the Land Commission, consisting of Auditor Stafford King, Attorney General Walter F. Mondale, and I did not immediately approve the program there was some feeling that it was being opposed. At no time was this the case. There was a feeling on the part of the Conservation Department and the Land Exchange Commission that we should have an understanding as to what the policy of the Federal government would be in reference to hunting. The Federal position on refuges has been such that no hunting has been permitted even though under the law some hunting may be.

Last week Mr. R. W. Burwell, the regional director of the Federal Fish and Wildlife Bureau, wrote a detailed statement to the Department of Conservation giving assurances that the intention will be to keep these wetlands open to hunting and setting up the mechanics of hearings if there is any intention to close them to hunting. On this basis there was unanimous approval by the Land Exchange Commission that the Federal Wetlands Program proceed and cordial expressions on the part of Mr. Burwell, Mr. Kimball, director of the division of game and fish, and everyone at the meeting. There were compliments all around that this had been a splended resolution of what was becoming a difficult matter.

Long Range Land Exchange

At the same Land Exchange Commission meeting last week a most significant long-range policy was established when the Commission agreed to a Land Exchange program between the state and Federal government relating to the Chippewa National Forest. The whole idea is to consolidate state ownership and Federal ownership so that each can do a better job of forestry management. I am surpised, really, that this was not accomplished many years ago; but, at long last, it is now accomplished and the program can go forward.

A similar proposal has been worked out between our State Department of Conservation and the Federal forestry people relative to Superior National Forest. There are still some objections to portions of the proposal and so the Land Exchange Commission laid over final action on this matter to the next meeting.

Finally getting general agreement on these proposals is of the greatest significance. W can now look forward to a period of the best management of our forestry lands in the history of our state.

Honesty pays, but it doesn't seem to pay enough to suit a lot of people.

Gas Storage Cavern Visited by Newsmen

FILLING one-third yard buckets with broken rock in preparation for hoisting it to the surface of the ground was one operation viewed in the foreground storage cavern of Solar Gas company near Mentor Thursday. Three of these air-loaders, pneumatically operated on short sections of track, scoop the broken rock into the buckets after it is brought to the shaft area by front-end tractor loaders. Approximately 170,000 tons of rock have been taken from the cavern, all hoisted out through a 42-inch shaft drilled into the storage area located 533 feet below ground. Read the account of a personal visit to the cavern elsewhere in today's Times.

HART HATS coverall and rubber boots were the uniform of the day when newsmen from throughout the area visited the underground storage facilities of Solar Gas company Thursday near Erskine. W. E. Dahlquist, editor of the Times (left), and Fred Scharf, project superintendent, are shown by one of the two rubber-tired front-end loaders which are used in the cavern. All equipment was lowered piece-by-piece into the excavated area through a shaft 42 inches in diameter. Tires for this machine were banded into an oblong shape to permit them to be taken down the shaft. Other machinery used includes two crawler tractors, two drilling machines and three loading machines.

DIAGRAM of the underground network of tunnels which will be used for storage of liquified propane gas is shown in the above photo by R. E. Flohr, Bemidji, manager of Solar Gas company in Minnesota. The shaded areas show the tunnels and white areas indicate natural rock pillars left for ceiling support. In the background is part of the pile of about 170,000 tons of rock which has been blasted at the underground cavern and hauled to the surface in buckets. Completion of the project, which started in March of last year, is scheduled for June 1. The storage area will be about 400 feet long and 300 feet wide and is located 533 feet below the surface of the ground.

DRILLING operations for blasting rock far below the surface of the ground near Mentor were shown to newsmen allowed to visit the cavern Thursday afternoon. The hydraulic "drill jumbos" each contain two drilling units and water is forced through the hollow cores of the drills from a well located above ground. Two of these rigs are located in the cavity. Carbon-tipped bits, two inches in diameter, will last for the drilling of about six holes in the extremely hard rock.

naturally curious public. This is not an easy task.

On the surface alone the project is one which could cause a great deal of comment. A huge pile of gray-white rock looms against the sky-line, dwarfing several trees which are partially covered by it. A large metal-covered tower rises above the shaft which reaches down into the cavern. A metal building for office quarters and supply storage as well as maintenance shop is adjacent to the tower.

But it is not until a person is lowered into the man-made cavity that he comes to realize the scope of the project. And it is not until he is hoisted to the surface of the ground again that he really appreciates sunlight.

Journey Down the Shaft

Following a briefing session by R. E. Flohr, representative of Solar Gas company, and Fred Scharf, project superintendent, our group of about a dozen newsmen made the descent into the cavern itself. Through the use of a hoist and "safety barrel", a perforated metal cylinder 42 inches in diameter, four men at a time were lowered into the shaft.

Electric lights in the cavern cast wierd shadows on the rough granite walls and the temperature was about 55 degrees. The uneven floor of the cavern was quite wet with puddles of gray water in low spots. Water came from a combination of some seepage and water needed to operate the drills used to punch holes for blasting. Rubber boots and "hard hats" or helmets were provided by the company for use by the visitors.

The appearance of a large, rubber-tired, front-end loader and a crawler-type "drill jumbo" used for drilling were the first two piece- equipment noted. This did not appear strange until a person paused to reflect that the only entrance to the cave was the 42-inch shaft through which we had just made our entry. All machinery used in the operation had to be disassembled above ground, lowered through the narrow shaft, and reassembled in the cavern. It will all come out in reverse fashion.

June 1st Completion

Completion of the project is scheduled for June 1 and company officials say that the date will be met. Propane gas from the North Dakota oil fields at Tioga will be stored in the cavern under pressure of 100 pounds per square inch. It will be taken from the cavern and sold both retail and wholesale throughout the trade area which reaches north to the Canadian border, west to Minot, N. D., south to Milnor and Lisbon, N. D., and east to Pine River and Grand Rapids.

Figures quoted in connection with the project are astronomical. Overall dimensions of the underground storage terminal will be about 400 feet long and 300 feet wide. It is comprised of a 2,100-foot system of tunnels 25 feet wide and 25 to 35 feet high rather than one large, open area. Natural rock pillars, roughly 40 feet square, have been left for ceiling support.

Gives Natural Storage

There will be no tanks located in the cavern and no special sealer applied to the walls, floor or ceiling. Propane gas will be forced into the hole under pressure and taken out under pressure for resale. Excavation of 170,000 tons of rock gives the storage facility a capacity of about 338,000 barrels of propane—equal to approximately 13 million gallons. It is estimated that five to six months will be required to fill it from tank cars used to bring the gas from Tioga.

Selection of the site was due to the type of rock formation located by geologists, good drainage at the site, access to railroad and highway facilities and central location in the Solar trade territory. The top of the granite formation is 460 feet below the surface of the ground.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

PREPARING for the open house to be held by the Pennington County Historical Society Sunday at the museum in the basement of the county courthouse in Thief River Falls are Millard Nelson (left), secretary, and Joe Rosengren, president of the organization. They are inspecting an automobile headlight of pre-electric vintage. The painting in the background is the work of Anton Hall of this city and depicts the largest load of logs ever hauled here. Rosengren is wearing Indian ceremonial attire while seated in an old doctor's chair. Nelson is astride a harness-makers stitching bench. The public is invited to attend the open house from 2 to 6 p.m. Coffee and doughnuts will be served by the Friends of the Library.

Museum Open House Set by County Historical Society

To acquaint Pennington county residents with the museum located in the basement of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls, an open house will be held by the Pennington County Historical Society Sunday from 2 to 6 p. m. at the museum. There will be no admission charge and the public is encouraged to attend.

Included in the historical museum are a number of items from the illustrious past of Pennington county and contributed by a number of the pioneer families who built this area. Members of the society will be on hand to explain many of the items on display and their origin.

A new double display case is in the process of construction and at least part of it is expected to be in use at the open house, according to Millard Nelson, secretary of the organization. When completed the case will be lighted and provide valuable display area for the varied items which have been contributed to the society.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served throughout the afternoon by members of the Friends of the Library who have consented to assist the historical group during the day. Slides of museum displays in other communities, furnished by the Minnesota Historical Society, will also be shown during the afternoon.

Hope to Gain Interest

"We in the Pennington County Historical Society have reached a crossroad in progress," stated Joe Rosengren, society president. "We must reactivate our chapter and continue to press for a more thorough understanding of our heritage or dissolve for lack of interest. It is the hope of members of the society that this open house will create a revival of interest in our history and arouse enthusiasm to permit preservation of it."

Membership in the county society will be on sale during the afternoon with Paul Roy, society treasurer, in charge of the membership sale. It is likely that a reorganizational meeting of the society will be held in the near future at which further plans for the organization will be made.

Soo Line Depot at Rosewood Razed by Fire Last Week

The Soo Line depot at Rosewood was destroyed last week by a fire that apparently had originated from a blaze started by section men who were burning grass along the right-of-way, and the flames had been revived by a stiff wind. The Newfolden Fire department was called to the scene, but the fire had made too much headway to be quenched. The fire was helped along by coal and oil inside the depot.

Area Conference of Assns. for Retarded Set in TRF Saturday

The fifth of seven regional meetings which are being held throughout the state this spring by the Minnesota Association for Retarded Children will be held Saturday, April 28, in Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls, John L. Holahan, Minneapolis, president of the state association, said today.

Approximately 40 officers and leaders are expected to attend, representing seven associations which serve 13 counties in that region. The associations include Becker County ARC; Clay County ARC; Kittson-Marshall ARC; Mississippi Headwaters ARC (serving Hubbard, Clearwater and Beltrami Counties); Norman-Polk ARC; Pennington-Red Lake ARC, and Roseau-Lake of the Woods ARC.

Mrs. Richard Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, president of the Pennington-Red Lake ARC which will be host to the meeting, will preside. Sessions will be held at Zion church from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Also scheduled to take part in the meeting is Dr. T. C. Moos, Moorhead, who will describe special dental care facilities for the retarded.

The program in general will deal with the broad aims of the associations whose membership is drawn from parents and friends of mentally retarded children and adults, as well as professional workers in the field, Mrs. Mosbeck said.

Conference leaders will be two members of the state association staff: John Bertrand, Duluth, field representative for northern Minnesota, and Virginia Brainard Kunz, Minneapolis, public information director.

There will be discussion on leadership, publicity and public education, budgeting and finance, the planning of interesting and effective programs, and the planning and carrying out of a wide variety of special projects.

Committee Seeks Area Designation for Development

A committee of Jobs Incorporated met with county agent Paul Stelmaschuk and Cy Carpenter to discuss the questions involved in having the community declared eligible for area development assistance. Following the discussion the committee, consisting of William LaFave, James Winjum and W. E. Dahlquist, decided to request the county board to make application to the Department of Commerce for such designation.

Harry Oen Again Named Officer of Beet Association

Harry Oen of rural Thief River Falls, past president of the Tri-County Sugar Beet Development association, was reelected vice president of the Minnesota-Dakota Sugar Beet Development association at the annual meeting held last Tuesday at the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston. Representing the Tri-County group at the meeting were Oen, Melvin Torgerson and Leonard Furuseth, all of Thief River Falls.

Fifty-five representatives of area associations attended the meeting of the parent organization. Only one resolution came out of committee at the meeting, that being to compliment the Western Sugar Beet Growers association for its work toward securing a favorable new Sugar Act, now before Congress.

Other officers elected at the meeting in addition to Oen were Arnet Weinlaeder, Drayton, N. D., president; and C. J. Campbell, Hallock, secretary treasurer. Oen was also elected with Robert Waite, Breckenridge, and Harley Younggren, Northcote, to serve on the board of directors of the Western Beet Growers' association.

Growers at the meeting expressed their desire to secure for domesite producers a larger share of the sugar consumed in the United States and a larger share of the consumption increase each year. They also supported the proposal to this effect which has the backing of the Western organization.

Dr. W. W. Frey, Drayton, reported on the progress of the Red River Valley Sugar company which was sponsored by the Drayton Development association and organized to build a sugar plant at or near Drayton. He said the Drayton group is waiting for a favorable Sugar Act based on expansion before actual construction on the plant would be started.

Hugh Trowbridge, Comstock, spoke on recent happenings in Washington concerning the Sugar Act and noted it is possible that it may be passed by Congress before the present law expires on June 30.

John Junker of the Lincoln high school faculty is serving as general chairman of the observance.

Arch Grahn Is Rotary Club Speaker Mon.

Historical Society Field Director Tells Need for Societies

"People interested in history today are not looking back but looking forward," stated Arch Grahn, field director of the Minnesota Historical Society, in speaking to the noon meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club on Monday.

"History is simply the story of how come we got this way," Grahn told the group. "It is impossible to determine where we're going unless we can look back to check and see if we are on the right course. People are wrong when they say they are looking only to the future and forgetting the past."

The filed director also noted that the strongest historical societies in the United States are located in the Midwest. He ranked Wisconsin in first place among state societies and listed Minnesota, Kansas, Ohio and Montana among the other top states.

Every one of Minnesota's 87 counties has a historical society on the county level at least on paper, Grahn told the group. A recent study shows that there are 172 museums in the state, many of which are not planned or equipped for proper display of historical items, records and documents. Much attention is paid at the present time to color scheme, lighting and captioning of museum exhibits.

Compliments were paid by the field director to the Polk county historical group and Donald Myrold, president, for progress made in the past two years. Grahn termed the work of that society the best job done of any society of which he had ever heard.

In listing the value of a good museum as a tourist attraction, Grahn quoted federal government estimates which indicate an attraction which causes two dozen people a day to stop in the com-

Farmers Sign for Sunflower & Millet May 1

To Sign Contracts with N.Y. Firm in Auditorium Tuesday

Contracts with farmers in Pennington county for production of sunflowers, red millet and white millet will be signed Tuesday, May 1, at 2 p. m. when a representative of the contracting firm will arrive in this city from New York for that purpose. The meeting will be in the basement of the city Auditorium. It is expected that contracts will be signed for 500 acres each of red and white millet and up to 1,000 acres of sunflowers. At a meeting held last Wednesday, approximately 150 farmers gathered to hear details of the proposal and a large number indicated a desire to raise one or another of the contract crops. The seed produced would be processed locally for sale as birdseed thruout the nation.

Jobs, Inc., the Chamber of Commerce division working on the processing plant angle of the projected operation, as well as assisting in organizing the group of growers, has spent considerable time in making arrangements for the proposed industry. Some of these will be announced at the meeting.

Seed for the contract will be furnished by the company in the spring at an established price and paid for in the fall by deduction from the crop sold at an established price. All farmers interested in growing sunflowers, red millet or white millet or who have questions about the contract, methods of payment or other phases of the contract operation are encouraged to attend the session.

LaFave Elected Jobs, Inc. Head

William LaFave was reelected president of Jobs, Inc., at the election meeting held Tuesday evening at the LaFave home. A number of community projects which the group has under study were discussed at the meeting.

Other officers reelected at the well-attended session were J. J. Womack, vice president; Donald M. Olson, secretary; and Carl Lee, treasurer.

Voters Reject Issue of $1,595,000 Bonds

Record Turnout of 3,104 Ballots Cast in School Election Mon.

Turning out in record numbers on a bright Spring day, voters of School District 564 rejected a bond issue of $1,595,000 for construction of new school facilities and improvement of sites by a margin of 396 votes. The record number of 3,104 ballots cast included 1,750 against the proposal and 1,354 in favor of the bond issue in the Monday balloting.

Care was exercised in the balloting as evidenced by the fact that no ballots were spoiled in the voting. Harold Rasmussen, Wilbert G. Maves and C. W. Rodekuhr were election judges appointed for the election with Mrs. Richard Mabey also sworn in as a judge due to the large turnout which flocked to the polls from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Balloting Monday was on the proposal presented by the board of education to construct a junior high school and elementary high school on a district-owned site in the east portion of the city. Plans called for the two buildings to share a common entrance, cafeteria, library, gymnasium and heating plant but have separate playground area on opposite ends of the combination of buildings.

1955 Turnout Doubled

Monday's turnout far surpassed the 1,293 who turned out in near-blizzard conditions on Nov. 28, 1955 to approve a bond issue of $1,190,000 for construction of an addition to Lincoln high school and building of Washington elementary school and the area vocational school. The Times report of that election noted that the majority of the votes were cast by city residents with 140 rural votes included. The bond issue in 1955 carried 1,080 to 213.

A separate ballot was included in that election for purchase of a site on the east side of the city for future elementary school construction. That proposal, involving an expenditure of $10,000, carried 850 to 409.

The $1,190,000 issue approved in 1955 included $450,000 for industrial arts shops, lunch room facilities and other items for Lincoln high school; $200,000 for construction of the area vocational-technical school facilities; and $550,000 for purchase of site and construction of Washington elementary school. Bond retirement was expected to be financed by a tax increase of 11 mills or seven per cent of the 153-mill levy.

713 Vote in 1938

On Sept. 28, 1938, district voters approved a bond issue of $185,000 for construction of Lincoln high school by a vote of 674 to 39. Construction was estimated to cost $340,000 with $153,818 to be received in Public Works Administration (PWA) funds.

Other bond issue elections have been held in relatively recent years but none has drawn the number of voters who flocked to the polls

Girl Scout Poll Returns Asked

Girl Scout leaders and parents in the Thief River Falls Girl Scout Association were reminded today by Mrs. R. J. Dryden, chairman, that ballot forms distributed earlier this month are due by May 1. The ballots should be sent to Mrs. Henry Bothman, association secretary.

Ballots were sent April 16, together with a letter prepared by association officers, to all leaders and parents of Girl Scouts in the community. Recipients of the letters were asked to indicate if they "wish to merge and retain scouting", "do not wish to merge—so drop scouting" or are "not interested".

The letter states that "The National Girl Scout organization has set down the terms under which Girl Scouting will be provided in communities in the future, which would force us to be included in a large territory comprised of some 32 counties. This plan includes the hiring of four professional workers, with the office to be maintained in Grand Forks, N. D. There would be a central accounting office which would handle all funds. A good number of our present scout adults object to this proposed merger. . ."

Five reasons for opposition to the merger of councils were set forth in the letter. Among them were the belief that "we are getting no benefits now from the money we are contributing, and therefore cannot assent to a plan which would entail a larger expenditure" and that "this has developed into a big business and is so highly organized that we cannot keep up with the program demands for the volunteer workers."

Reflect Officer Opinion

"The foregoing reasons reflect the viewpoint of the present officers and many leaders," the letter continues, "and we have determined that under present conditions we will not remain in the Scout program. However, in fairness to those who wish to continue, we decided to poll the parents and leaders of our Scouts."

Another page of the letter contains the following statement with blanks for indicating intentions of the recipients: "I wish to retain scouting and am willing to do the following checked: Help reorganize Girl Scouting, serve on the nominating committee, be an officer, be a leader, be a troop con-

Cancer Fund Nets $331 Wednesday

Ken Wendel, chairman of the Pennington county Cancer Fund appeal, which got under way Wednesday, reported that the first day's collections amounted to the substantial sum of $331 against a goal of $1,930.50. Wendel stated that a complete canvass of the county is planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gorder and Alice and Sandra Gunderson of Gary spent Monday at the Helmer Halland home of this city.

Valley Home Society Bids Below Estimate

Contracts totaling $78,038 less than the engineer's estimates were let by the Valley Home Society for construction of a new home for the aged in Thief River Falls following opening of bids Tuesday. Contracts awarded totaled $331,962 with the engineer's estimate having been set at $410,000.

Nasvik Construction company of Bemidji was awarded the general contract for a bid of $198,447, a total of $42,553 below the estimate of $241,000. Asleson's Inc., was awarded the kitchen equipment contract for $5,939; Naylor Electric of Bemidji was given the electrical contract for $28,800; and Lee Plumbing and Heating, Thief River Falls, was awarded the contract for plumbing, heating and ventilation at a bid of $98,776.

All bids accepted were considerably below the estimate. High bids received as compared with the estimates include the following: General construction, 12 bidders, $235,965 high bid and $241,000 estimate; kitchen equipment, five bidders, $7,130 high bid and $7,000 estimate; and electrical, eight bidders, $34,786 high bid and $35,000 estimated. Five bids were received for plumbing and heating and three for ventilation with a combined bid being accepted by the board.

Meeting with the Valley Home Society directors at the bid opening were the architect and a fieldman representing the Federal Housing and Home Finance committee in Washington, D. C. Bids must be submitted to Washington for approval with that decision expected in 15 to 30 days.

Plan 67-Bed Home

Waldie Christensen, president of the society, stated that construction work on the 67-bed home for the aged will start as soon as approval is received from the federal agency with a completion date scheduled for one year later. A $360,000 federal loan had been approved for the society by the federal agency and the low bids will mean that the society will be able to construct the new facility with about $78,000 less in borrowed funds than anticipated.

Locally the society must furnish $59,100 which inludes $29,100 for construction; $15,000 for furnishings; and $15,000 for operation. About two thirds of this quota has now been met in cash, notes and pledges with part of the total already invested by the society in site acquisition and advancements in architect and attorney fees. The remaining third must be raised before the loan will be granted, Christensen said.

The 67-bed capacity face brick building will be constructed on a site near the athletic field on the south edge of the city. It will replace the frame structure currently located at the corner of Fourth street and Horace av. N. which now has about 35 residents. Upon completion of the new building the old property will be offered for sale.

Margery Sollom is Wed to Lawrence Bjorsness

Easter lilies, ferns and white roses graced the altar of the Evangelical Free church of Newfolden Tuesday, April 17, when Margery Christensen Sollom became the bride of Lawrence E. Bjorsness. Rev. Merle Christensen, brother of the bride, who is pastor of the Brooklyn Center Free church, officiated at the 3 p. m. double ring ceremony. Pastor Cliff Anderson of the Newfolden church read scripture and gave a greeting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldie Christensen of Thief River Falls and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bjorsness of Newfolden.

Sheri Christensen, of Brainerd, niece of the bride, was at the organ playing the traditional music and accompanied Frank Conklin, cousin of the groom, as he sang "Together" and the "Wedding Prayer" and Joydell and Michael Sollom as they sang "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Them" while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a street length dress of peach rayon brocade with a hat band of peach colored flowers. She wore crystal and white jewelry, a gift of the groom; and carried a shower style bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Wallace Reierson, sister of the bride, of Thief River Falls, was matron of honor and wore a street length dress and hat of mint green rayon brocade. She carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations and stephanotis.

Attending the groom as best man was Donn Hjelle of Moorhead. The gentlemen of the wedding party wore dark suits with carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Christensen chose a green dress for her daughter's wedding while Mrs. Bjorsness wore a navy blue dress. They were given matching corsages of pink roses and white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception given by the bride's parents was held in the church parlors for about seventy guests. A three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink roses centered the serving table. Miss Ruth Shelveland, aunt of the bride, was hostess and Mrs. Andrew Watt, aunt of the groom, cut the cake. Mrs. Emily Sollbakke, aunt of the groom, poured and Miss Lillian Bjorsness, also an aunt of the groom, served ice cream rolls.

For their wedding trip to the Twin Cities the bride chose a mint green dress with black accessories. Mrs. Bjorsness is a graduate of Moorhead State college and is presently teaching at Newfolden. The groom is a graduate of the School of Agriculture at the University of Minnesota and is engaged in farming near Newfolden.

Out of town guests were from Brainerd, Moorhead, Minneapolis, Duluth, Warren, Kandiyohi, Minn. Leonard, Ayr, Casselton, and Fargo, N. D. and Denver, Colorado.

The finished cake, baked in rings, ranges from a dinner plate size at the bottom to a teacup size at the top.

Members are urged to organize their own card tables, and guests are welcome.

At lunch time everyone will have the chance to taste desserts made by the community's outstanding cooks. If one strikes your fancy, the recipe will be for sale.

Lions Club Hears Talk by Nursing Home Supt. Roche

Nominations for Club Officers Headed by Dr. G. Martin for President

J. M. Roche, superintendent of Oakland Park nursing home, was the guest speaker at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday in the Elks club rooms. He discussed details of the operation of the institution, which is caring for a total of 69 patients.

Operations in 1961, said Roche, resulted in a modest surplus after meeting expenses, due largely to an increase in rates which was put into effect during the year. The institution, he stated, had a payroll of $87,000 last year.

Mr. Roche reported that Red Lake and Roseau counties have asked to be released from their obligations as co-sponsors of the home here, due to the recent establishment of similar institutions in their home counties. He closed his talk by urging local citizens to visit friends in the Oakland Park home as often as possible.

In the club's business session, Clarence Mattson, chairman of the nominating committee, submitted a slate of candidates for club offices to be elected May 9. Heading the slate is Dr. George Martin, nominee for president. Retiring president Gordon Reierson stated that additional nominations may be made from the floor at next Wednesday's meeting.

Consumers Told to Learn Availability of Market Turkeys

'U' M. Survey Reveals Public Not Informed on Year-round Availability

Consumers are not well enough acquainted with the year-round availability of turkey of different sizes and of turkey products.

That is one of the findings in a survey made by University of Minnesota researchers in cooperation with the National Turkey Federation and the Minnesota Turkey Growers' Association. About 200 families were surveyed in the Twin Cities area. The typical family in the sample included the husband, wife and two children, aged 6 and 10.

Less than half of the homemakers in the study had heard of turkey fryer-roasters, and less than a fourth of these had bought a turkey fryer-roaster. Many of the women who know about fryer-roasters had not bought them because they thought they were not available.

Those who had bought fryer-roasters like the ease of preparation, the small size and the fact that there were no leftovers. However, users of large turkeys mentioned the opportunity for leftovers as one of the advantages. Purchasers of fryer-roasters considered the small birds inferior to the large turkey in flavor, juiciness and tenderness.

As to other turkey products, turkey pies were popular with half of the families in the survey. But only 10 per cent purchased stuffed turkey and less than 5 per cent used specialty turkey meats, probably because they didn't know they were available.

Elaine's CHATTER

(This part is by me . . . Mrs. M.)

Do you suppose, even by stretching your imagination to the furthermost point, that men think women like to clean house? From some of the articles, written mostly by men, you would think that come Spring, we simply look forward to carrying out the mattresses, steaming paper off the walls, rolling up the rugs . . . overhauling the place in general. And furthermore, they claim we find some special kind of enjoyment in moving THEIR personal belongings around until THEY can't find anything!

Gentlemen, it is a mistake. If a survey were taken, we'll bet you would find more women would just as soon play golf, go fishing or talk to the neighbors over the back fence . . . but . . . what would people think? (I've said my little piece, now you take it from here DAD)

Well, I guess we are all in favor of house-cleaning once in a while, especially the clothes closets. One look at last summer's dresses and you will find they have changed during the winter. They just aren't exactly as you remembered them when you put them away . . . it is high time to take a look at some new ones. (Not you Mrs. M.)

We at ELAINE'S have quite a few one and two piece dresses now on SALE. Many colors to pick from and you can wear them now and right into summer. The Easter Bunny has taken off to the woods and left us with a few Spring Coats, these too are all reduced in price, have a look.

There is much in a name and what that name stands for. For instance, a woman does not mind being called a Kitten . . . but not a Cat. A Chicken is one thing and a Hen is quite another. A Deer sounds romantic but who wants to be called an Antelope? A little Cub is all right . . . but an old Bear? . . . Never!

Brand merchandise fits in the same category. The Manufacturers are proud of the name and so are we at ELAINE'S. Be sure to get your MUNSINGWEAR Nylon Hose that are on SALE now.

CRITICS of modern art say that art is going to the dogs. But apparently dogs have a certain appreciation for art themselves, judging from the attentive study shown above. For Hazel, the household pet of the Neal Fox family, the Zehlian art display at the Fox Studio this week holds a great deal of interest. The colors are bright, the subjects are varied and the local workmanship is amazing. Approximately 50 paintings will be on display until Saturday at the studio with the public invited to view the exhibit. Hazel doesn't mind moving when surrounded by a crowd of art-lovers. Actually, she would just as soon sleep in the back room.

State Mental Health Group Head Answers Charges of Opponent

A 53-page booklet of accusations against the Minnesota Association for Mental Health, released to the press of the state last week by an individual, is a maze of falsehoods, distortions, innuendoes and a completely irresponsible document, said York Langton, president of the association, whose statement follows:

"Release of the document is the latest move in a seven months campaign of harassment and vilification of the association, its officers, board of directors, and staff by four individuals, of whom Leo Bernat, St. Paul, seems to be the chief spokesman. He issued the statement under his name as chairman of a so-called "Minnesota Committee for Responsible Charities." We cannot find any responsible official who knows of any such committee. We understand he told the press the membership of this so-called committee must remain "anonymous".

"There is nothing anonymous about the Minnesota Association for Mental Health. It is a well-known organization of citizens, with a state board of directors of 57 officers and an executive committee of 12, as well as boards of directors and officers in some 30 counties - all of wrom are solid, substantial citizens, well-known in their communities, standing back of the volunteer work they do for this Association.

"We believe that citizens and the press should insist that Mr. Bernat disclose the names of this committee he says he heads. Anonymous attacks upon responsible individuals should not be given wide circulation and credence. We believe that citizens further should ask who paid for the printing of this document and its circulation.

"Citizens should know that these individuals took these same charges some eight months ago to the attorney general and to other responsible bodies. We offered the attorney general the fullest cooperation if he felt there was anything to investigate. Yet no official, no investigative body, no responsible organization of any kind has ever substantiated, in all this time, a single charge made by Mr. Bernat.

"Mr. Bernat's major contention seems to be the charge that 'the Association had become technically insolvent.' This is completely false and Mr. Bernat has been told so, long ago, in our presence by certified public accountants. The Association has not been and is not insolvent, technically or otherwise, has always met all commitments, paid all bills, never needed to borrow money, and has had a steadily increasing budget with which to carry on its important work. We can go through the 53 pages line by line and prove statement after statement to be false, distorted or based on false assumptions.

Our Association is proud of the work it does and what it has accomplished in its brief years. We believe we are moving ahead with our purpose of forging a strong, unified effective citizens organization, dedicated to and capable of achieving our goals for the mentally ill.

Mr. Bernat's carefully calculated program of vilification and harassment not only can set back this program so needed in Minnesota but actually is taking from it many thousands of dollars as we purchase extra audits, prepare extra reports and disseminate extra information to answer the charges he is circulating through the press of the state."

TRF Voters Turn Down School Bond Issue on Monday

Monday. The nearest number of voters on election in this city has had was a figure near the 3,000 mark at a national general election a number of years ago.

What will be done on the education scene in the near future will depend upon action of the board of education when it next convenes. Another election could be held, if the board so desires, without a change in the plan and as soon as notice of election could be legally published. There has, however, been no indication that this will be done.

School administrators are now continuing work on the 1962-1963 class schedule with the major problem being the arrangement of classroom spaces to provide for all classes being offered, school officials said.

Princess Kay Is County Princess Contest Booster

May 9 Is Deadline for Entry in County Event; Contest Is Set May 11

"Like taking a trip to a place you've wanted to visit for a long time, getting there is half the fun of becoming Princess Kay." This is a statement made by Diane Kramer, eighth Princess Kay of the Milky Way, in encouraging local girls to enter their county dairy princess contests.

The Pennington county event will be held Friday, May 11, with three finalists to be announced at special ceremonies that evening. Judging will take place in the late afternoon and the evening program will follow a banquet for princess contestants and country dairy officials at the Rex cafe.

Girls with dairy farm backgrounds may enter the contest if they are between the ages of 16 and 21 inclusive, a bonafide resident of Minnesota for one year, available for a full year of employment from the day of her coronation, single, not engaged and never married and not a professional model.

Deadline for the county contest is May 9. Entries may be made or further information obtained at the county extension office or from any of the local creameries in the county.

"Becoming the title winner, of course, is the biggest thrill," Princess Kay says. "But unlike some contests in which the final reward is a few minutes of glory, Princess Kay immediately begins a year of work and experiences which I personally have found to be the most fascinating in my life."

Area Redevelopment to Be Discussed at Meeting Here Friday

Area redevelopment is the topic of a USDA agencies conference being held in Detroit Lakes today. Pennington county commissioners and the extension committee will meet on Friday, April 27, at 1:30 to discuss the topic in the courthouse meeting room.

Discussion will center around area development made possible under two separate acts. One was passed by the Eisenhower administration and is known as RAD (Rural Area Development Act). This law provided for establishment of a broad citizens group which would investigate, plan, and promote area development. This is largely an educational group which is incorporated for the purpose of conducting the activities listed.

The RAD organization is county wide and is composed of farmers, businessmen, educators, professional people, and other community minded citizens. In Pennington Co. the group functioned last year, working with the extension service in developing a plan for the county. Much information has been gathered, the problems listed and recommendations made for area improvement.

Another act passed by the last Congress has provided funds for area development. This is the ARA (Area Redevelopment Act). To qualify for funds available under the new act the county has to request "eligibility" for funds. "Eligibility" can be secured under one of three criteria. These are: Unemployment, underemployment, and low median income.

To explore the possibilities of "eligibility" a meeting of county commissioners and the extension committee will be held on Friday, April 27, with Howard Newell, supervisor of extension work for Northwestern Minnesota on hand, along with County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk to explain the program.

After the county is declared eligible for ARA funds, a five man agency would need to be established by the county board. The agency would approve projects proposals for the area. This agency, plus other agencies involved would need an Overall Economic Development Plan for guidance in selecting projects. The bulk of the work for this plan has already been done in Pennington county by the ninety-two county residents who helped draw up a long-range plan last winter. This at present is in the process of being published.

The two acts of congress provide for possible organization and new funds which can be secured for projects which would process agricultural products, develop rivers, parks, and in reality any project which would create employment or at new jobs to established firms, stated County Agent Paul Stelmaschuk.

Present firms wishing to expand, new firms which would not hurt businesses already in the area and public projects would be eligible. They could be private firms, partnerships, corporations or co-operatives. All forms of businesses would have to provide 10 per cent of the cost of their project from funds from a good number of people. 65 per cent of the needs of the project could be secured from federal sources. Before this can happen the county will need to ask for "eligibility" and establish the proper agencies to receive the aid available.

A technical panel composed of all U. S. D. A. agencies which include the extension service, ASC, FHA, and SCS will serve in an advisory capacity to county development groups.

Rotary Club Hears State Historical Society Official

munity will benefit a town as much as a new industry with a $100,000 annual payroll.

Grahn also listed the value of history for instilling in children a sense of pride in their ancestors and their community. "Youngsters will not vandalize anything in which they take pride," he said.

In closing, the director urged attendance at the local historical society's open house and the building of a stronger county society. He called attention to the fact that Minnesota is the first state which has permitted boards of county commissioners to decide without limit the amount of money which will be given by the county to historical societies.

Argentina Bishop to Give Lecture at Bemidji May 4

Methodism's "bishop in shirtsleeves", Sante Uberto Barbieri of Argentina, will make 2 northwestern Minnesota appearances during a 10 day tour of the state. On Thursday evening, May 3, he will be at the Fergus Falls Methodist church; and, Friday, May 4, at the Bemidji Methodist church. Bishop Barbieri will speak on "The Land of Eldorado", telling of Christianity among Latin America's "people of kind hearts and high dreams."

For 12 years Barbieri has supervised Methodist work in Bolivia, Argentina, and Uruguay. Today he feels that the "tempestuous outcome of the Cuban revolution, entangled with Communist influence, may indicate that there is a real danger for democracy and Christianity in Latin America."

"The church," Barbieri states, "cannot shut her eyes and say this is none of her business. No other institution in society has a greater responsibility in the face of human misery and loss of human life."

Prowlers Defeat RLF; to Play Roseau Friday

In a typical early-season game, with errors plentiful and earned runs at a premium, coach Ralph Skay's Prowlers opened their 1962 season on Wednesday afternoon by scoring a 10-5 win over the Red Lake Falls Eagles in a game played at Red Lake Falls.

The Prowlers will meet the Roseau Rams in a "home" opener on the Fair Grounds diamond here on Friday night, with game time slated for 8:00 p. m. And on Monday night, April 30, the highly-rated Lake Bronson team, considered the strongest team in District 32, will meet the Prowlers on the Fair Grounds diamond.

In Wednesday afternoon's game at Red Lake Falls, the Prowlers, after picking up three unearned runs in the first inning, held the lead throughout the game, although the Eagles made several threats to take command of the contest. In the last half of the first inning, with an Eagles runner on second base and two out, centerfielder Gary Klungess made a backhand catch of Bill Phillion's well-hit ball into left-center. The play was the fielding gem of the game.

Jerome (Tony) Poole, who hurled the first three innings for the Prowlers, pitched two-hit ball for the locals, and in the third he turned in a stout-hearted performance. Grant Mead opened the Eagles' half of the inning with a looping single; Steve Demarais gained a life on Paul Klungness' error. A wild pitch moved the runners to second and third and none out. Jim Poirier bounced to the mound, with Tony Poole making the play to first after bluffing the third base runner back to the bag. Dick Demarais grounded to shortstop, and Mead was tagged at the plate, Larry Poole to John Aune. Bill Phillion chased a low curve for a third strike to end the rally.

The Prowlers, after scoring a run in the third, and a pair in the sixth, tallied three earned runs in the seventh inning.

Rick Jensen, pitching the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings; and Rick Johnson, hurling the seventh inning, gave up four hits and five runs. Jensen struck out the side in the fourth.

Other candidates are John Dill, Richard Albaugh, Allen Leigh, Loren McCullough, Jerry Strandquist, Merlin Anderson, Harley Lind, Clifford Dyrud, Charles Olson, David Mattson, Lyle Olson and Ronald Shern.

On Saturday, April 28, the Nordics will go to the Marshall County Track Meet at Warren, Wednesday, May 2, they will enter the sub-district relays at Roseau, May 12 they will enter the Beaver Relays at Bemidji and on May 19 they will enter in the District 32 track meet at Roseau.

This is only the second year of competition in this sport at Newfolden and coach Elseth hopes that some of the boys will make it to the Region 8 track meet at Bemidji this year.

The Singles Leader

Kermit Finstad, a member of the T & S Implement team, had his back-up ball working on Monday night as, in the singles handicap tournament, he rolled games of 188-191-221, for a 600-pin actual score. With a handicap of 78 pins, Kermit had an aggregate of 678 to move into first place. Lloyd (Sam) Samuelson, with games of 222-213-199, for a 634-pin actual, and, with a 27-pin handicap, a 661 aggregate, was the previous leader.

Jim Muzzy of the Daleford Farms team made a strong bid to take over first place in the singles when, bowling on the Tuesday night shift, he clipped the pins for games of 186-167-252 for a 605-pin actual score, and carrying a handicap of 69 pins, posted an aggregate of 674 pins. That 674 total is just four pins behind Finstad's first place tally.

The singles and doubles competition will continue into next week.

The doubles team of Bob Pahlen and Don Joppru rolled into first place in the doubles event, posting an aggregate of 1266. Pahlen had an aggregate of 557, while Joppru scored a 654.

The men's bowling association banquet will be held on Saturday evening, April 28, at the Elks Club. If I recollect correctly it will mark first time in the many years that the banquet has been an annual event that Wally DuChamp will not be called upon to recieve the high-average trophy of his team. The trophy will remain in the DuChamp family, though, for brother Jesse, with a 190-pin average, was the Elaine's, and the city's, high average bowler.

He's a Top Prospect

Don Arlich, who was a spectacular all-round athlete with the North St. Paul Polars a year ago, and who was signed to a professional baseball contract by the Houston Colts of the National league, will be pitching for the Modesto team in the California league this season.

Arlich, a fast-balling southpaw, had been on the roster of the Oklahoma City team of the American Association. In a game against the Oklahoma City club, Arlich, pitching for Modesta, handcuffed the Association team on one hit in five innings to clinch a 3 to 2 for the Class C farm team.

Arlich was dropped from the Oklahoma City squad over the protests of manager Connie Ryan. The Houston farm club officials, who rated Arlich as a top prospect, believe that the youngster will receive more seasoning by pitching in a lower league than the AA.

Some Fine Entertainment

Sports fans are due for some fine entertainment this week, and an abundance of fresh air, when on Friday and Saturday the Prowlers' major spring sports squads, the baseball team and the track squad, engage in competition.

On Friday night, under the lights at the Fair Grounds, coach Ralph Skay's baseball club will meet the Roseau Rams in an inter-district game. Play ball time is slated for 8:00 p. m.

And on Saturday afternoon, with a 2:00 p. m. start, coach Rod Max's Prowler track squad will match time and speed against squads from Hallock, Mahnomen, and Fosston.

Fans who attend Saturday afternoon's track meet will witness some great Prowler athletes in action. Gary and Paul Klungness should monopolize the sprints, and Rolf Wangberg should approach a school record in the mile run. And if coach Max decides to try for a school record in the 880-yard relay, he could send Gary Klungness, Ron Olson, Orrin Joppru and Paul Klungness into action. That quartet has a record-breaking potential.

Newfolden Nordic Baseball Squad To Open Season

Coach Frank Kohoutek will unveil his 1962 Newfolden Nordic baseball squad on Tuesday, May 1, when they will travel to Greenbush for the first scheduled game. Coach Kohoutek reports seven lettermen returning from the 1961 team.

Three of the lettermen are pitcher-infielders and include James Dahl, Verne Hagenbeck and Hjalmar Lofstrom, Jr. Lester Bakke is the other returning infield letterman. Lettermen returning for the outfield are Ronald Shern, Paul Tangquist and Harlan Halvorson. Rookies seeking places on the team are Dale Elseth, catcher, Ken Anderson, John Tandberg, Wayne Ness, Russell Elseth, Bruce Elseth, Keith Myhrer, John Rokke and Larry Hanson. Because of limited practice sessions due to the weather, the starting lineup is quite uncertain, the coach reports.

Other baseball games scheduled are: Monday, May 7, Middle River, here; Thursday, May 10, Badger, here; Tuesday, May 15, at Badger; and Wednesday, May 16, at Middle River. The subdistrict tournament will be held at Warroad May 21 and 22.

City Will Host Music Festival

Students from throughout a large area will converge on Thief River Falls Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5, for the annual high school state area music festival. Vocal and instrumental solos and small groups will compete on Friday with the bands, choruses and large groups to participate on Saturday.

For every new pesticide chemical found, 300 to 2,000 different compounds must be tested.

TAXIDERMY is a hobby which provides Virgil Erickson of rural Holt with colorful decorations like the mounts shown above. These birds and the rack of moose antlers represent many hours of careful workmanship and are displayed on top of the piano in the Erickson home. Erickson began taking a mail order course in taxidermy at 12 years of age and has been working at the hobby in spare moments for 19 years. All of the mounted specimens at his home show detailed work and a rare knowledge of the manner in which they appear in their natural state. Wire attached to the bone structure of the birds permits the limbs to be bent and placed in the desired position.

Virgil Erickson of Holt Enjoys Taxidermy Hobby

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

When a person sees the work done by Virgil Erickson of Holt, he comes to realize that there is much more to the field of taxidermy than simply stuffing a dead animal or bird. A good taxidermist must have an artistic touch, and that is what is shown in Erickson's mounts which are much in evidence at his home located 7½ miles northeast of Holt.

To do a creditable job of mounting a bird or animal, the taxidermist must have a thorough knowledge of how the speciment looks in its living state. Virgil studies photographs, artist's drawings and the birds and animals in the wild before beginning work on a particular project.

At the tender age of 12 when boyhood curiosity is at a peak in most youngsters, Virgil wrote to the Northwest School of Taxidermy for information. He then followed through on a mail order course which took about a year and one-half to complete. One lesson per month was completed, beginning with simple items and working toward more complex animals, and pictures of completed projects were sent in for criticism.

It was 19 years ago that Erickson started the correspondence course and he has developed his boyhood enthusiasm into an interesting and rewarding hobby. He currently has about 15 mounts at his farm home and has done many other birds and animals for other people in the area.

Some of the birds he has mounted include pheasants, partridge, sharptail and ruffed grouse and mallard, bufflehead, gadwall, teal, wood duck, scaup and hooded merganser ducks. Other mounts include squirrels and rabbits, antelope and deer heads, raccoon and bobcat rugs and several fish.

Newfolden HS Graduate

A 1948 graduate of Newfolden high school, Erickson is now employed by the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service at Agassiz National Wildlife refuge east of Holt. He states that his present occupation gives him added opportunity to view birds and animals in their natural habitat, an aid which has been very valuable in giving proper appearance to his mounted objects.

To many persons, taxidermy seems to be a messy job at best. It isn't always the most savory of avocations. To prevent having blood discolor the feathers of birds during the skinning process, Erickson uses cornmeal to soak up excess liquid. Particular care is required on birds with light plumage and animals with light-colored fur.

Birds are skinned to the head and the skin removed in one piece. The skull, wing bones and leg bones are used in the mounted bird. Small animals are skinned to the nose to remove the hide in one piece. Artificial bodies may be purchased but Erickson generally makes his own from excelsion which has been dampened and gives a firm shape when compressed and dried.

Wires Aid Forming

Wires are attached to the bone structure of the birds to permit shaping of the neck, legs and wings in rigid fashion. All flesh is cleaned from the bones, often by boiling them until the flesh comes off cleanly. Skins of both birds and animals must also be carefully cleaned.

In addition to mounting entire birds and animals, Erickson has used deer feet in gun racks, as backs for thermometers and mounts for ash trays. In all cases the hooves are carefully smoothed and polished and the finished item is an attractive curiosity.

Each new project presents a new challenge to Virgil and he enjoys proving to himself that he can meet these challenges. From the appearance of his work he has met the challenges and solved the bpoblems in excellent style.

ARTISTIC touches are required when doing taxidermy like the mallard duck pictured above. Virgil Erickson, who has been mounting birds and animals since he was 12 years old, finds that studying the creatures in their natural surroundings is the most effective method of gaining a first-hand knowledge of their appearance. He lives about seven and one-half miles northeast of Holt and is currently employed at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge.

Grygla Students To Enter Civic Oration Contest

"Education, the Hope of America" is the subject to be discussed by Grygla school students of fifth through eighth grades in the civic oration contest to be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday, May 8 at the Grygla school.

The contest will be the 15th in a series of annual events sponsored by Modern Woodmen of America. Competition will be supervised by Manford Stennes and awards will be distributed by Mrs. Norman Newton. Individual trophies will be given to the winner and runner-up and another trophy presented to the school with the winner's name inscribed on it. Five other gold pin awards will be made during preliminary competition.

Schools which had previously participated in the contest were petitioned to submit subjects which they felt would be of interest and benefit to students in future competition. The subject to be used was suggested by a Missouri high school teacher.

Red Cross Lists Aquatic Schools

22 Schools Scheduled for the Summer Months

Camp counselors, lifeguards, swimming instructors, and other skilled swimmers over 18 planning to enter these fields will again have an opportunity to learn new methods and techniques of teaching at one of the American Red Cross national aquatic schools. Provided by the Red Cross since 1922, a total of 22 of these schools are held throughout the country during May, June and August including eight in the Midwest. In these 41 years a total of approximately 78,000 persons have enrolled in the annual 10-day sessions.

The curriculum at all schools includes swimming, lifesaving, first aid, and leadership training in community organization, camp waterfront, and swimming pool organization. The small craft schools offer leadership training in outboard boating; use of canoes, rowboats, and small sailing craft; and teaching and programming for camps, clubs, and recreation departments.

Those wishing to qualify as first aid instructors may enroll in the first aid section of the school with no swimming activity involved. Students enrolling for water safety instructor training should hold a current senior lifesaving certificate or have sufficient ability to qualify. Those wishing to include an elective course in their training must hold a current water safety instructor authorization certificate.

Complete enrollment information on the aquatic and small craft schools can be secured through any Red Cross chapter, or from Midwestern Area Office, American Red Cross, 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis 8, Mo.

Editorials . . .

"In the present world crisis, freedom must be our first concern. We can guarantee nothing unless we retain our economic strength.

"Our foreign aid managers will soon have to recognize that it is not possible to fight communism by strengthening communist nations; that it is not possible to buy the support of "neutrals"; that the mere fact of underdevelopment does not present us with a moral obligation to rebuild whole nations."

—Senator Barry Goldwater

A Good Start

Terms of a stabilization plan for Berlin were "leaked" by a West German official last week and for a while it looked like we might have to go to war again. But comparative calm was restored with a few explanations. The situation is no longer critical.

The plan as proposed by State Secretary Dean Rusk is based on these four main points:

1. Non-aggression declarations by the NATO and Warsaw Pact countries guaranteeing the present lines of demarcation; 2. Prohibition on the spread of nuclear arms; 3. An international authority with roles for East and West Germans to control the Berlin access routes; 4. A joint East-West German committee to work on economic and other problems arising from the division of the country.

That seems to be a reasonable approach to a problem that has long needed a solution. It will not be satisfactory to the West German government which prefers to continue the present dangerous arrangement in the hope that East and West Germany can some day be united again. Our guess is that there would be a better chance of achieving that objective by starting to live as friendly neighbors.

Relieving the pressure that now exists between the NATO and the Warsaw Pact countries would do much to relieve the tension that constantly threatens the peace not only of Europe but of all of the world. So far it is only a proposal but it serves as a starting point for the discussions that are on the way.

Record Defense Spending

The House appropriation committee has approved a record peacetime appropriation of $47,839,194,000 for the Defense Department, to be made available for the year starting July 1. That is approximately 1.3 billion dollars more than the total appropriated for the present year and is about 67 million dollars less than President Kennedy requested.

We may take for granted that not all of these billions will be spent wisely. The spending will be guided by political considerations as well as the needs of national defense. The buying of votes will be an important factor.

Presumably these expenditures will strengthen our nation as a military power. To whatever extent they will result in an increase in our national debt however they will weaken our economy. We would feel much more secure if there was as much concern in Washington about the health of our economy as there is about our military strength.

And we would be happier over the prospect if we had in Washington an administration that recognized the advantages that come with good management. Not every dollar that is appropriated by Congress must be spent. It would be very much to the credit of the Kennedy administration if defense expenditures were held substantially below the sum authorized, and this saving applied on the public debt.

Postal Rates

According to Postmaster General J. Edward Day, there is no practical alternative to raising postal rates. He has reported to the House and Senate that a pending bill to increase rates by $691 million a year would be a sound and urgently needed step toward an equitable solution of post office financial problems. This year's deficit is expected to be $856 million.

Well we can think of at least one practical alternative that we have had to resort to several times to straighten out our own problems and that is to cut our costs and live within our means. As a first step in an austerity program we would suggest less politics mixed into the payrolls and construction. No private business could survive if it were operated like our postal service.

We believe the postal service should be self supporting. We would approach that objective by cutting costs.

College and Success

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has conducted an interesting survey among its own officials thruout the country to determine what, if any, relationship there is between being a good student in college and a success in business. Ten thousand telephone company officials who were graduated between 1910 and 1950 were checked. The company hires 3,000 college students yearly.

As reported by the National Observer, Frederick R. Kappel, chairman of the board of AT&T, summed up the findings recently at the annual Green Foundation lecture at Westminister College in Fulton, Mo. He stated:

"More and more we are disposed to look within the top half of the college class for the individuals to whom we will offer career opportunities. We haven't yet gone all the way on this, but that is the general direction."

As reported by the Observer, extra-curricular activities, long the refuge of those who claimed well-roundedness was more valuable in business than scholarship, proved much less accurate a forecaster of company success. Working one's way through college, generally accepted as a sign of drive and ambition, proved almost valueless as an indicator of achievement as a telephone executive.

In its study, the company used salary as the standard of success in the company. Each executive's salary was ranked in comparison with salaries of executives employed the same length of time. Then each man's comparative success was checked against what he achieved in college in grades, activities, and earnings.

Among men who stood among the top-third in salary for their level of experience, half came from the top-third of their classes and only a quarter from the bottom academic third.

Rank in class was found to be more important than the quality of the school where the grades were earned. Top students from "below-average" colleges were more frequently successful than average students from top schools.

Extra-curricular achievement was a useful indicator only for those with outstanding achievements to their credit, such as holding the top office in an important campus organization. A busy round of social activities did not forecast a distinguished business career.

Among the desirable executive prospects, the student most likely to succeed, reported Mr. Kappel, earned high grades in an outstanding school. And his company recruiters were even more eager to capture him if he also held an important campus position.

Mr. Kappel made the following interesting observations:

"There are other equally important factors—integrity, creativity, personality characteristics. But these you must judge in both cases, anyway.

"Sometimes our college employment people pick lower-scholarship men, but they need to feel strongly that other factors justify this, for they know they are betting against the odds.

"When you hire a man of high intelligence but low grades, in effect you have to bet that a drive he hasn't yet shown will show after he goes to work. If, on the other hand, you are considering a high-scholarship man, your bet is that a drive already demonstrated will be sustained."

More and more companies are manufacturing language-learning records and now it's possible for your home phonograph to drill you in French, Spanish, German, Russian, Portuguese, Japanese, Norwegian, Italian, Greek and a variety of dialects from China, Africa and the Arab states.

In this English-speaking land of ours, of course, you wouldn't expect to find many records devoted to teaching the native tongue, and in scanning the catalogues, we didn't find a one. Yet maybe that's the instruction most of us need most. The last time we were in a record store, we asked the man if he stocked a record that taught English.

"Nah," he replied, "and there ain't no call for it, neither."

If Your Farm Burned During A Windstorm, Who Would Pay?

Many windstorm policies don't cover losses from a fire which starts as the result of a windstorm. This is one example of some of the big differences between insurance policies that look alike. I sell coverage by St. Paul Mutual — the company that gives the farmer extra protection at regular rates. Let me show you how this coverage can mean a lot to you and your family.

Employers Reminded Social Security Tax Deadline Is April 30

Internal Revenue district director George O. Lethert today reminded employers that April 30 is the deadline for reporting and paying income and social security taxes withheld for the calendar quarter ended March 31, 1962.

Employers should use Internal Revenue Form 941 to report their tax liability for the quarter, and mail it, along with depositary receipts and full payment of any balance of taxes due, to their district director of internal Revenue.

Mr. Lethert issued a note of caution to Minnesota employers. He said that an incorrect rate is being used in computing the Social Security Tax on returns being filed. Effective January 1, 1962 the tax rate on wages paid is 3⅛ per cent for employers and 3⅛ per cent for employees, or a total of 6¼ per cent. The old rate was 3 per cent for each, or a total of 6.

Lethert said the internal revenue service is carrying out a vigorous collection program in cases where taxes withheld from wages of employers are not paid over the government when due. He explained these are trust fund collections belonging to the United States and are in no way available for use by employers.

He said streamlined procedures instituted last year permit enforced collection to be instituted promptly where timely deposits or payments are not made. The district director said the great majority of employers comply fully with the requirements of law, but a relative few have failed to pay over such taxes promptly. "These abuses place an unfair burden on those who do comply, and the taxpaying public generally," he said.

Law Enforcement Officers Endorse May Safety Drive

State Sheriff's Assn. Is Lending Its Support to 'Operation Survival'

Enforcement officers of the Twin City metropolitan area and the Minnesota Sheriffs' association have endorsed the summer traffic safety program "Operation Survival," the Minnesota highway department reported. They have agreed to include it in their activities during the next six months.

"Operation Survival" is the traffic accident prevention program to be promoted by the Minnesota Highway department and other agencies over the next six months. It is based on an award winning suggestion that combines strong public education and enforcement on various violations that lead to traffic accidents.

Meetings of the Hennepin and Ramsey county police chiefs, the metropolitan county sheriffs and the Minnesota Sheriffs' association pledged their support to wage a vigorous campaign against violations being emphasized during each of the next six months.

The safety program starts in May with emphasis on three violations:

Failure to signal turns
Changing lanes without signals
Failure to dim headlights

According to the safety section of the highway department and law enforcement officers, the purpose of the program is not simply to punish violators but to educate motorists in the correct manner of maneuvering safely in traffic.

Applications Due for Service Academies

Congressman Odin Langen has announced that July 9, 1962, has been designated as the date when written examinations will be given for young men who wish to be appointed to the United States Air Force, Merchant Marine, Military or Naval academies in 1963, a year from now. Langen said applicants should contact his office by June first if they wish to take the exam this July.

Langen reminded the people of Minnesota that the 1963 appointments will be made on the basis of the territory covered by the new expanded 7th Congressional District, so all young men applying for this summer's tests should contact the present Ninth District office. Information and application forms can be obtained by writing to Congressman Odin Langen, 1519 New House Office Building, Washington, D. C. The actual locations where the examination will be given will be announced later, but will be in towns and cities as near the applicant's homes as possible.

Congressman Langen reports that the age limitations require that candidates be not less than 17 and must not have reached the age of 22 upon entrance to the academies. This means that those who are not less than 16 could take the exams this summer for consideration for the class starting in 1963.

Langen also commented on the type of examination given; said it consists of two aptitude tests and a subject matter test. "Success depends as little as possible on special coaching or 'cramming' and as much as possible upon those abilities which make for future success," said Langen. However, the Congressman pointed out that while no special preparation is necessary candidates should have a good knowledge of high school algebra.

Congressman Langen also suggested that candidates contact their private physicians and undergo a thorough examination before going to the trouble of taking the written tests. "It would eliminate the possibility of a young man being nominated and passing the written examination," explained Langen, "only to be rejected by the medical officer because of physical condition."

Baby chicks can't talk — we know that. But we wonder what this little chick would think if chicks could think? Probably he's bewildered . . . a great big world . . . great big problems . . . an orphan already . . . and hungry! Yet, there's deep meditation here. Man is often like that little baby chick; bewildered, confused, wondering . . . especially those on the threshold of a new life or venture. We don't know all the answers, of course, but we do know some! We do know how to reach our Creator (PRAYER), how He reaches us (BY HIS GRACE). We also know that the most serene place for such communion with the Creator is in church. Here you'll find many answers to many problems. It's worth a try, isn't it?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Lure of History

Nearly 300 Attend Open House at Museum Sunday

Interest in Pennington county history was displayed on a gray and rainy Sunday afternoon when nearly 300 persons visited the Pennington County Historical Society museum yesterday. Open house was held at the museum in the basement of the Pennington county courthouse to acquaint county residents with items which have been contributed to the society for display purposes.

In preparation for the open house which was planned at an earlier meeting of the society, considerable cataloging and description of items exhibited was completed. A set of records has been established and will be kept up to date as other items are added to the museum. The society board will meet in the near future to review the open house and make plans for a general meeting to be held later this spring.

Slides on historical exhibits in other museums, made available by the Minnesota Historical Society, were shown during the afternoon in the community room of the courthouse as coffee and doughnuts were served by members of the local Friends of Carnegie Library. Assistance with arrangement and cleaning of items for display was provided by members of the Zehlian art group.

A number of items were brought to the museum on Sunday and many of the visitors volunteered to bring other items of historical significance in the future. Persons who have items which they would like to contribute to the society for display and preservation may contact any of the officers who include Joel Rosengren, president; Millard Nelson, secretary; and Paul Roy, treasurer.

Collection Contributed

One display which added considerable interest to the Sunday open house was an exhibit of glassware collected and shown by Mrs. Stanley Mortenson. Other individual items contributed to this collection could create a display of particular interest to women visiting the museum. Attention was also called by the society to the purchase of display cases by the Ed O. Vigen family as a memorial to Vigen who was a pioneer resident of the community.

Registration was beyond expectations of society officers who planned the open house as a test of historical interest among community residents. A total of 284 persons signed the guest register with residence listed including Red Lake Falls, East Grand Forks, Duluth, Holt, Goodridge, Argyle, St. Hilaire Plummer, Radium, Grygla, Oklee, Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls as well as Grafton and Hillsboro, N. D., and Petersburg, Alaska.

"With this show of interest evidenced Sunday, there seems to be no question as to the necessity to continue in plans to reorganize the historical society," stated Joel Rosengren, president of the organization. "The fact that we signed 53 new members at the open house indicates that there is sufficient interest to continue."

NEW MEMBERS added to the list of the Pennington County Historical Society totaled 53 as a result of the open house held at the museum in the basement of the county courthouse Sunday afternoon. In the above photo, Paul Roy, left, treasurer of the society, makes change after signing up a new member. Attendance at the open house totaled nearly 300, far above the expectations of society officers who planned the event to test community interest in history.

Invest in America Week Is Observed

Invest-In-America Week is being observed throughout the nation for the 12th consecutive year during the week of April 29 through May 5. The program is designed to educate the widest possible audience to the function to finance so that Americans will know how they benefit from our system of investing in savings, homes, insurance and securities.

"We believe that the competitive enterprise system provides for maximum opportunity and personal responsibility through which the individual may become a part of, contribute to and strengthen his own and his nation's welfare, said Ray R. Eppert, national chairman of the 1962 Invest-in-America Week.

"Only with the collective savings and investment of all our people can America succeed in providing jobs, plants, equipment and services required to meet the increasing needs of our rapidly expanding economy."

7,000 Deaths Then, 310 Now

Two decades ago, 7,000 children died every year of whooping cough. Last year only 310 children died of whooping cough. What explains the difference? It's the new wonder drugs — unknown two decades ago. Priceless drugs? Sure! Yet the price of the average prescription hasn't gone up any more in 20 years than has the price of a pound of coffee.

Phone Companies Consolidate with Northwestern Bell

Park Ridge Company, In Operation Since 1909, To Receive Improvement

Consolidation of two independent telephone companies which will now be part of the Northwestern Bell system was accomplished during the past week, according to James Koller, manager of the Northwestern Bell office in Thief River Falls. Nineteen stockholders of the 28 holding stock in the company attending meetings recently voted unanimously for the consolidation. The company has 26 rural phones in operation with Emil Hellquist serving as president and Chester Rude as secretary-treasurer.

Work on the project by Northwestern Bell will begin in 1963 when about $10,000 will be expended to supply buried cable and wire to buildings of the farm subscribers.

The other company consolidated was the Thief River Falls Sales Barn Telephone company which included eight telephones at the Joppru Meat Market location northwest of the city.

USDA Reviews Dairy Industry in State

Although dairy cows are presently producing milk faster than people can use it, many Minnesota farmers in the major dairy area of the state plan to expand their output.

That's according to USDA and University of Minnesota research reported by W. B. Sundquist in the coming issue of "Minnesota Farm Business Notes," a publication of the agricultural extension service. Sundquist is an agricultural economist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture's economic research service.

Some 250 Minnesota farmers, 212 with dairy herds, were contacted in 1961. They were asked what changes they expected in the relative prices of milk, hogs and beef and what changes they planned in their livestock operations during the next 5 years.

Almost 60 per cent expected the price of milk to improve relative to hogs and beef. Seventy-nine of the 250 planned to start a dairy operation or expand the one they already have. Only 34, most with small cow numbers, expected to decrease the size of their dairy operation.

Minnesota has followed a national trend toward increased specialization in dairying In 1955, 116,230 Minnesota farmers kept milk cows. Five years later the number had dipped to 85,018—73 per cent of the 1955 total.

In 1955 only 11 per cent of Minnesota dairy farms had more than 20 milk cows. By 1960 there were more than 20 cows in 22.5 per cent of the herds, indicating fewer small dairy herds and a rapid increase in larger herds.

Minnesota cows averaged 8,130 pounds of milk in 1961, an all-time high and about 18 per cent above the 1951-60 average. Sundquist says that improved breeding and feeding contributed the major portion of the increase. Across the nation in 1961 dairymen fed a record high ration of 1 pound of grain and concentrate for every 3 pounds of milk their cows produced.

Net result was in increase total national milk production about 4 per cent in 1961 as compared to 1951-60, while cow numbers dropped by 5 per cent in Minnesota and 14 per cent nationally during the 10-year period. During the same time, consumption on a per capita basis for all U. S. consumers declined 5.5 per cent.

In 1961, about 6.5 per cent of the milk fat and 10 per cent of solids nonfat production was bought by the government in price support programs. Sundquist says the supply of and demand for dairy products probably will not regain a balance within 2 or 3 years. But barring unexpected declines in per capita consumption, a growing domestic population will eventually provide an expanded market for dairy products.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

Development is an interesting word as described by the knowledgable. It means to come to completion by degrees by way of uncovering or unfolding potential yet untapped. It means to mature. It means to advance from a lower stage to a higher stage.

Since community growth does not know any final goal, development of Thief River Falls then is an endless need. As time moves along we must continue to tear down the old and build up the new. This process has gone on since the beginning of time and will continue until the end of time unless we as a young and capable generation fail to strive forward as we were intended to do. We are here for a reason and we must meet the challenge.

Tuesday afternoon, the evolution of this community will realize one more advancement. The sunflower and millet growers will sign contracts for the purpose of producing for the Birdseed Industry. This is progress. This is community development. This is something tangible as a result of dedicated efforts that many people would not consider very tangible perhaps. This is another opportunity for the people of this area to prove that they can do something by way of their own individual initiative.

Individual initiative, in fact, is the real crux of the entire community development problem. Perhaps 98 per cent of all community development that we realize in future years will be from within, not from outside. It will be what you do and I do to develop and expand our own individual interests and business that will determine most of our growth and development.

At the present time we have an abundance of people who say, "Why don't they do this or that", or they say, "Let's wait for federal aid", or "What we need is to get some more industry in here" or "When are we ever going to get a junior college in this town". You know when this town will see its greatest rate of growth and development? The answer is, just as soon as we decide we're forward-looking people with intestinal fortitude enough to quit crying about every little thing we happen to think of and stand up for a set of principles that really mean something, hard work included.

I believe too, that each of us can really help with this area development if we Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

Rites Held for Mrs. Torgus Hemmestvedt, Jr.

Funeral services for Mrs. Torgus Hemmestvedt, Jr., age 67, who passed away suddenly April 21 at Winona, Minn. while visiting at the home of her daughter, were held Wednesday, April 25, at 2 p. m. at the Telemarken Lutheran church. Sinding's Funeral Chapel was in charge of arrangements. Rev. A. B. Heltne officiated with burial being made in the Telemarken Lutheran cemetery.

Anne Hemmestvedt was born November 5, 1894, in Norway. With her parents she came to Fisher, Minn. in 1896, coming to Kratka township in 1904. After attending rural school she enrolled in high school in Grand Forks, N. Dak. and after graduation attended Teachers training in Thief River Falls. She then taught rural school in Pennington county.

On May 5, 1919 she was united in marriage to Torgus Hemmestvedt Jr. They made their home in Minneapolis for two years, coming to Kratka township in 1921 where they had since made their home. Mrs. Hemmestvedt was a member of the Telemarken Lutheran church and Ladies Aid.

Survivors include three daughters and one son: Mrs. Elmer (Helen) Simon of Altura, Minn.; Mrs. William (Valborg) Pepelnjak of Virginia, Minn.; Mrs. Orville (Joyce) Jensen, and Truman, both of Goodridge. One sister and two brothers, Mrs. Gunhild Syrtvedt of this city; Sam and Torbjon Haugen of Goodridge; and nine grandchildren also survive.

She was preceded in death by her husband.

BY GARY LUNDIN

THERE IS NO QUESTION that the turnout of voters in the school bond issue election last week was the largest ever for this district. And the margin of voters who opposed the issue was sufficient to indicate that opposition was spread over a number of objections. Though disappointing to many, particularly school officials planning overcrowded schedules with no relief in sight, the result was more or less expected.

It is now the unenviable task of the board of education to come up with a plan which will be acceptable to district residents and still satisfy the needs of district youngsters. With the many complexities involved in the local system—elementary, junior high, senior high and vocational schools as well as site location and controversy over condition of present buildings—a solution will not be easy to find.

It has been suggested, and not without merit, that a commission be formed to study the needs and agree on a plan of action to meet them. This has already been done at length by the school board, but some residents of the district apparently were unaware of the research behind the proposed plan. For those who apparently lack faith in their elected officials, the commission idea may be an antidote for ill feelings.

One problem is quite evident in arranging such a commission—who would or should serve on it? Perhaps the logical choice would be local construction men, architects, engineers and contractors. Will they serve? That would remain to be seen.

As in the case of any contest where there is a winner and loser, some feelings were hurt by the election results. This should not be the case. Proponents of the bond issue should believe that opponents did not cast their ballots against education but rather against the plan and proposed expenditure. Most persons who voted "No" will agree with this.

So here is a word of note to the coffee-shop architects and educators who were too busy watching television or visiting their favorite clubs to attend any of the informational meetings: Your wishes have been granted. You have been given your opportunity. The need is still here. It is now your responsibility to help your board of education to devise an acceptable plan, both from standpoint of cost and utility, to meet the educational needs of the district. Let's see how the game progresses when you carry the ball.

Just like population peaks in rabbits, the ideas of disciplinary action for youngsters runs in cycles. According to a recent survey of women's magazines made at Stanford University, the pendulum is swinging again toward modernization of the "old-fashioned" spanking.

Rigid control of offspring was extremely popular (with parents) in 1892, even more so in 1910, a little less in 1925, much less in 1935 and least of all in 1950. Now the rod seems to be returning to fashion again. As a parent of two youngsters, I know it is often apparent that actions speak much louder than words.

Aristotle was a master of philosophy and his words in many cases hold true even in our modern world. In his "Politics", the following statement is very appropriate for our times: "That in a well-ordered state the citizens should have leisure and not have to provide for their daily wants is generally acknowledged, but there is a difficulty in seeing how this leisure is to be obtained."

"You ain't seen my dawg, have you Bill?" asked the coon hunter of a neighbor. "Nope; how's you lose him?" was the reply. "Smartest dawg I ever had," the first lamented. "Every time I'd whittle out a skinnin' board, I'd just show it to him an' he'd go out and fetch a coon to fit it. Then a couple weeks ago the wife set her ironin' board out in the yard, Old Blue seen it, and he ain't come back since!"

Police department mail last week included a traffic ticket, check and the following note attached to the check, "Roses Are Red, Tickets Are, Too, Parking's Two Hours So I Owe You." The check was in payment of an overtime parking fine.

CLOAK OF FASHION

I note in fashion 'round the town,
Hemlines are up and necklines down,
Causing males who lack decision
To rely on peripheral vision.

Gay spring frocks leave shoulders bare
While bouffant skirts have wind-blown flare.
It seems the beauties on the street
Are destined to make both ends meet.

Believe me, men have no complaint
About this sheer lack of restraint,
For girl-watching is the best
When "fashion-cloaked" means halfway dressed.

Hetteen Alaska Journey Meets —30 Temperatures

Civilization Nearer As Planes Make Appearance and Helicopter Lands

CHAPTER NINE

March 17, 1960

We left Galena at 10:45 a. m. and arrived in Ruby at 6 o'clock in the evening after covering approximately 50 miles. The school teacher at Galena brought her pupils down to see us before we left, and the children carefully studied our Sno-Travelers.

This proved to be one of the colder days. It was 30 below when we started our machines right after breakfast, and the mercury did not rise above 5 below all through the day. Snow conditions were good, and there was very little wind.

It was evident that Jack West enjoyed the trip even though it was a cold ride for him.

Tonight Erling Falk and I will bed down in an old building that is sometimes used as a theater here. There is some heat in the building, and it should be fairly comfortable.

Bessie and Rudy Billberg are staying at the home of some friends, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Yljana.

Today I had a brand new experience — a ride in a large Air Force helicopter which made a surprise landing beside us on the Yukon. The pilot and I traded rides, with him driving the Sno-Traveler while I went aboard the helicopter and rode for about 60 miles for some picture taking, and to view the trail that lies ahead.

It was fun to get aloft and study the mountains, hills and streams of the area. We were able to see quite a few large moose from the air.

A Wien Alaska Airline C-46 flew near today, and it begins to look as through we are getting closer to people again.

One of the native women in Ruby prepared dinner for Erling and me, and she has agreed to provide us with breakfast in the morning before we leave.

We hope it will be a little warmer tomorrow when we start off for Tanana, but I will settle for cold weather if there is no strong wind. The high winds and drifting snows of the last few days tend to tire us out.

We passed through some breathtaking country today. It seems that something new and different takes place every day, with the result that the trip has been anything but boring.

March 18, 1960

We left Ruby at 8 a. m. The temperature was 25 below zero when we had breakfast, and it remained around 18 below for most of the day. Fortunately there was no wind. Poor snow bothered us somewhat today.

We made 60 miles with a stop at Kokrines and stopped for the night at Raisin Jack's cabin about a mile from a point on the river called Birches.

Even in the shape the cabin was in it looked wonderful to us. Rather than unpack the tents and erect them in the dark, with a temperature of 15 below, we chose to bed down in the cabin, which luckily had a stove as well as a supply of firewood all cut and ready for use. We replenished the pile of firewood in the morning before leaving.

Trophies Given at Trap Shoot Dinner

Ben Franklin Squad Wins League Champion Award

The awards banquet of the Thief River Trap Shoot league was held at the golf club on Thursday evening. Presented the league championship trophy by master of ceremonies Orvis Olen was Gene Gaer of the Ben Franklin squad. During the regular schedule the Ben Franklin and Wilson Bros. squads finished in a deadlock for first place, having season's records of ten wins and four losses. In a shoot-off to determine the league title, the Ben Franklin team scored a solid victory.

Individual trophies, emblematic of being members of the league championship squad, were given to Gene Gaer, Bill Pederson, Dr. Ralph Helm, Cliff Bjorkman, Dr. Jim Disse, Rollie Larson, Bill Rantu, and Bob Baker.

The trophy for the "high gun" average for the season was presented to Cy Schantzen of the Wilson Bros., who posted a 23.1 average during the league competition. Merit patches, for shooting twenty-five straight in league competition, were made to Cliff Bjorkman, Bill Pederson, Jim Rude, and Jim Buening.

Stan Wilson, president of the Thief River Trap club, presided at the well-attended meeting. League shooting for the 1962 season, and the adoption of a schedule, will be made by a committee named by the executive officers of the league. It is planned to continue the league on an eight-team basis, with league shooting being restricted to Thursday evening's if possible.

Roseau Tips Prowler Nine; L. Bronson Next

Trailing by an 8-1 score entering the sixth inning, coach Ray Kavanagh's Roseau Rams erupted for seven hits and seven runs to take control of the high school baseball game played on the Fair grounds diamond Friday afternoon and go on to defeat the coach Ralph Skay's Prowlers, 12-8.

Tonight, Monday, with game time slated for 8:00 p. m., the Prowlers will meet the Lake Bronson team in an inter-district game on the Fair Grounds diamond. On Wednesday night, May 2, the Prowlers will travel to Warren for a district conference game against coach Gene Witucki's Ponies.

In Friday afternoon's tilt here (which was moved up to an afternoon game from its original date as a night date because of the cold weather) the Prowlers gained a 3-2 lead in the first inning. The Rams, on a walk to Gary Johnson, a single by Ken Wicklander, and a double by Gary Olson, scored a pair on the top of the first. The locals, on a walk to Gary Klungness, a ground single by Paul Klungness, a single by John Aune, a hit batsman, and walks to Tony Poole and Gerry Erickson, scored three runs in the last half of the first.

In the third, walks to Tony Poole and Dave Ellingson, a hit batsman, a single by Paul Klungness, and a double by John Aune, drove Roseau's starting pitcher, lefty Gary Olson, off the mound and brought in righthander Gary Brandt from center field for relief duty. Dick Earl Johnson greeted Brandt with a single, driving in the Prowlers' fifth run of the inning and giving the Prowlers an 8-3 lead. Brandt, from the third inning, pitched shutout ball, giving up but two more hits, singles to Paul Klungness and John Aune in the seventh.

The Rams put together a seven-run inning in the sixth, getting five hits and six runs off righthander Mike Aune, who had taken over the pitching chores for the locals in the fourth after younger brother John had hurled the first three innings for the Prowlers. The two "big" blows of the inning were the two-base wallops clubbed out by Paul Dorwart and Ennis Halvorson. Righthander Rick Jensen came on in relief of Mike Aune, and the youthful pitcher gave up a pair of hits before the Rams' rally was halted.

Roseau, on a walk, an error, and a second double by Dorwart, added a run in the seventh.

The Best Sport?

After watching sports for more years than I care to reveal it's my opinion that on the high school and college level, track and field competition is the cleanest and most sportsmanlike.

Track and field is a fascinating endeavor for the participants, and there is a spiritual quality to the sport as the athletes compete against such intangibles as time and distance.

And, too, the results of the events are decided solely on merit and skill. In the competition, the blue ribbon is awarded to the runner who runs the fastest, to the jumper who leaps the highest or the farthest, and to the field man who puts the shot or hurls the discus the farthest.

You will notice, too, that athletes who compete in various sports invariably take great pride in their accomplishments in track and field events.

But perhaps it's as Doug Tegtmeier so often said, "Every sport is a good sport if you are one."

Should Be a Boon

The recent formation and organization of a retriever club here should be a boon to local sportsmen. Particularly to those hunters who own dogs. There are numerous places in this area that are ideal for the training of retriever dogs, and for conducting field trials. The club activities will surely earn a spot on the local sports calendar.

As an aside it should be mentioned that there is a rumor that Ames Pederson, who claims to be the best hunter on the East Side, from the Third street bridge to River Valley and south to the Clearwater river, intends to register his old brother Irey in the retriever club. Ames maintains that Irey is the best retriever in the short-winded and short-haired class!

During his grade school days, and I won't mention how many years ago that was, Ames was noted as a rabbit hunter. The Pederson back porch was always loaded with rabbits, and Ames' father, John Pederson, was puzzled by the fact that Ames only brought back one-eyed rabbits. When questioned, Ames replied, "But Paw, I shoot all the rabbits in the eye."

Miscellany

Harold (Smokey) Johnson has been signed to manage the Detroit Lakes Lakers of the Heart O'Lakes league this season. Last season, it will be recalled, Smokey was a member of the Twin Valley Twins of the Norman-Polk league. Local fans will long remember the game of ball he pitched against the Thieves here one June evening last year. He limited the locals to two hits as the Twins scored an 8-1 win.

It is reported that Barry Johnson, the fabulous pitcher of Fergus Falls high school and Legion ball, has been declared ineligible for high school baseball this season. He is reported as having violated one of the rules and regulations of the Minnesota State High School league. Johnson, who undoubtedly will sign a professional contract, and for a sizable bonus, this year, will probably play American Legion ball with Fergus Falls.

It is perhaps a fact that Harlie Drees, the stocky righthander who hurled for the Thieves the past several seasons, will be playing ball for the Plummer Red Sox of the Pen-Ro-Shall league this season. And the boys may even persuade Harlie to handle the managing duties of the Red Sox.

WDAY-TV's Bill Weaver made plaintive statement the other day that he was perhaps the only fan the Chicago Cubs had in the Upper Midwest. Not so. Mike Hajostek, the Red Lake Falls Eagles baseball coach, and local resident Larry Gilbertson have been, and are, staunch supporters of the Cubs. The boys have been experiencing many sorrowful seasons of late.

An item reveals that Jimmy Reese, a former Prowler hockey star, played a star role in a hockey game between the Anchorage (Alaska) Invaders and the Whitehorse Merchants of the Yukon Territory. The game, which was played in Whitehorse Civic Arena, found Anchorage winning by a 14-9 score. Jim scored five goals and a pair of assists, and of his play it was said, "Reese is one of the best stick-handlers to ever take to the ice in the Yukon."

In the meet here on Saturday afternoon, and while participating in the broad jump, Ron had the misfortune of cracking a shin bone in his right leg.

Basketball Coach at Bemidji State Resigns Thursday

Jack Vinje, Bemidji State college basketball coach since 1958, announced his resignation Thursday, and plans to pursue his ambition to be an athletic director in a city school system.

Vinje made the announcement following a student midnight demonstration made in his behalf and was touched off when the students learned they were losing their popular cage coach. Bemidji city police controlled the singing and chanting marchers, but at one point, they released tear gas to stop them. No one was injured.

Vinje made arrangments to end his college coaching at BSC March 7, 1961 when he told Dr. C. R. Sattgast, BSC president, of his career intentions. At the time he promised Dr. Sattgast that he would remain at BSC through the 1961-1962 college year.

Vinje said today that if this athletic directorship did not materialize this year he would continue graduate study.

Rep. O. Langen Blames Dept. of Agriculture for Stalled Sugar Act

"The record is now clear that the Department of Agriculture is substantially responsible for the delay that has been experienced in the consideration of sugar legislation," declared Congressman Odin Langen Thursday. He made the charge to a group of Farm Bureau leaders meeting in Moorhead, cited as evidence a letter the Congressman received this past week from the Department of Agriculture.

The letter was the Agriculture Department's response to Langen's request for an analysis and recommendation of a bill (H. R. 7346) which Langen introduced in 1961 and which is still pending before this session. The Langen bill would provide for increased production opportunities for both old and new sugar beet producers.

The Agriculture Department answer states, in part: "The Department's specific recommendations to the Congress on sugar legislation are now being developed, and, accordingly, it is not now prepared to make a recommendation concerning H. R. 7346."

Congressman Langen, who has worked tirelessly in the interests of domestic sugar growers, charged that the Agriculture Department statement was in direct contradiction to Secretary Freeman's statement in Moorhead on March 23rd, in which the Secretary dismissed as "politics" charges previously made by Langen that the Department was "dragging its feet" on sugar legislation.

"When you couple this latest Agriculture Department statement with a recent decision by the House Agriculture Committee to again postpone hearings on sugar legislation," said Langen, "you have definite and positive proof of the Department's failure to come forth with an official recommendation of any kind." Langen noted that such a recommendation is essential to the consideration and approval of sugar legislation this session.

"It now becomes increasingly evident that, again, sugar producers may have to be satisfied with a further temporary extension of the Sugar Act, and for this failure the Secretary of Agriculture and the Department will now have to accept full responsibility," concluded Langen.

State Convention of FFA May 6 to 8

Sessions Scheduled on 'U' M. St. Paul Campus

More than 2,400 of Minnesota's top farm boys will attend the 33rd annual convention of the Minnesota Association of Future Farmers of America (FFA) on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota Sunday through Tuesday, May 6-8.

They will take part in contests, business sessions and tours. The theme of the convention is "Honoring Rural Opportunities and Responsibilities."

The convention will open officially with a talent show Sunday evening, May 6, and will end with an awards assembly Tuesday afternoon. Judging contests will take place Monday morning.

An awards luncheon to honor State Farmers, District Star Farmers and National FA Foundation Award winners will be held Monday noon. The youths will also attend special "Know Your University of Minnesota" sessions on Monday and Tuesday afternoons. They will hear faculty members explain teaching, research and professional opportunities.

The delegates will leave the campus Monday evening to attend the 26th annual convention banquet in the St. Paul Municipal Auditorium. Governor Elmer L. Andersen and Darryl Eastvold of Mayville, North Dakota, national FFA vice president, will be principal speakers.

State Deaf Group Warns of Peddlers

Asserts Deaf Peddlers Lack Ethical Standards

At this time of year, Minnesota is invaded by a horde of "deaf peddlers" devoid of ethical standards and undeserving of patronage or sympathy. This is the warning sounded by Leo Latz of Minneapolis, a member of the board of directors and chairman of the peddler suppression committee of the Minnesota Association of the Deaf, a 77-year-old organization with more than 800 members.

"Here," says Mr. Latz, "are a few pertinent facts to enlighten the hearing public in regard to this peddling menace:"

The peddling racket is the worst evil confronting America's deaf citizens today.

Either individual peddler or organized gangs hawk cheap wares from house to house over wide and fertile territory.

In every instance, the peddler calls attention to his deafness with a pitiful note, hoping to obtain favor thru pity.

A good "actor-peddler" can easily pocket from $50 to $100 a day—far more than the average working man's earning.

The "peddler" is actually a beggar, asking for alms by capitalizing on a handicap and selling worthless wares for all he can get.

This type of peddling is readily detected by the manner in which it is carried out: Playing on sympathy is a trick of the trade.

Members of the association agree that the law-abiding deaf citizens do not ask for pity. They scorn it. They do not expect or need charity. The deaf as a class are capable workers. They merely ask a chance and a fair hearing in the courts of public opinion.

Advises Reading Lawn Seed Label

'U' M. Horticulturist Says Important Data Is Given

If you are buying lawn seed this spring, read the label.

The label will show the percent, by weight, of each variety in the mixture. It will also show the per cent germination, the amount of inert and worthless matter and the amount of weed and other seeds the mixture contains.

According to D. B. White, University of Minnesota horticulturist, a good grade lawn mixture will contain at least 75 per cent permanent grasses, such as bluegrass or fine leaved fescue.

For sunny locations, 50 to 75 per cent of the mixture should be bluegrass and 25 to 50 per cent creeping red (fine leaved) fescue. Generally, ryegrass should make up no more than 25 per cent of any mixture.

Lawn grass mixtures with no more than 5 per cent red top, as a nurse grass, are also acceptable so long as the rest of the mixture is made up of permanent grasses.

For shady locations, 50 to 75 per cent of the mixture should be creeping red fescue and 25 to 50 per cent bluegrass. Rough stalked bluegrass also does well in the shade.

So, don't buy blind; always look for and read the label when you buy. It is required by the Federal Seed Act to tell you what you are buying and assure you that you are getting it.

Young Republican Group to Convene at St. Louis Park

More than 300 Young Republican League members from throughout Minnesota are expected to attend the YRL state convention this weekend, May 4 and 5, at the Ambassador Motor Hotel in St. Louis Park.

The convention opens with registration and a welcoming reception beginning at 5 p. m. Friday, May 4. Governor Elmer L. Andersen will address the delegates at 10 a. m. Saturday morning. General business sessions, election of State officers and committee reports will consume most of the day.

State Republican Chairman Robert Forsythe will present the awards for outstanding Young Republican Club, oustanding Mr. YRL and outstanding Miss or Mrs. YRL.

Girl Scouts Announce Four-Level Structure

Names for four age levels within the Girl Scout program, to replace the three-level structure that the organization has used since 1938, were announced today by Mrs. Charles U. Culmer, Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

Beginning in September 1963, age groupings for the 2,685,000 girls in Girl Scouting will be as follows: Brownie Girl Scouts, aged 7 and 8 years; Junior Girl Scouts, aged 9, 10 and 11 years; Cadette Girl Scouts, aged 12, 13 and 14 years; and Senior Girl Scouts, aged 15, 16 and 17 years. Until that time, troops will continue in the present pattern of Brownie Scouts aged 7 through 9, Intermediate Girl Scouts aged 10 through 13, and Senior Girl Scouts aged 14 through 17.

The sequence of names, according to Mrs. Culmer, has been selected to give a feeling of progression through the entire Girl Scout age range of 7 through 17 years. "Brownies" is the popular name for the youngest members of the Girl Guide-Girl Scout movement around the world. "Junior" indicates that the girls just beyond Brownie Girl Scout age look forward to moving on into the more advanced levels within the program.

"Cadette" is an adaption of the word "cadet" used in its historic sense to describe a younger son of a great family. The Cadette Girl Scout, as the second oldest daughter or sister in the Girl Scout family, is training herself for her future. "Senior" clearly identifies the status of the high school age group as the oldest girl members in Scouting.

The background for program change was supplied in part by two studies conducted for the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A. by the Survey Research Center, University of Michigan, 1955-1958. The first study dealt with needs and interests of adolescent girls, both within and outside the Girl Scout organization, and the second study with attitudes of Girl Scouts and their leaders toward the existing program.

There will be no change in the fundamental elements of the Girl Scout program, which were shown by the University of Michigan study to be as valid today as they were 50 years ago. The entire structure will be streamlined, however, and a careful design for progression will be built on the development pattern of girls growing up in the United States of America in the 1960's. A major objective is to make the Girl Scout program of informal education a more effective complement to the present-day school curriculum.

The new age levels will become effective with the simultaneous release of four handbooks for girls in September 1963. Preparations for a smooth transition in the fall of 1963 are already under way in all communities, according to Mrs. Earl Benson, Stephen, president of the Northwestern Minnesota Girl Scout Council.

Masons to Award Two Scholarships

Minnesota Grand Lodge to Confer $500 Awards

Two $500 scholarships will be awarded each year to Minnesota high school seniors, a boy and a girl, by the Grand Lodge of Masons of Minnesota, it is announced by Grand Master Harvard B. Olson of Minneapolis, and Dr. Rufus A Putnam, superintendent Minneapolis public school and chairman of the statewide Masonic scholarship committee.

The scholarships will be awarded to the winners of an essay contest on the subject "What the Public School System Does for America," to be used only for the further education of the winner at college and trade school level.

Local educators will administer the program at each high school in the state, in cooperation with the Master of the local Masonic lodge.

Essays to qualify must be no more than 500 words in length and submitted by a student certified by the high school principal as a member in good standing of the senior class and interested in going further with his or her education.

The contest will begin in September 1962, and essays must be submitted by January 1963. Winning essays from local contests will be judged in February 1963 by a state committee to be appointed by Dr. Putnam.

The two winning essayists will be announced at the Masonic Grand Lodge meeting in March 1963. The scholarships will be payable at the beginning of the 1963 school year for use at any accredited college, university, or trade school.

"I have long contended that in giving aid — military or economic — the most generous allocations should go to friends and allies who have demonstrated reliability and willingness to resist the enemies of freedom. Others should receive aid only if it is clearly demonstrated the grants actually strengthen American security.

"The list of places where our aid will do us no good or be used to advance communist objectives is too long to detail. The fact is, we are squandering America's subsance and endangering our currency and economy by aiding many wrong countries and wrong causes."

—Senator Barry Goldwater

Vavoulis Re-elected

George Vavoulis, who spent several years of his youth in Thief River Falls, was reelected last week for a second term as mayor of St. Paul. The election of Vavoulis two years ago was a surprise because St. Paul seldom elects mayors who are not democrats. This year his opponent asked for votes mainly because he was a good DFLer. Vavoulis devoted his campaigning to discussions of the problems of the city and representing conservative views as to what should be done about them.

He has proven himself to be a good administrator. Maybe time will find a place for him in the State Capitol.

Our School Needs

Now that a calm has followed the storm, the discussion of our school needs probably should be resumed. While there were important basic differences between the opponents and proponents in the bond election, there were areas of agreement. There was agreement for instance on the fact that there had been a substantial increase in school enrollment during the past ten years. Proponents of the bond issue however ignored the fact that during that period twenty additional classrooms had been built, in addition to the new rooms that were built for the vocational school.

There also was general agreement that there now is a need for additional classrooms. There is a big difference of opinion as to how many are needed.

The excellent public opinion letter written by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoel called attention to problems that deserve more serious consideration. We agree with them that the junior and senior high school should be centrally located. Grade schools should be distributed as to be accessible within the areas they serve.

Ed Hamerski, a former resident, dropped into the office for a visit last week and, among other things, the school problem was mentioned. He made this wise observation, that "Thief River Falls doesn't need more schools—all it needs is a few more classrooms." The few classrooms we need can be added to existing elementary school plants. To build a new elementary school would mean another gymnasium and another kitchen, and also require another administrative staff.

How many additional classrooms do we need? At the present time we are providing for all of the elementary and secondary enrollment in our schools with the exception of two classes that are conducted in the Armory. Sections of the vocational school have been moved out of the new building that was intended for its use in order to provide more room for high school classes. Classes for retarded children are being conducted in a church school facility and as we understand it that is a desirable arrangement and should be continued. That is the extent of our present problem in the elementary and secondary field.

The vocational school needs are a separate problem and should be so considered. There is some merit in the idea that the vocational school should be housed in a building of its own. Certainly the school should not be scattered as at present, but the present scattered arrangement is recognized as a temporary solution.

Providing a suitable building for the vocational school should not be much of a problem. All that is needed is a business-type structure and preferably it should be centrally located. No playground is necessary for this school nor is a gymnasium required. Such a building should be made available by 1965 when some existing leases expire.

As for the old Washington, neither the engineer who represented the views of the architect nor the construction man who represented the views of the taxpayers, stated that the building is structurally unsound. Both of them recommended things that should be done if the building is to be retained and used. The architect's man presented a long list of things that he said are needed, even including a sprinkler system, but just why it should have a sprinkler system he did not point out. The building is not an old people's home nor a hotel, and a sprinkler system would save no lives. All that it could save would be the building itself, and the only people who would be unhappy if the old Washington were destroyed by fire would be the insurance men.

The construction man was more moderate in his recommendations and we are satisfied that he was sure of his facts when he said the building is structurally sound.

And putting all of the problems together we are sure that sensible solutions can be found for all of them without any great outlay of funds. Most of the things that should be done can be done gradually.

Until 1965 our school tax remains at its present peak. In 1965 the payment due on the bond principal drops substantially. In the meantime let's do only those things that must be done at once.

Dr. Wilson is Right

Dr. O. Meredith Wilson, president of the University of Minnesota, will not interfere in the selection of a speaker by any "approved organization" of students. And so on Wednesday the Socialist Club members will have as their speaker a leading U. S. Communist, Benjamin A. Davis, now under indictment in Washington for failing to register as a Red with the government.

Dr. Wilson will be criticized for his decision but we think he came up with the right answer. The right to differ and to freely express our views is one of the fundamentals of American liberty. We can see no good reason why Americans should not be informed on Communism or any other ism. Our one wish is that our young people would be better informed on Americanism and the American economic, free-enterprise system.

We were encouraged recently by some evidence that our educators are becoming concerned about how little of economics is taught in our schools. From a recent report from the National Education Association we pass along these interesting observations:

"In the United States, the principles of business and economics are a major factor in determining how the people live, and yet business education in the nation's high schools is composed primarily of courses in specialized routine business subjects . . .

"Economics is usually not offered at the secondary-school level, and there has been little or no reason for these teachers to include it in their field of concenration. Economics has, in short, been consigned to a sort of no-man's-land with regard to who should teach it, and as a result it has seldom been taught.

"In the United States there is a tentative consensus about the best kind of economy for a free society. We place high value upon freedom of enterprise, believing that each individual should be free to enter any line of endeavor for which he is qualified.

"We believe in freedom of choice, which involves such choices as spending or saving income. If income is spent, then choices must be made with respect to alternative goods and services. If income is saved, then the choice must be made with respect to the disposition of the savings.

"We believe in freedom of contract and have placed only minor restrictions delimiting the area within which contracts can be made and enforced.

"We believe in the private ownership of property, including almost all personal property and most of the means of production.

"Finally, we believe in the free market economy and in profit as a motivating force. More than any other economy of the world, we have relied upon free people, subject to only minor controls and regulations, to promote the general welfare. In the political sphere we have regarded the representative form of government as most compatible with the goals of enhancing the free exercise of initiative by individuals.

"If American citizens are to think intelligently regarding economic problems, certain analytical tools must be possessed by large numbers of these citizens. These analytical tools can be acquired by any student capable of understanding such courses as chemistry, physics, or algebra."

A Khruschev Constitution

A 97-man commission, headed by Premier Khruschev, has been named by the Supreme Soviet to draw up a new constitution to replace the one drafted in 1936 by Joseph Stalin. This will be Russia's fourth Communist constitution, the original having been adopted in 1918 and replaced in 1924.

It is expected that this will be a further departure from the original Marxist document and will place more emphasis on individual freedom. The Khrushchev government has been moving in that direction. Maybe a hundred copies of our Constitution should be printed in Russian and distributed among the members of the commission.

Interesting Opinions

"Psychologically, there are two dangers to be guarded against in old age. One of these is undue absorption in the past. It does not do to live in memories, in regrets for the good old days, or in sadness about friends who are dead.

"One's thoughts must be directed to the future and to things about which there is something to be done. The other thing to be avoided is clinging to youth in the hope of sucking vigor from its vitality..."

Youth Without Jobs

Youth unemployment has become a national problem of serious proportions Dr. James Bryant Conant has called it "social dynamite". In a series of Saturday Evening Post articles Judge Mary Conway Kohler referred to "the waste of a million lives."

Minnesota is not without its share. In February we had 23,000 unemployed young people under the age of 25. At the same time there were many job openings in certain crafts and skills. Many of the unemployed young people are school dropouts with no particular training nor experience.

Last week we held the 8th biennial conference on Children and Youth. Over 1200 people participated—youth, labor leaders, businessmen, social workers, government officials, clergymen and many others. Youth employment and training was the theme.

For two days speakers (Judge Kohler was one), panels, and workshops explored the whole question and much good thinking resulted. Here were some findings.

Regional and local groups must be used to work on summer employment for youth. We made a start on this last year and a great many young people were placed. Plans are already underway for a far larger activity this year.

Every effort should be made to keep youngsters in school, directed toward academic or vocational training. We need to put more emphasis on vocational training—particularly to see that it is kept up-dated to modern industrial requirements.

Every vocation and occupation should command respect and appreciation. Any good workman has an essential dignity. We must continue the battle against discrimination in employment. Our highest rate of unemployment is among youth—but it is twice as high among minority groups as among others.

Judge Kohler, speaking nationally, felt the apprenticeship program could be greatly expanded and we are looking into this possibility for our own state.

Commissioner of Corrections Turnbladh said that a study revealed that over half of the commitments to the Youth Conservation Commission would not have occurred had the youth been employed.

I want you to know we are coordinating all state departments on a continuing drive to solve this vexing problem. You can help locally. For suggestions write the Governor's Advisory Council on Children and Youth, 310 State Office Building, St. Paul 1, and ask for the booklet "Disillusioned Yourth". President Kennedy has called this the No. 1 domestic problem. Everyone should cooperate to solve it.

Second Bond Election Is Ordered at School May 21

As a result of a petition presented to the Thief River Falls board of education at a special meeting Tuesday evening, a second election on the issuing of $1,595,000 in bonds for school construction will be held this month. The election will be held on Monday, May 21, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. in the same room at Lincoln high school where the initial election was held.

In other action of primary interest to district residents, the board voted an eight-hour school day, discontinuance of all class grouping in all elementary and high schools and discontinuance of the acceleration program in all but the 12th grade for the 1962-1963 school year. In recognition of an engineer's report, the board also ordered that the second story of the Old Washington school not be used for classes and that an advertisement for rental of two elementary classrooms be published.

The petition presented to the board stated "We, the undersigned, hereby petition to have another school bond election before the end of the school term, the polling place to be in the Old Washington school." The petition contained 306 signatures with 50 required to compel the board to grant the petition. The polling place and time, however, is legally given to the board which decided on the same room as used in the previous election.

To provide educational opportunity for all elementary youngsters, the board also ordered the hiring of two additional teachers for the Knox school, as well as advertising for two rental classrooms, which would meet at least minimum health and safety standards. If suitable rooms cannot be found by July 1, it is possible that kindergarten classes may be discontinued for the coming year. Classrooms must accommodate 30 youngsters and have an area of about 600 square feet.

No Acceleration or Grouping

In order to utilize all classrooms to the fullest extent, all grouping and acceleration programs on the elementary level will be discontinued. This will mean that teachers will have classes of pupils with widely varied educational capability and be required to teach on a median basis.

With the eight-hour day, which will be used on the junior and senior high school level only, about two-thirds of the high school students from the city will begin school at 8 a. m. and finish the day of classes at 3 p. m. The remaining third of city youngsters and all rural high school students will start school at 9 a. m. and complete classes at 4 p. m.

"We wish to make it clear that this is possible for the 1962-1963 school year only because the senior class next year will be only 158 students," stated M. R. Hankerson, superintendent of schools. With 190 students in the sophomore class this year and 220 in the

Assure New Industry In Thief River Falls Area

New York Co. Buys Feed Plant, Contracts Acres

Assurance that a new industry will be established this year in Thief River Falls was made Tuesday when 52 area farmers signed contracts with Valley Feed and Supply Company, Inc., to raise red and white millet and sunflowers on contract. The seed produced by the farmers will be purchased and processed locally for re-sale as bird seed throughout the nation.

Valley Feed and Supply company, the contracting firm, has headquarters in Spring Valley, N. Y., and plants located in several other states. They have made arrangements for the purchase of the the feed and seed plant of Farmers Co-op Grain and Seed company just south of Lincoln high school and requested an option for purchase of the main elevator at the same site if sold later. The plant will be used for buying, storing, cleaning and processing sunflowers and millet grown in this area.

As a result of sale of the elevator property, Farmers Co-op will build a new expanded and improved seed-and-feed plant at their property on Dewey av. N. Included in the new facility, which is to be competed within 90 days, will be a certified seed processing plant. The seed plant itself will be completed at a later date.

Only seven of the 52 contract signers Tuesday requested sunflower acreage with a total of 280 acres under contract. Millet of either the red or white varieties was in demand with the quota of 500 acres of each reached with 45 contracts signed. Farmers from Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties contracted for acreage at the meeting. Farmers interested in sunflower production but who did not attend the Tuesday session may contact Roland Larson at the Chamber of Commerce office or Paul Steimaschuk at the Pennington county extension office.

Company President Here

Attending the meeting as representatives of Valley Feed and Supply company were George Plitt, company president, and Dean Washburn, manager of the firm's plant at Wellington, Ohio. Plitt reviewed the work done and product sold by the company as well as the contract with seed producers. The firm began 18 years ago and sells a mixture of cracked corn, wheat, hulled oats, red and white millet, sunflowers and other seed under the brand name of "Pride of the Valley."

The mixture is packaged in five, 15, 25, 50 and 100-pound bags and sold as wild birdseed. Plitt has a background in feed nutrition and stated at the meeting that his company's product is "the finest of its kind in the country."

Council To Open Bids May 15 On $285,000 Bonds

From 1961 Records

Analysis Shows Farm Earnings Down $1,100

Farm earnings for Northwestern Minnesota farmers in 1961 dropped an average of $1,100 from the previous year as a result of low turkey prices and dry weather which reduced normal crop returns. The figure was gleaned from the 1961 farm record analysis report of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school which has recently been completed under the direction of Fred Sorensen, agricultural coordinator for the school.

Records analyzed at the school came from Lancaster, Roseau, Greenbush, Karlstad, Goodridge, Middle River, Plummer and Thief River Falls. Record analysis conducted at the school analysis center each year is designed to provide cooperating farmers with the information necessary to make sound management decisions. Goals of the program are improved management practices and higher earnings for the cooperating farmers.

This year the average cooperator in the program had an investment of $30,344 in farming. Return to the farmer for his share of the capital invested and family labor was $2,958 as compared with $4,045 in 1960. The 11 most profitable farms in the program had earnings of $6,700 as compared with $6,912 in 1960. The 11 least profitable farms had a loss of $1,750 as compared with earnings of $1,849 the previous year.

"Factors controlled by nature have a great deal to do with earnings, but there are also a number of factors over which the farmer has some control," Sorensen stated. "Some of these important factors are choice of crops, crop yields, farm operating expenses, feeding efficiency and choice of livestock enterprise".

Return to the farmer for his land and labor on the various crops produced during 1961 as compared with 1960 is as follows:

Oats	$5.42	$17.33
Barley	4.82	9.36
Flax	9.51	15.93
Wheat	15.66	38.92
Alfalfa Hay	2.48	5.47
Corn Silage	8.96	8.55
Soil Bank Hay	-.27	none

Weather was responsible for much of the drop in returns from crops. Little or no rain was received until July 10 and even crops which had good moisture conditions to start suffered from severe drought conditions.

Livestock Helps

"Livestock enterprises took up some of the slack last year. With government support prices up on dairy products, dairy cows showed a nice return where production per cow was good," Sorensen said. Seven farmers selling grade "A" milk

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Von Wald of Westminister, Calif. formerly of this city, announce the marriage of their daughter, Karen Joy, to Lloyd D. Kemph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kemph of Wilmington, Calif.

The double ring ceremony was held at the Chapel in the Wildwood with Rev. Fred Schroeder officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attired in a floor length gown of white satin, nylon and chantilly lace. Her bodice of lace over satin featured a scalloped neckline with sequins and long sleeves of lace. A bonnet crown edged with lace held her illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of gardenias with sweet peas on the streamers.

Kay Triplett, friend of the bride, attended as maid of honor. She wore a gown of powder blue nylon and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Morris De Sisto, brother-in-law of the groom and Richard L. Kemph, brother of the groom, served as usher.

Mrs. Von Wald chose for her daughter's wedding a figured blue silk dress with black accessories while the groom's mother wore a powder blue dress with white accessories. Both grandmothers of the bride were present.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. Janice Nordhagen, cousin of the bride, attended the guest book, while Mrs. Oren Nordhagen, aunt of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. George Nordhagen, aunt of the bride, poured and served the coffee and punch and Mrs. Charles French and Mrs. Leo Long were in charge of gifts.

Elaine's CHATTER

No doubt the most courageous man in the country outside of John Glenn, is one Mr. Moore, a fashion authority in New York.

He had the fortitude to come right out and say he thinks Mrs. J. F. Kennedy wears her dresses too short and her hair is stringy!

It simply had to be a man to say that; no woman would dare . . . would sound too much like cream being lapped from a saucer. However, in spite of the fact that most people think Jackie is the smartest and most attractive First Lady ever . . . many agree with Mr. Moore. Let's face it girls, knees just aren't pretty, whether they are fat, skinny or in-between, that is except on babies.

Most of the confusion in skirt lengths is caused by measuring without sitting down. While you are standing, the knees are covered, but when you sit down . . . up goes the skirt and all the king's horses could not pull it down far enough to cover. There is an attractive length for every woman; it is just a matter of finding it.

We at ELAINE'S have dresses designed for tall, regular, medium, petite, junior and junior petite figures. If you choose a dress with a full skirt, it can be worn a bit shorter. Sheaths are slenderizing but should be just a bit longer. Of course fabrics make a difference too.

Let us help you find the style and fabric just for you . . . it is waiting for you at ELAINE'S.

FOR ANYONE WHO MIGHT CARE: There are a couple of 'guys' that are getting their 'sticks' out for golf . . . one is known as Grandpa No. 1, the other is Grandpa No. 2. These two "creeps" are already talking about spots . . . you give them 3 strokes and they'll beat your brains out, give them 2 strokes and they won't talk to you all around the course.

There is another guy that answers to the name of "Brownie". His putting stance is a sight to behold. Picture this . . . his right foot on home plate, left foot on third base, cup on pitchers mound . . . he strokes the ball and it ends up on first base. His remark! "Guess I didn't have it lined up just right." WOW!!!

Mothers day isn't too far away, remember her with a gift from ELAINE'S . . . we'll gift wrap it too.

Leaders of Groups to Aid Retarded Children Confer Here April 28

At a special meeting held April 28 in Thief River Falls, almost 50 officers and key leadership personnel from associations for retarded children in Northwestern Minnesota discussed how to expand association services to parents, professional workers, community groups, and the mentally retarded children and adults themselves.

The day-long session, fifth of seven such meetings being held this spring throughout the state by the Minnesota Association for Retarded Children, met at Zion Lutheran church with Mrs. Richard Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, president of the Pennington-Red Lake association, the host chapter, presiding.

The Thief River Falls Mrs. Jaycees served coffee during both morning and afternoon sessions.

Also taking part in the meeting was Dr. T. C. Moos, Moorhead dentist, who spoke to the group on special dental care facilities for the retarded.

The eight associations for retarded children which serve the 13 counties in the state association's Northwest Region were represented at the meeting.

Leaders for the regional meeting were two members of the state association staff: John Bertrand, Duluth, field representative for northern Minnesota, and Virginia Brainard Kunz, Minneapolis, public information director.

The program included sessions on how to expand and strengthen leadership; finances and public education; how to plan interesting and effective programs, and how to organize a wide variety of special projects.

New Industry Is Assured in TRF; Contract Signed

In outlining stipulations in the contracts offered area farmers, Plitt stated that the agreement must be of mutual benefit in order to be effective. "You can depend on us as a market for your products and we must depend on you to supply us with a product which we can resell," he said.

Make Seed Available

Valley Feed and Supply will furnish seed of approved varieties at cost to the farmers and deduct payment from seed harvested in the fall. Millet seed will sell for $4.25 per hundredweight and sunflowers at a maximum of $15 per hundredweight. Fall payment agreed in the contract will be $2.25 per hundredweight for millet and $4.75 per hundredweight for sunflowers.

Millet will be accepted only at 10 per cent moisture or less and sunflowers at about 13 per cent moisture. Delivery will be taken from harvest to March 15, 1963, with payment to be made upon processing of weight slips after delivery. Prices to be paid are for seed delivered to the company plant and cleaned at the plant.

Roland Larson, executive secretary of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, stated that this city was considered among several others for establishment of the plant. It was selected because of the cooperation received from local businessmen, Jobs, Inc., directors and management of association and interest of area farmers. It is hoped that a greater amount of sunflower acreage can be obtained to bring the total near the quota of 500 acres requested by the company.

"Several trial plots of maple peas, field peas, milo and other crops will be planted on a trial basis this summer and if they prove adaptable may be grown in this area on a quantity basis in coming seasons.

The company is also considering the merits of a dehydrated sheep manure plant which would process fertilizer from sheep manure. Investigation into the possibilities of such a venture is now underway and results will be announced at a future date.

Analysis Shows Income Drop for Farmers in Area

averaged 375 pounds of butterfat per cow and a return above feed cost per cow of $251.89. Twenty three grade "B" dairy farmers averaged 317 pounds of butterfat per cow and had returns of $138.67 above feed cost per cow. Five farmers sold cream and averaged 294 pounds of butterfat per cow. They had a return over feed cost per cow of $115.59.

Sheep flocks in the area averaged 91.5 ewes per flock and had an average lambing percentage of 124. The value produced per ewe was $22.17 with feed costs running $12.16, leaving a return over feed cost per ewe of $10.01. Some sheep flocks showed a return over feed cost of over $20.00 per ewe.

Beef cow herds showed gross returns of $114.72 per animal unit and a return above feed cost of $61.30. Feeder cattle showed a return above feed cost of $4.82 per hundredweight of beef produced.

Hogs averaged $7.36 return above feed cost per hundredweight produced. Feed costs for this enterprise averaged $9.72 per cwt.

Feeder Pigs Improve

"Feeder pig production is a relatively new enterprise in our area," Sorensen noted. "The Wisconsin Feeder Pig Marketing Co-op started buying pigs in our area last May. The returns from this enterprise look very promising and the feeder pig enterprise fits in well on many of our farms. This past year's report contains the records on 110 litters of feeder pigs.

"The gross return per litter was $108.57 with feed cost running $57.81, leaving a return above feed cost of $50.70 per litter. It takes about 20 hours of labor to produce a litter of feeder pigs. The returns per hour and per dollar of feed fed for this enterprise compares very favorable with others previously mentioned."

The Encyclopedia Britannica research service says "Systematic use of records seems to raise the managerial level of the farmers. Once a farmer starts using records to check up on his performance, it is likely that he will continue for some years to improve his position above that of his less systematic neighbors."

Interested farmers may contact their local vocational agriculture instructors, Fred Sorensen or Arnt Aune of the area vocational school.

New Election On School Bond Issue Ordered by Board

freshman class, such a schedule will not meet requirements for classroom spaces in following years."

Auditorium Study Hall

It was also approved at the board meeting to use the cafeteria and the auditorium seating area as study halls during the school day. Since all classrooms will be used at all times, even with the expansion from a seven-hour to an eight-hour day, the mass study hall is a necessity, school administrators stated. All class grouping in the high school will also be dropped for the coming term to permit more uniform size classes and the acceleration program will be dropped except for the 1962-1963 senior class.

Another possibility discussed by the board was the division of the cafeteria into four classrooms, thereby requiring rural students to bring their own lunches and city students to go home for the noon meal or bring lunches to school. Possibility of other rental spaces for vocational school classrooms, other than those already used by high school classes, to provide high school classrooms, was also discussed. It was felt that the action taken was the least regressive under existing circumstances, school administrators said.

Adopt Calendar

In other action, the board adopted a school calendar of 175 school days rather than 172 to keep pace with other schools in the North Central association. The increase will also permit a cushion for winter "storm vacation" without shortening planned vacations in the school calendar. As a result of the longer term, the school workshop for teachers will be held August 27 and 28 and school will begin on August 29 this year.

Resignations were accepted for the following teachers: Miss Joanne Borseth, home economics; John Johnson, speech and debate; Larry Schultz, science; Miss Loretta Huber, second grade; Mrs. Bernadine Hanson, elementary music; Betsy Legvold, fourth grade; and Mrs. John McGinley, vocational business. A year's leave of absence was granted to Charles Samuelson, biology, to permit him to take advantage of a scholarship at the University of Minnesota. Previous resignations were accepted for William Moeglein, physics, and Orville Jensen, fifth grade.

George Erickson was also rehired as superintendent of buildings and grounds at an annual salary of $5,900.

Diane Saurdiff Starred in Parish Production

"The Diary of Anne Frank", one of the most discussed plays of our day, will be the spring production of the Grygla Lutheran Parish Players, on Friday, May 4, at the Grygla school auditorium. Winner of the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Drama Critics Award in 1956, the play was dramatized by Frances Goodrich & Albert Hackett from the world-famous book, "Anne Frank: The Diary of a Young Girl." It tells the true story of a young girl's struggle to "grow up" under the most trying conditions—the Nazis terrors of World War II. It is a story filled with courage, humor, suspense and faith.

This is the second full-length drama to be presented by the Parish Players, a group of teenagers from the Grygla Lutheran Parish. Last year they presented "Little Women".

Miss Diane Saurdiff, who played "Jo" in "Little Women," will portray Anne Frank. Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Saurdiff of Grygla. Lee Sorenson, as Mr. Frank, heads a fine supporting cast.

Curtain time is 8:15 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission charged, but a free-will offering will be taken to meet the expenses of the production.

NOTICE OF SALE
$235,000 IMPROVEMENT BONDS & $50,000 STATE-AID STREET BONDS
City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, will meet at the Council Chambers in the Municipal Auditorium in said City on Tuesday, the 15th day of May, 1962, at 7:30 o'clock P.M. Central Standard Time, for the purpose of opening and considering sealed bids for, and awarding the sale of, $235,000 negotiable coupon general obligation Improvement Bonds of said City, to be issued under the authority of Minnesota Statutes 1957, Chapter 429, and $50,000 negotiable coupon general obligation State-Aid Street Bonds to be issued under Minnesota Laws 1959, Chapter 500, Article III, Section 18 (Minn. St. 162.18). Said bonds will be dated May 1, 1962, each in the denomination of $1,000, bearing interest at a rate or rates to be designated by the successful bidder, payable on February 1, 1963, and semi-annually thereafter on August 1 and February 1 of each year. The Improvement Bonds mature in order of serial numbers on February 1, in the amount of $5,000 in each of the years 1963 through 1970, $15,000 in 1971, $10,000 in each of the years 1972 and 1973, $15,000 in each of the years 1974 through 1983, and $20,000 in 1984, and the State-Aid Street Bonds mature in order of serial numbers on February 1, in the amount of $5,000 in each of the years 1963 through 1972. The Improvement Bonds maturing in 1979 and subsequent years will each be subject to redemption on February 1, 1978, and any interest payment date thereafter, in inverse order of serial numbers, at the option of the City, at par and accrued interest. Principal of and interest on the bonds will be made payable at any suitable national or state bank which the purchaser may designate within 48 hours after award of sale of the bonds. The City will furnish without cost to the purchaser and within 40 days after award of sale, the printed and executed bonds and the unqualified approving legal opinion of Messrs. Dorsey, Owen, Marquart, Windhorst & West, of Minneapolis, Minnesota. Delivery will be made without cost to the purchaser at Thief River Falls, St. Paul or Minneapolis, Minnesota, Chicago, Illinois, or elsewhere at his expense. The text of said legal opinion will be printed on the reverse side of each bond.

Sealed bids marked "Bid for $285,000 Bonds" may be delivered or mailed to the undersigned for opening at said meeting, and must be received prior to the time of said meeting. Each bid must be unconditional except as to legality of the issues, which may be conditioned upon the above-specified legal opinion. Each bid must be accompanied by a cashier's or certified check or bank draft in the amount of $5,700, payable to the City Treasurer, to be forfeited as liquidated damages in case the bid be accepted and the bidder shall fail to comply therewith. All bids must provide one basic rate of interest from date of issue to maturity, for all bonds having a common maturity date, but different rates may be prescribed for not more than four groups of consecutively maturing Improvement Bonds and not more than two groups of State-Aid Street Bonds. Any bid may also provide for additional interest in a total dollar amount of $3,525 for the Improvement Bonds and $750 for the State-Aid Street Bonds, to be payable on any or all of the bonds, to be represented by separate and detachable coupons. Each coupon rate and the sum of each basic and additional rate is required by law to be in an integral multiple of ¼ or 1/10 of 1% per annum. Bids will be preferred according to lowest net interest cost to the City. No oral bid, and no bid of less than par and accrued interest will be considered, and the Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to waive any informality in any bid.

Dated May 1, 1962.

Prowler Ball Club Tips Warren 4-1

Sophomore Rick Jensen, in a route-going performance, pitched the Prowlers to a 4-1 win over the Warren Ponies in a district conference game played at Warren on Wednesday night. The youthful Prowler righthander gave up but four hits, whiffed ten batsmen, and doled out but two walks. Jensen had a shutout until the last half of the seventh when, with one out, Harley Marek was nicked by a pitched ball. Marek stole second and pinchhitter Bruce Peterson struck out. Paul Knutson laced the first pitch into left field for a double, scoring Marek with Warren's lone tally.

Jerry Cook, also a righthander, hurled a creditable game for the Ponies, giving up but four hits. Paul Klungness tagged Cook's offerings for three hits, including a triple to left field. Mike Aune banged out the other Prowler safety, driving a single into center field in the second inning, scoring John Aune from second with the game's first tally. John Aune put solid wood to a pair of pitches, but the drives were directly at left fielder Wayne Strickler for putouts.

In the Prowler half of the second, John Aune and Larry Poole drew walks, Mike Aune singled, scoring John Aune and with Larry Poole moving around to third. Dave Ellingson popped to the pitcher. Dick Johnson drew a walk to load the bases. Jensen lofted a fly ball to left field, with the left fielder muffing the ball. Larry Poole scored, but Mike Aune was forced at third on a quick recovery by Strickler.

In the fourth, with one out, an error, a pair of walks, a wild pitch, and an infield out, scored Dave Ellingson and Dick Johnson with the Prowlers' final tallies.

Warren made an early-inning threat when, in the second, with one out, Strickler doubled to right field, and Dick Rominski followed a scratch hit down the third base line. Jensen struck out Marek and Jerry Schaeffer to snuff out the threat.

The Prowlers will play Red Lake Falls here on Friday night. And on Monday afternoon, with game time at 4:30 p. m., the Prowlers will play Crookston Central at Crookston.

To the Dragon Relays

Coaches Rod Max and Quent Jones will take a squad of twenty-three Prowler trackmen to Moorhead on Saturday for participation in the Dragon Relays at Moorhead State College. Acording to present plans, coach Max intends to have Paul and Gary Klungness, Don Nicholson, and Orrin Joppru run the 880-yard relay; Risk Wold, Rolf Wangberg, and Paul and Gary Klungness in the sprint medley relay; and Art Koglin, Joppru, Nicholson and Roger DeLap in the mile relay.

The four-team meet that was scheduled to be held here on Tuesday afternoon developed into an informal two-team match, between the Prowlers and the Middle River Skippers. The Oklee Bobcats and the Sacred Heart Eagles failed to make an appearance for the meet.

And next Tuesday afternoon, on the athletic field here, the Northwest conference tournament will be held. The Prowlers, who are the defending chapions, are expected to make a strong bid to retain the title they won last season at Crookston. There are some excellent races shaping up, and several records are in jeopardy.

Pretty Much of a Blank

The brook trout season opened last week-end, but from the reports that have filtered in to the office, the results were very poor. Cold weather and high water received much of the blame, with the fishermen claiming that the season is a week or ten days behind schedule because of the late break-up this spring.

It was the first time in many years that Leo Pahlen, who fishes the brush-lined Lost river and Nesset creek area, came home with an empty creel. And George Carlson, the veteran trout fisherman from Thorhult, was around the Clearwater river stretch near Pinewood, and he didn't see a trout brought to net. It was a poor opening, and Bill Ranta and Dr. Jim Disse, who were forced to miss the opening because of previous engagements, didn't miss anything.

Making Progress

The two former Northern Minny league ball players—Corky Johnson, who pitched for the Erskine Merchants, and Neil Junker, who caught for the Thieves—are making progress in their professional baseball careers.

Corky, who belongs to the San Francisco Giants, is on the pitching staff of the Tacoma Giants of the triple A Pacific Coast league. The Tacoma club is the top farm club of the San Francisco Giants, so Corky is just one rung below the major leagues. In his opening start, pitching against the Hawaii team, Corky was bounced pretty hard, giving up twelve hits and five runs in 5? innings.

Neil Junker, who had his spring training drills interrupted by a back injury that required surgery is with the Kansas City A's Binghamton club in the Class A Eastern league. A number of the most promising youngsters in the Kansas City farm system are with this club. 'Lew' Krausse, Jr. the $125,000.00 bonus pitcher, and who pitched a shutout in making his major league debut with the A's last season, is on the Binghamton pitching staff.

Miscellany

This past basketball season, Merlyn (Mickey) Hanson was named to the squad that represented the Twelfth Naval District in the Amateur Athletic Union basketball tournament played in the Kezar Pavilion in San Francisco. Mickey was a hot-shooting guard on the 1959 Prowler cage squad. Now that the baseball season has begun, Mickey will begin play service ball. . .Ken DeLap is a letterman member of the North Dakota Sioux tennis squad. The Sioux netmen have scored a pair of wins in early-season play, defeating Bemidji State 7-0, and Moorhead State, 9-1. Ken and his teammates will have a busy week-end, with three matches on the slate. On Thursday the Sioux meet Concordia, on Friday they participate in the Bison Invitational at Fargo, and on Saturday they host Concordia in a return match.

Prowler Nine Takes Lake Bronson 11 to 8

Mike Aune's triple to the fence in right-center, driving in the go-ahead runs in the sixth inning, capped a late-inning rally by the Prowlers and gave coach Ralph Skay's club a come-from-behind 11-8 win over the Lake Bronson Braves in a high school baseball game played here Monday afternoon.

The Prowlers will meet coach Mike Hajostek's Red Lake Falls Eagles here on Friday night, May 4. If the weather forecast is favorable the game will be a night affair, with game time at 8:00 p. m. If cold weather prevails, the game will be played in the afternoon, with game time at 4:30 p. m.

In Monday afternoon's windswept game, the heavy-hitting Lake Bronson club moved into a commanding 6-2 lead after four innings of play. The Braves clubbed the locals' starting hurler, Tony Poole, for seven hits and seven runs in the 4 and one-third innings that the righthander toiled. Dick Johnson came on in relief and received credit for the win.

In the fifth, Gerry Erickson led off with a ground single to left; Gary Klungness singled to right, with Erickson moving around to third base. Paul Klungness lofted a sacrifice fly to centerfield to score Erickson. John Aune and Larry Poole walked, Mike Aune drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, and Dave Ellingson plated a pair with a solid single to left field, and the Prowlers trailed by a run.

Lake Bronson picked up a tally in the top of the sixth, but the locals came back with a big five-run cluster, with Mike Aune's triple being the "power" drive of the rally.

The Braves, in the seventh, made a threat to score, but a sparkling game-ending double play snuffed out the rally. With runners on first and second and one out, Alan Anderberg, the Braves' lead-off batter, hit a line drive over second base, and Paul Klungness, on a diving catch, made a backhand stab of the ball, and from a sitting position made the short throw to Larry Poole to double Bill Olson off second base.

Watch Overloading of Electrical System

If your electric iron or electric fry pan isn't heating as fast as you think it should—or as hot as you'd like—the trouble may be that you're overloading the electric circuit.

Another indication of overload is dimming of lights or the TV screen when various appliances are plugged in.

However, if your fuses or circuit breakers are of the proper size, you'll receive a warning of an overload.

If these protective devices are the correct size, they'll let you know when you're putting too much of a burden on your wiring. The fuse will blow or the circuit breaker will pop open and cut off the current.

That's why it's dangerous to use a fuse too large for the circuit. You lose the protection it's designed to give, says Mary L. Muller, extension home improvement specialist at the University of Minnesota.

With too large a fuse, the demand may become too great for the circuit to deliver. The voltage will drop, wires may overheat, the insulation may melt and a short circuit can result.

Should the voltage drop low enough, motors that turn on automatically—those on your furnace and refrigerator—may attempt to start but never develop running current speed. Instead, they will churn away on high starting current and burn themselves out. Motors on vacuum cleaners, electric mixers or fans also will overheat and may need to be replaced.

So, if you're having what looks like a power shortage, check your circuits and calculate the load on each. A 15-ampere circuit will carry a load of 1650 to 1800 watts; a 20-ampere circuit can handle 2200 to 2400 watts.

If the wattage of all of the light bulbs and appliances on each circuit exceeds these figures, you'll have to take something off the circuit, Miss Muller says. Maybe you can shift an appliance to another outlet to get it on a less used cirult.

Before you buy any new major electric appliance, check it to be sure you have enough power to operate it. A "power-starved" appliance will not operate at full capacity or give you the performance you expect.

In the long run it's best to install adequate wiring to handle lights and electrical appliances. Secure a qualified electrician to do this job.

411 Schools Order Arbor Day Trees

Trees Supplied without Cost by State Nurseries

The Conservation Department reports that 411 schools have ordered trees to be planted in Arbor Day ceremonies May 4.

In addition, several Minnesota schools have ordered shipments of up to 15,000 trees for planting in school forests, in windbreaks and shelterbelts, for erosion control and other conservation purposes.

To qualify for the trees, which are supplied without cost from state tree nurseries, schools must show they have adequate lands for a planting program and that the trees are desired for a conservation use rather than for decorative purposes.

Forest nursery chief Ray Clement said that schools planning a sizeable planting program for next spring should prepare the ground in late summer so that this part of the job is out of the way and the trees can be planted promptly when they arrive from the nursery in the spring.

Trees are usually ordered around Sept. 1st for delivery the following spring.

1962 Meeting of M. River Shipping Assn. Set May 11

Group Will Celebrate Its 45th Anniversary; Spong, Snyder to Speak

The 45th annual meeting of the Middle River Shipping association will be held in the Middle River high school Friday, May 11, at 8 p. m., according to Norman L. Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

Kenneth A. Snyder, secretary-treasurer, Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, and Carl L. Spong, Central Livestock association, So. St. Paul, will address the meeting.

Special invitations have been extended by the officers of the association to all former officers and directors to be present at this 45th anniversary meeting. The Middle River Shipping Association is one of the oldest cooperative livestock shipping associations in the Northwest. It was one of 600 cooperative shipping associations which organized and established on the South St. Paul market in 1921 their own farmer-owned and controlled selling agency, Central Livestock Association.

The colored film, "Western Sheep" will be shown. Door prizes will be awarded through drawings and lunch will be served at the conclusion of the meeting by the Cedar 4-H Club.

The association handled nearly $250,000 worth of livestock in 1961, which, according to the records of the association, is an all-time high.

Business to be transacted includes the election of two directors to fill the expired terms of William Maijala and John Wagner.

March Traffic in Minnesota Is Down

Drops Nearly Five Per Cent Below March, 1961

Travel on Minnesota's trunk highways in March fell 4.8 per cent below that of the same month a year ago, the Minnesota highway department reports. Reason for the drop was unusually heavy snowfall throughout the month.

Traffic counts are taken with 31 automatic traffic recorders located throughout the state, and while 22 locations showed decreases, the areas most affected by the weather were: T. H. 52 west of Sauk Centre; T. H. 10 east of Moorhead; T. H. 10 south of Royalton; T. H. 61 northwest of Red Wing; T. H. 61 southwest of Knife River; T. H. 212 west of Sacred Heart; T. H. 169 south of Onamia. Decreases ranged from 16 per cent at Sauk Centre to 11 per cent east of Moorhead.

There were some exceptions to this, with increases in traffic on T. H. 3(re-numbered T. H. 218) south of Rosemount; T. H. 169 northeast of Chaska; T. H. 52 north of Rochester; T. H. 61 north of Wyoming; T. H. 61 south of Dresbach; T. H. 53 north of Virginia; T. H. 3 north of Owatonna; T. H. 14 west of Rochester. Increases ranged from two per cent north of Rochester to 10 per cent south of Rosemount.

However, most of these increases were due to abnormally low traffic volumes recorded during 1961. Others were due to variables in weather conditions.

January and February showed decreases in traffic of 2.5 and 9.3 per cent, respectively, from a year ago.

Pedestrians Haven't Chance in Accidents

If you are walking or riding a bicycle and become involved in a collision with a motor vehicle, the chances of coming out of the encounter unscathed are but one in a hundred. This is borne out in the 1961 annual summary of motor vehicle accidents prepared by the Minnesota Highway Department.

During last year, 1,966 accidents involving a motor vehicle and a pedestrian were reported to the department. These resulted in 122 fatalities, while 1,962 persons were injured.

Simple addition indicates that a person was either killed or injured in every pedestrian accident that occurred.

The summary also shows there were 546 accidents reported involving motor vehicles and bicycles. Of these, 12 resulted in fatalities, 523 in injuries and 11 in property damage.

In 98 per cent of the bicycle accidents a person was either killed or injured.

During the same 12 months of 1960, there were 1,992 accidents involving pedestrians which resulted in the deaths of 115 persons and injuries to 1,973.

Although 1961 showed a slight drop in the total number of pedestrian accidents, there was a six per cent increase in fatalities and a slight increase in persons injured.

Comparative figures for the two years show a slight drop in bicycle accidents in 1961, 546 compared to 553. In 1961 there was a 14 per cent decrease in bicyclists killed and a slight increase in persons injured.

Nearly one-half of the pedestrian deaths were of persons under nine and over 75 years of age; while ten of the twelve bicyclists killed were between five and nine years of age.

"There is no learned man but will confess he hath much profited by reading controversies; his senses awakened, his judgment sharpened, and the truth which he holds more firmly established. In logic they teach that contraries laid together more evidently appear; and controversy being permitted, falsehood will appear more false, and truth more true."

—John Milton

Individual Responsibility

Before the government got into the charity business on a big scale, most of the charity activities were limited to individual and organization efforts. That method of providing for the needy had some notable shortcomings. Now the shortcomings are mainly with the programs that have been set up under government sponsorship and maintained by tax dollars.

But it is encouraging to know that while government agencies have assumed responsibility for much of the problem, individual and private organization charities still play an important part in the problem of providing for the unfortunate. The government has not taken over all welfare functions.

A survey by the American Association of Fund Raising Counsel reveals that private philanthropy continued in 1961 at an unprecedented rate in our country, reaching a total of $8,700,000,000. It is interesting to know that of this total more than $7 billion came from individuals.

"Federated giving" through united fund and community chest campaigns increased about five per cent from 1960. Religious organizations accounted for a little more than one-half of all the charitable giving reported.

It is good to know that our people still recognize the support of many worthy activities as an individual responsibility.

Fast Time Again

The season of confused time is with us again. In Manitoba and in Wisconsin fast time started last week. It will come to Minnesota the last Sunday in May. North and South Dakota will continue with standard time thruout the summer and in Iowa the matter will be decided by local option.

If there is justification for fast time it should be regulated and made uniform nationally. In the southern states there is little variation in the hours of sunlight in summer and winter and there is no call for daylight saving during the summer months. But a different time zone during the summer between the north and the south would be less confusing than the present mess.

A Direct Hit

That rocket that walloped the man in the moon on the back of his head was equipped to send close-up movies of the moon back to earth. This part of the experiment failed, but that failure should not detract from the encouraging fact that the Ranger 4 moonship did hit its target. We are glad to pass along the following comments made by the Christian Science Monitor.

"The designers and launchers of the Ranger 4 moonship deserve at least two cheers for Monday's performance.

"One is for setting the craft precisely on course toward an expected hit on the moon. This shows that Ranger guidance is of high quality, even if a control failure prevented the taking of television pictures or soft landing of an instrument package.

"The second cheer is to show support for and understanding of the devoted effort they are making to accomplish a very difficult task.

"The art of rocketry, of spaceship guidance and of electronics in general is being pushed to its utmost. It is understandable that there should be failures as this art is turned into functioning hardware in the Ranger craft. It also is to be expected that this development process will be crowned with eventual success.

Steel Prices

David Lawrence is one of several writers whose daily column is syndicated nationally who fears the consequences of President Kennedy's handling of the steel price situation. He thinks it may have a demoralizing effect on business generally that could result in economic distress. He states:

"A recession that could conceivably become a deep depression is as certain as day follows night if Kennedy continues to allow wage increases and then terrorizes and coerces business when it seeks costs with a rise in prices. Stability can be achieved now only by the enactment by Congress of a law to fix the standards of wage and price control and to entrust them to a commission to administer during the so-called emergency. This is an action that nobody likes, but which Kennedy has made inevitable."

It should be clear to everyone that wages cannot be raised without either raising prices or deferring price decreases that otherwise would have been possible because of automation and increased efficiency. The proper answer is price decreases, which increase the buying power of all of the people, increasing the demand for goods and eliminating unemployment.

President Kennedy could very properly have said some nice things about the steel industry and its good record of holding the line on prices. The industry had absorbed a wage increase of 19.6c an hour in 1959, and fringe benefits that cost 10.5c in 1960. The terms of the 1962 contract will mean another boost of 9.7c an hour, and the business reports indicate clearly that these increased costs were beginning to hurt.

Higher prices for steel is not the right answer for the problems of the industry. Until recent years we imported very little steel and our exports were high. In recent years this situation has changed and we now import more than we export. A price increase is not going to improve the competittive position of the industry.

But the underlying cause of the industry's difficulties is the steady increase in wages that have made price increases necessary. Each year since 1951 trere has been a boost in pay or increases in fringe benefits. The wage increases total 19.5c an hour and the cost of fringe benefits in that period totals 48.7c an hour.

During this period the steel industry, and all other industries, have had other cost increases that contributed to the price spiral. One of the big contributors to these cost increases has been government—government at all levels. The tax burden on business and industry cannot be absorbed by business and industry but must be passed along to the buyers of goods and services. It is an important factor in the price spiral.

David Lawrence is concerned about the consequences of the President's conduct and the effect it may have on our economy. And he is concerned about the possibility of our form of government undergoing a marked change. He asks:

"Is this democracy, or is it the forerunner of a quasi-fascist system. Is it a government under a written Constitution, or is it a government by usurpation of legislative authority? Economic facts—unlike political maneuvers—do not depend on artificial "public relations." Business depends on confidence in the fairness of a government that operates under laws and rules which can be understood and are applied equally to all sides. Without such confidence there cannot be profits or prosperity or increased jobs. Without prosperity, treasury receipts from corporate taxes decline and the government's deficits pile up, thus pushing downward still further the purchasing power of the dollar. Loss of public confidence then leads to a psychology of inflation which breeds economic disaster."

Algeria Relaxes

Reports from Paris indicate that tension is finally relaxing in Algeria and it now appears that President de Gaulle's victory is complete. The Secret Army Organization that has been terrorizing the Moslems in an effort to get them aroused to a spirit of revenge and retaliation is now pretty well broken up.

De Gaulle's victory should do much to strengthen the relationship between the Western powers and the Moslem world. The people of Algeria, predominantly Moslems, will now organize their own government and decide for themselves what their future relationship with France will be. A peaceful co-existance, and cooperation now seems to be a definite possibility. That makes the world a little safer for all of us.

Job For Rails

(Waseca Journal)

Railroads have little influence in Washington but railroad workers have. Right now railroad men could strike a telling blow for their job security and they would be morally right in doing so.

There is no question that the railroads are hard hit by the trucks, by the highway buses, by the airplanes, and by river and lake barges. Some of the railroad troubles originate in government subsidies, particularly those to the airlines and the river barge lines.

Recently one railroad made application to reduce its rates on grain moving into the Southeast. Lower rates would make for more railroad volume and more volume is job insurance for every railroad worker.

But the rate applied for by the railroad was opposed by a government agency. Tennessee Valley Authority opposed the cut because it would cut into their subsidized barge line buhiness.

Here is a chance for railroad men to defend their right to a job by opposing government competition. If enough railroad men will write their Representatives in Congress opposing TVA's interference with the railroads, you can bet your last dollar that action will be taken and quick.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

That clergyman was an expert in human relations who was disturbed during a sermon by some noisy persons. He did not scold or manifest any sign of anger.

"I am always reluctant," he said quietly, "to expose those who misbehave during services, because of an experience I had some years ago. A young man who sat in front of me was laughing and making grimaces. I was annoyed and rebuked him severly. Later I was told that I had made a grave mistake. The man I had reproved was an idiot."

The noise-makers subsided.

WARNING!
Are you planning on getting a REAL DEAL on that graduation gift watch from one of the many "so-called" wholesale catalogs? Before you decide, please read what the FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION HAS TO SAY concerning only two of these popular "so-called" wholesale catalog brands.
The following is taken from the FTC News Summary of Dec. 6, 1961:
"Initial Decision (6914). A Federal trade commission hearing examiner has issued an order which would require the following watch company to stop overstating the number of jewels in their watches and misrepresenting that the watches are made entirely in the United States:
Waltham Watch Co., 231 So. Jefferson St., Chicago, Ill. (A Delaware Corporation which in 1957 was spun off the assets of the old Waltham Firm). 12-5-61.
Also taken from News Summary of the FTC Jan. 10, 1962 is the following:
"Order (6807) The Federal Trade Commission today ordered Helbros Watch Co., Inc., 48th 6 W. St., New York to stop misrepresenting the price and quality of the watches it sells and the guarantee on them.
Taking final action on its complaint of May 21, 1957, the Commisison adopted with minor modification an initial decision by hearing examiner John Lewis, who found that respondents (Helbros Watch Co.) have pre-ticketed their watches with ficticiously high retail prices. 1-10-62.
The Minnesota Retail Jewelers Assn. wish to protect you by disclosing such misrepresentation as pointed out above by the FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.
Why take a chance on so-called "wholesale operators" that understand little about watches other than ficticious price tags?
When choosing a fine watch its only wise to rely on the knowledge, experience and integrity of your local qualified jeweler. You'll receive honest advice, free gift wrapping and budget terms when making your choice. He'll also provide prompt dependable service for years to come — AND there'll be no misrepresentation of quality or prices.

FRANK SINATRA

Frank Sinatra Likes Demands Of Being A Producer-Star

Frank Sinatra's production "Sergeants 3," filmed in Panavision and Technicolor for United Artists release, is a spectacular with all of the ingredients of racking up record box office grosses throughout the world. The picture will open Friday, May 4 at the Falls Theatre.

It is Sinatra's second film, under his production aegis, for United Artists. Sinatra makes the decisions on budget, cast, story and logistics. It is a multi million dollar operation which could well keep its top executive on the go 24 hours a day, but Sinatra doesn't need nor have that much time for this is only one operation within his growing financial empire.

The producer-star sleeps only four hours a day and devotes of the 20 other hours to work. It is no big strain on him for he is one individual who thrives on work and can constantly render decisions on problems when absorbed with hundreds of others.

Among Sinatra's other interests are restaurants, a record company and hotels. All of these interests are functioning with great success and profits flowing in to provide more creative thinking for the head of the empire.

Sinatra is constantly on the telephone. His personal contact with talent, tycoons and politicians is one of the secrets of his success.

He is constantly on the lookout for original stories or ideas and is prolific in offering the latter himself. He also has a keen eye for businesses or properties which could interest him and with which he could make money.

Sinatra likes business and financing. He has found a new field in which creative thinking can pay off, but more important, it it one which he feels at home in.

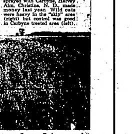
Facts it will pay you to know about
CARBYNE, the farm-proven post-emergence wild oat killer
How you can save time, work, moisture and money by controlling wild oats with Carbyne this year:



NORTH DAKOTA
By having this wheat aerial sprayed with Carbyne, Harvey Alm, Christine, N. D., made money last year. Wild oats were heavy in the "skip" area (right) but control was good in Carbyne treated area (left).

On 360,000 acres of crops last year, Spencer Carbyne proved it could boost profits for farmers by killing wild oats. Carbyne is recommended for use on Spring Wheat, Durum Wheat, Barley, Sugar Beets, Flax, Peas and Safflower—but before you decide whether or not Carbyne is right for you, read the facts below:

Farmers in our part of the world have been plagued for generations by wild oats. This damaging weed that cuts yields and profits is likely to infest nearly any crop—appear in any part of the field. But now, you can stop wild oats after they appear with a single spraying of Carbyne, the post-emergence wild oat herbicide.

How Carbyne Works:
You spray Carbyne directly on the wild oat plants. This stunts the plants and stops growth. Any wild oat plants that may not be killed are so severely stunted that they produce only small seed heads.
Just mix Carbyne with water, according to the instructions on the label, and spray when the majority of the wild oat plants are in the two-leaf stage. The second leaf may appear four days after emergence, and the third leaf within nine days. This gives you a full six-day period in which you can get the most effective results.

Spray Only Infested Areas
Farm-proven Carbyne takes the guess-work out of wild oat control. Because Carbyne is the one wild oat killer you apply after you see where the weeds actually are, you don't waste time or chemicals where there is no weed problem.

No Extra Tillage
Carbyne is the wild oat killer you never have to incorporate into the soil. Rough or ridged fields do not have to be smoothed prior to application. And there is no extra tillage for soil incorporation after application.
Every time you till your soil, you bring moist soil to the surface. This vital soil moisture evaporates and is lost! Carbyne application wastes NO valuable soil moisture.

More Profits Per Hour
You don't have to be an expert at arithmetic to figure out this one! The more trips you have to make through your fields, and the more acres you have to cover, the less profit you make per hour. So plan now to save those extra hours—hours you can use more profitably on all those other jobs you have to do.
Just one trip through your fields with Carbyne in your sprayer knocks out wild oats. Period.

Lowest-Cost Method
Because Carbyne lets you pinpoint your target and hit it . . . requires only one trip through the field . . . doesn't call for extra tillage . . . you get the most economical wild oat control yet developed. The actual cost for most close-seeded crops is as low as $3.00 per acre of actual weed-infested area, when growing conditions are good!

Turkey Growers to Vote on Marketing Order June 18 to 22

A referendum of turkey growers on a proposed national marketing order for turkeys will be held from June 18 through June 22, Edward A. Johnson, chairman of the Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, announced today. State and county ASC committees will conduct the referendum. The order is designed to provide the industry with means by which the marketing of turkeys can be djusted so as to assure fair returns to producers and reasonable prices to consumers.

If the order is made effective by the Secretary of Agriculture as a result of grower approval by at least two-thirds of those voting in the referendum — by number or by volume of production, it will be the first marketing order program to be operated on a nationwide basis for any farm commodity.

Eligible to vote in the referendum will be producers, including contract-producers, whose annual volume of production is large enough to be affected by the order and who engaged in the production of turkeys during the year 1961. Qualified cooperative associations are eligible to vote for their members.

Turkey growers ineligible to vote are those who produced and marketed less than 3,600 pounds of turkey (liveweight) in 1961, or producer-handlers who produced and handled not more than 100,000 lbs. of turkeys (liveweight) in their own handling facilities and who bought or sold not more than 5,000 pounds from or to other persons.

The chairman explained that polling places for individual producers — including corporations, partnerships, or any other business unit — will be the ASCS county offices in the county in which the producers' principal place of turkey production is located. Cooperative associations desiring to vote for their members must qualify not later than June 12, 1962, with the ASCS State office in the State where the associations' principal places of business are located. Ballots will be mailed to all known eligible producers and will also be available in ASCS county offices. Beginning June 18, ballots may be cast in person at the county office or by mail. Ballots must be delivered to the proper polling places not later than June 22, and those which are mailed must be postmarked not later than midnight June 22.

Northwestern Bell Announces Change Among Personnel

Additional Operators To Improve Service and Fill Transfer Vacancies

Recent personnel changes at Northwestern Bell Telephone company's Thief River Falls office have been announced by James O. Koller, manager of the local office. Among the changes are the following:

Carolyn Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Cummings of Thief River Falls, will finish her training to be an operator this week. Janet Thorstenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Thorstenson, and Mary Bennes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bennes, will start operator training in the next few weeks.

Other recent additions to the traffic department are Sandra Christianson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christianson, and Jean Sandvig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Sandvig. Mrs. Rochelle J. Hoard also has been added to the operator force through a transfer from Baudette.

"These additions to the operator force are intended to further improve long distance service in Thief River Falls," Koller said, "and to fill vacancies left by the transfers of Miss Gerry Sampson and Miss Marie Nelson to the Detroit Lakes business office."

The manager also noted that Arlen Booren of this city has been employed as an addition to the telephone construction crew serving this area. Robert Odegaard of Bemidji, who recently graduated from the electronics department of the area vocational-technical school has also been added to the construction department in St. Cloud.

ROBERT J. ANDERSON WITH FLEET IN MEDITERRANEAN

Robert J. Anderson, boatswain's mate seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Anderson of 507 S. Tindolph av., Thief River Falls, is serving aboard the attack cargo ship USS Capricornus, operating with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. Illegal Speed Is Main Cause of Car Accidents in 1961

Is Primary Factor in Nearly 30 Per Cent of Fatalities Last Year

Illegal or unsafe speed was again found to be the top contributing factor in fatal traffic accidents in Minnesota during 1961. It was the primary factor in 29.3 per cent of all reported fatal accidents, according to the Minnesota highway department's summary of motor vehicle accidents for 1961.

Speed ranked third as the primary factor in the total number of all reported accidents in 1961, with 12.7 per cent of the 71,646 traffic accidents reported.

Failure to yield right of way was the second greatest cause of fatal accidents, with 13.9 per cent of the total. This violation was the biggest cause of the total number of all accidents, with 22.6 percent.

Failure to yield right of way was basically a failure to use common courtesy.

Driving on the wrong side of the road (not in passing) was the third biggest cause of fatal accidents, resulting in 12.7 per cent of the total. However, it was the primary factor in only 4.4 per cent of the total of all accidents.

Of particular significance is the fact that only 1.3 per cent of fatal accidents, and 2.7 per cent of all accidents were deemed to be beyond the driver's control. Also that pedestrian violation was the cause of 12 per cent of fatal accidents and 1.9 per cent of total accidents.

Copies of the annual summary are available on request to the Safety Division, Minnesota Highway Department, St. Paul 1, Minn.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

WILDLIFE in Minnesota
by JIM KIMBALL

About two months ago this column carried an article proposing an ambitious program to teach the basic philosophy of conservation to the youth of this state. The response was so immediate and so enthusiastic that much of my time during the following weeks was spent in answering letters to enthusiastic supporters. It didn't take long to decide that one man could be either a game and fish director or start a youth program, but not do both. Since that time there has been a great deal of support for this program, the most important being that of our own Governor Andersen.

Now we can talk about youth conservation again because I am most pleased to report that Lloyd Lindvall has been appointed to spend full time in bringing this dream into reality. Lloyd is a young man with 14 years experience in our own warden service, three years of training in personnel management at the University, and a lot of imagination and ability to get things done. After his appointment we made another pleasing discovery. Lloyd also has some prowess as an artist.

Since Lloyd started work, March 15th, the program is starting to take shape. The first thing we must have, of course, is a competent corps of volunteer teachers —men and women who will equal the incomparable job now being done by the youth firearms safety instructors throughout the state. However, we must admit that while many men are well versed in the safe handling of firearms, very few people are prepared to start teaching the intricacies of the conservation of our wealth of natural resources without first having a little advanced training themselves. This means that step one must be a training school for the teachers and this step has been taken.

Through the cooperation of Judge Hella, Director of State Parks, and his competent people, we have arranged to take over the excellent facilities at Whitewater State Park during the week of August 19-24. As a matter of fact, we are now almost certain that we will put on a second session for a new group of teachers the following week, August 26-31. During each of these sessions we can handle about 115 teachers. The curriculum has not yet been prepared but it certainly will include studies of the interrelationship of all living things to each other and the importance of conserving all of our great resources. The skills which make outdoor living, hunting and fishing fun will also be part of the program, and we think the graduates should have no problem distinguishing a pintail from a mallard duck.

Of course, there are no funds to operate this program so we must ask for help. We are asking the sportsmen's clubs, service organizations, veterans, Jaycee's, churches, and all other civic-minded groups to get together and do the following: First, find competent people who will volunteer to take the training and teach the classes. If these people have had some experience in working with youth, teaching or have some background in science and biology, this is all the better. Second, we are asking the organizations to foot the bill for sending the teachers they have selected to the one-week training course to Whitewater State Park. This will involve transportation expense and $20 to $25 for meals. There will be no charge for lodging.

Of course, in addition to teachers we are going to need numerous books and publications, movies, slides, and all of the expensive things needed to make a program for boys and girls attractive and the things needed to carry on the clubs and organizations which we think will follow. We do not have any money for these things, either, so if you have a rich uncle looking for a worthy conservation cause, please remind him that the young people of this nation are our most valuable resource.

Heavy Snows Seen as Portent of Good Crop by Federal Reserve

Above normal precipitation this past winter has struck an optimistic note for farmers in most areas of the Ninth district, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis in its current Monthly Review.

Heavy snowfall, a welcome development in view of last summer's drouth which enveloped much of the western part of the district, has prompted increases in topsoil and subsoil moisture levels, although some areas in northern Montanan and northwestern North Dakota remain relatively dry in terms of subsoil moisture supplies.

The bank also reported indications of a good start for small grain crops this year, despite a general delay in farm work due to cold and wet climatic conditions this spring.

District cash farm incomes have increased 1 to 3 per cent from year earlier levels in spite of last summer's drouth, reported the bank, which attributed much of the gain in recent months to improved livestock and livestock marketings.

Nonfarm employment in the district appears to be gaining, according to the bank's estimate of 2.7 per cent increase this March over last March. Measurable gains have been noted over the year in weekly manufacturing earnings and in average nonfarm hours worked per week, while insured unemployment has declined 17 per cent.

Total district personal incomes have moved ahead in recent months, reaching approximately 5 per cent higher levels compared with a year ago.

Building permit valuation, industrial use of electric power, and bank debits show substantial gains, while the recent Easter buying brightened the picture in department store sales which had lagged since the first of the year.

The district's weekly reporting city banks noted a substantial growth in loan demand during the first quarter of this year, while country banks reported about normal demand. Total district bank deposits declined less than seasonally during the first quarter, as a result of substantial gains in time deposits, due to the advance in interest paid on them. Bank liquidity for the district as a whole, reported the bank, rose to a slightly improved level compared with the same period a year ago.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

How Important is an Inch

Not long ago Genevieve was thirty-seven inches tall. Soon she'll be thirty-eight. Just how important is that next inch?

It's all-important! Without that inch her growth will cease.

Folks sometimes underestimate the importance of a Sunday in Church or Sunday School. What difference, they think, can just one Sunday make?

But every day of worship or religious instruction adds its inch to our spiritual growth. And whenever we neglect the soul's needs, then, temporarily at least, growth ceases.

Children, and adults, too, need to keep on growing spiritually. How different our world could be if all of us reached the spiritual maturity God wants men to attain.

A Sunday, like an inch, is important. Next Sunday is all-important for all of us!

"Get's Better Each Year"

Visitors Give Views About State Area Music Festival

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

Competition is keen for high ratings when approximately 3,000 high school students battle in groups and as individuals at the state area music festival held in Thief River Falls. This year was no exception.

The crowd constantly milling about the bulletin board where ratings were posted periodically as judge's decisions were announced was proof of the interest devoted by students in comparing their work with that of other schools. Word spreads quickly to other members of a group when one member notes an A rating.

It is gratifying to note the good behavior of the bulk of students and the interest shown by them in other students participating. As bands and choral groups performed Saturday, the auditorium and gymnasium had large crowds of students and competing directors comprising an appreciative audience. Here are some comments from visitors attending the event.

Jill Harris, senior from Red Lake Falls, believes the contest is something which "makes us work hard all year." She has played clarinet in the band for the past four years and for the past four years and for the same number of years the band has received an A rating in the district and state area contests. Planning to attend the University of North Dakota this fall, she will probably play in the band there if she can find the time. In addition to music interests she is an ardent golfer and frequent visitor to Thief River Country Club.

MORE SUNFLOWER ACRES NEEDED TO FULFILL CONTRACT WANTS

Farmers throughout the Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall county area who are interested in producing sunflowers on a contract basis are urged to contact the Pennington county extension office or Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce immediately, according to Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent.

Valley Feed and Supply Company, Inc., of Spring Valley, N. Y., has made arrangements for a processing plant in this city and has contracted for millet and sunflower seed acreage. At the present time, millet agreements are equal to the demand but considerably more sunflower acreage is needed.

"We wish to emphasize that decisions to produce sunflowers must be made immediately," Stelmaschuk said. "The spring planting season is now at hand and arrangements must be made for seed to be used in the planting of this crop. The contracting firm will furnish seed which need not be paid for until the crop is harvested in the fall. A guaranteed market price is included in the contract."

Information on methods of planting, fertilization and weed control as well as anticipated yields and returns from the crop may be obtained at the extension office.

Banks to Charge 10% Exchange on Canadian Silver

Effective Tuesday at all banks in Thief River Falls, 10 per cent exchange will be charged on all Canadian silver money as well as the nine per cent discount which has previously been in effect on paper currency.

This means a deduction in value of nine cents per dollar on Canadian paper currency, five cents on halves, three cents on quarters and one cent on dimes.

According to local banking officials, the addition of silver to the discount schedule was made reluctantly as a result of Canadian government action in announcing a devaluation of up to eight and one-half per cent in the Canadian dollar.

Retail Committee Completes Plans for Syttende Mai

Further arrangements for the Syttende Mai promotion to be held in Thief River Falls on May 17, 18 and 19 were made at a meeting of the retail trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday morning. The event is Norwegian independence day.

A Sons of Norway smorgasbord will begin at 5 p. m. at the Eagles hall and a dance will follow in the evening. Tickets will be distributed to merchants and sold in the downtown area. Displays will be erected in store windows and at Carnegie Public Library and the Norwegian flag as well as the red, white and blue decorative flags will be flown during the day.

4 Candidates Seek Posts on School Board

H. Hoel and Russell Anderson Latest to File in May 15 Voting

With two additional candidates filing just before last Thursday's deadline, there are now four aspirants in the field for the two posts as directors on the local board of education to be filled in the annual School District 564 election to be held Tuesday, May 15, with polls open in Lincoln high school from 5 until 9 p. m.

Latest to file were K. Russell Anderson, local architect, and Howard M. Hoel, Jr., president of the Northern Woodwork company. Entering their names previously were the two incumbent members of the board whose terms are expiring, Dr. Ralph Helm, clerk of the board, and Dr. J. O. Disse.

The two incumbents favor the $1,595,000 bond issue for erection of a new junior high school and grade school on a site in the southeast section of the city, which proposal was voted down in a special election late in April, and which is to be re-submitted to the voters in another election Monday, May 21.

Howard Hoel, in a recent letter to the Times, opposed building the junior high school so far from the center of the city and he favored retention of the present site and moving of the area vocational school.

Russell Anderson, in a radio address preceding the last election, recommended remodelling the present old Washington school for continued use as a junior high school, and also favored additions to the present grade schools when necessary.

Cost: I Ice Cream Soda A Day

If your doctor prescribed an ice cream soda a day for 10 days to get you out of a sick bed, you'd take your "medicine" gladly . . . with little thought to its cost. When figured on the basis of the quantity of medicine the doctor asks you to take every 24 hours, today's prescription rarely costs you more than a daily ice cream soda. But it does something no ice cream soda can do. It cures disease.

April Proves To Be Even Warmer and Dryer Than 1961

If April is any indication of what is ahead weather-wise in the year to come, then 1962 will be another dry year. Precipitation during the fourth month of 1962 totaled only .54 inch as compared with .99 inch in 1961 and 7.6 inches of snow in 1960. Temperatures were slightly higher this year than last and slightly lower than 1960.

Average high reading for April of 1962 was 48.26 degrees as compared with 45.67 degrees in April of 1961. Average low was 25.90 this year and 24.93 a year ago. This April the mean temperature was 37.08 degrees.

High temperature for the month and the season was 78 degrees on April 24 while the low reading was 8 degrees on April 2. New TRF Arrivals Lose Furniture in Trailer Blaze

While bringing a rented trailer carrying their household goods from Baudette to Thief River Falls last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoard, who are establishing their home in this city, had the misfortune of having the trailer catch fire, destroying a refrigerator, bed, chest of drawers, table and chairs and bedding.

Mrs. Hoard is being employed here as a telephone operator, and the personnel of the N. W. Bell exchanges in this city, Baudette, Roseau and Warroad are contributing to a fund being raised for the fire victims.

James Koller, manager of the local exchange, stated that anyone having usable furniture items available is asked to notify the Hoards by calling Phone MU 1-2885. Their address is 325 West Zeh st.

Lions View Movies on Alaska Journey Shown by Hetteen

Rollie Larson Also Tells Group of New Industry Secured for T. R. Falls

Edgar Hetteen, head of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., of this city, and Rollie Larson, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, were guest speakers at the Lions club luncheon meeting Wednesday noon in the Elks club rooms.

Larson told the group of the successful culmination of negotiations with a New York birdseed processing firm for establishment of a branch plant in Thief River Falls to handle sunflower and millet seed to be grown by area farmers under contract.

Hetteen spoke briefly and showed a color film dealing with an 1,800-mile trip he and associates had made thru Alaska two years ago, traveling in a fleet of three mechanical snow travelers manufactured in Roseau. The trip is described in detail in a series of articles currently being published in the Times. Mr. Hetteen was introduced by Carl Raulson, program chairman.

The object of the scholarship funds is to give aid to worthy undergraduate students who are in need of financial assistance to continue their education.

At the same time, Johnston stated that the company will also establish a scholarship for employees' children. The company scholarship will be available for competition in 1962.

Summer Camping Program Aired at Scout Meeting

Discussion of the summer camping program and the spring camporee at Agassiz National Wildlife refuge took place at the Pen-Ro-Shall District meeting and Scouter's roundtable held Thursday evening at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Quentin Jones of this city, district camping chairman, reviewed the events which will take place at the camporee. He noted that registration fee will be 65 cents per boy and will cover registration, insurance, patches and awards. The event will be held at Agassiz refuge on June 1, 2 and 3.

Herb Dill, Holt, council camping chairman, encouraged scouters to urge older boys in their troops to register for the week at scout camp designed specifically for older boys. June 24-30 are the dates for the camp for scouts 14 years of age and older with activities to include rifle shooting, water skiing, waterfront activities and canoe trips. Openings are still available for the camping session.

Dr. James Disse, chairman of the health and safety committee, discussed physical fitness and announced plans for the use of material by each unit.

Local Student in UND Opera Cast

JoNett Hankerson of Thief River Falls is a member of a cast of students at the University of North Dakota who will present the second act of Bizet's opera, "Carmen", in the UND Student Union ballroom in Grand Forks Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12. The performance will be a part of an offering, "A Night at the Opera", to be presented by the UND chorus. Dalen Green of this city is a member of the production staff.

TIME on their hands while waiting for the judge's decision at the state area music festival was easily solved by this group of Twin Valley high school students. They formed a friendly game of whist on the front steps of Lincoln high school and converted the case for a baritone saxophone into a card table. Left to right are Diane Bergeson, member of a girls triple trio and flute duet; Lynn Gronbeck, piano solo and accompanist for two instrumental numbers; Myrna Kirkeby, flute duet; and Terry Thompson, baritone saxophone solo.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson

Manager Chamber of Commerce

It has been heartwarming to see numerous farmers showing decided interest recently in the sunflower and millet production opportunity that has been secured for this community.

To me this means more than another industry and more than a new addition to our local economy. It means more than a tangible that we usually look at without giving further thought.

To me the enthusiasm, the interest, the appreciation and the action resulting were the outstanding things. So often over the past few years we have had a tendency to cry rivers over bad things and thoughts as if the very world were coming to an end. Our attitudes, our moods and our advocations have had a tendency to be negative quite often it seems.

But on this new crop project there seemed to be a sudden surge of imagination as the whole area began to talk about it. This is good. This is the big and hard half of getting things done. Not until people make up their minds that they would sincerely like to do something and want to do something so much that they will take action can anything tangible take place.

So to me this was a good sign. We talk about area development and talking about it is fine, but it will be when you and I as individuals decide to take action within our own business sphere that area development will really take place. If we are content to merely exist and continue on as in the past, scratching out a living, not expanding, not improving, then the area as a whole cannot realize expansion, improvement or development.

I admire those who gamble boldly and yet sensibly within the business world, because through those risks that are taken the community benefits right along with the individual himself. We admire someone who has made something work and grow and develop, but it is when we follow that example that we will also realize that same type of progress.

You will also feel progressive if you Shop and Trade Where Bargains are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

4-H'ers Can Assist in Safety Checkup

'U' Extension Specialist Advises How to Proceed

Spring clean-up time is also farm and home safety checkup time.

4-H members and clubs enrolled in the safety project can conduct a safety checkup in several areas, says Glenn Prickett, extension safety specialist at the University of Minnesota.

In your home, check the attic, basement and closets — and any place where rubbish may have accumulated during the winter. Burn or haul away all rubbish.

Working safely is important when cleaning your home, says Prickett. The cleaning solutions you use are poisonous if taken internally so keep containers and scrub pails out of reach of young brothers and sisters.

Put the medicine cabinet on your list of places to clean. Burn or bury poisons. Those you must keep should be clearly labeled in their original bottles. Keep the bottles well away from youngsters in a locked container, if possible.

When you have a high place to clean, stand on a sturdy step stool or ladder.

Safety is also important as you begin working in the yard this spring. After you rake the yard or hoe or spade the garden, be sure to put the tools away. A rake laying in the grass with the teeth up is an invitation for an accident and a serious injury.

If you do not have a safe place to store the garden tools, build a rack or put up hooks for them in the tool shed or basement.

Give your farm buildings a thorough checkup too. Again, remove and burn all rubbish that may cause a fire. As a constant reminder, post no smoking signs on all buildings.

4-H'ers are urged to work with their parents and families on the safety checkup. Remember that safety is a family affair, Prickett adds.

Sheriff Erickson Talks to Marshall 4-H Federation

"If more young people belonged to an organization like 4-H I'm sure I would have less youth problems to contend with in Marshall County" Sheriff Oscar Erickson told the Marshall County 4-H Federation on Monday, April 30, at the Argyle school.

Sheriff Erickson spoke to the group on automobile safety and also showed a motion picture on the same subject. The movie, "Signal 30", showed actual scenes of automobile accidents and victims. It pointed out the major causes of accidents with emphasis on not obeying the laws which are established for the drivers protection, not hinderance.

During the business meeting, Peter Schmidt of Happy Corner was elected as the official delegate to the state 4-H Federation meetings. These are held during the 4-H junior leadership conference, June 19-22 in St. Paul.

Announcement of the Minnesota-Maryland 4-H Exchange delegates, Bernadine Dahl and Lowell Johnson of Plainview, was announced. The final selection will be made by the State 4-H office. Only one will attend from Marshall county.

DHIA Testing Has M. Lundeen Herd in Top Spot in April

Leading Herd Averaged 53.6 Pounds Butterfat; A. Stenberg Herd Is 2d

Orville Peters, supervisor of the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement Association, lists the following herds as the top ten in the association for the month of April:

	Milk	Fat	Test
Merle Lundeen	1444	53.6	3.71
Art Stenberg	1258	44.4	3.53
Maynard Mehrkens	1210	44.0	3.64
Clyde Christensen	1122	42.8	3.82
Martin Hanson	1190	42.5	3.57
Lavern Johnson	1037	42.0	4.08
Paul Morkassel	936	39.5	4.21
Lloyd Nelson	1079	38.8	3.60
Dale Svendsgaard	1142	38.6	3.38
Darrow Lundeen	1216	38.5	3.17

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butter fat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month.

If too many dry cows are included in the herd then the average for that month may be low even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

Cows finishing with over 500 pounds of B. F. during the 1961-62 testing year, in a 365-day or less lactation, were: Dale Svendsgaard herd, Cow Rocket, 354 days; 15,850 pounds milk, 611 pounds fat. Cyde Christensen herd, Cow 47, 296 days, 14,900 pounds milk, 621 pounds fat.

The cow records are published only after she is dried and has made a 500 pounds or more in 365 days or less.

The association average with 24 herds and 570 cows on test is 1031 pounds milk; 37.4 pounds fat; 3.63 test; and an average of 23.8 cows per herd.

PUBLIC OPINION

Last Thursday's issue of the "Times" contained one of the finest pieces of "scare propaganda" I have read in quite some time. I refer to the article on the schol bond election set for May 21.

It looks as though the school administration and a group of citizens are trying to panic the taxpayers into building.

We all know there is a shortage of classrooms. This article implies the shortage is due to the defeat of the bond issue on April 23. Such is not the case. The proposed million and a half dollar building will not and cannot be ready for use in the 1962-1963 term.

The voters have expresed their collective opinion of the school expansion. Our school administration could have considered alternate methods of gaining the required space before calling for a new election, rather than adopt the "this is the way we want it, and thi si sthealretqujlylofg and this is the way it has to be" attitude.

I believe our need is maximum educational facilities for minimum cost, not a masonry monument to the Goddess of Education.

LHS Art Classes To Hold Exhibit

School Cafeteria Is Site for First Annual Event

Art work done by junior and senior high school art students at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls will be on display at the first annual school art exhibit to be held May 12 and 13 from 1 to 5 p. m. in the school cafeteria.

Featured in the exhibit will be projects in painting, drawing, design, sculpture, printmaking and ceramics. The work is greatly varied in materials and media and there are many unusual combinations which spark a natural desire for creativity, according to Donald Lerud, art instructor.

Lerud and Mrs. Patricia Dunning both instructors in the school art program, will be present at the exhibit to visit with visitors and answer questions in regard to the exhibits. The instructors invite the public to visit the display either on Saturday or as a Mother's Day outing on Sunday.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

Outdoor Cookery

Now that we hope spring has arrived we begin polishing up the outdoor grill and checking our supplies for charcoal.

It won't be long until cooking out-of-doors becomes a daily joy again. If you hunger for that outdoor flavor and you find it a bit chilly you might grill outside and eat inside.

Safety is very important is using grills. Extinguish the fire completely when you are through. The tiniest spark left can cause a serious fire. So before leaving, soak with water the area beneath the grill or the fire. Do not use lighter fluids on a fire already burning. Use only approved charcoal lighter fluids. Be sure the grill is set firm and keep the children and pets away from the fire. Do not heat food in unopened cans for they can burst and cause serious burns.

Achievement Day May 1

May 1 at 1:30 the annual Homemakers Achievement Day will be held in the Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. Any homemaker is urged to attend. The homemaking clubs will display items they have made this past year. There is a short program planned. The guest speaker will be Athelene Schied, clothing specialist of the University of Minnesota, will speak to the group on "More money for Clothes". Also as part of the program the women who made dresses in the clothing workshop will be modeling their dress in a style show.

Hope to see many homemakers out to this annual event.

The sounds of spring are many. Whir—the sewing machine; swish—the broom and rake; vroom-vroom— the vacuum. They announce the wakineing of a spring-fresh household, those task-packed days.

Meal time finds working appetites sharper but, alas, preparation time shorter. The answer, though, is simple—simple, snappy dishes that stem from convenience foods, each with a tasty trick in the making.

For swift lunches or weekday suppers, you might try a choice of eggs with cheese or easily prepared meat and fish entrees. An elegant dinner dish, Alpine beef casserole, is made from round steak, green pepper strips and grated Swiss cheese. For the dessert on the run, try orange cake au rum, an orange chiffon cake with orange juice sirup-topping.

For those over-the-fence coffee breaks, sesame English muffins are always good. All you need to do is to split English muffins and spread with soft butter. Sprinkle with toasted sesame seeds. Toast in hot over (400 degrees F.) for 10 minutes, or until brown. Serve hot.

Peanuts? Billion!

A billion pounds a year. That's peanuts. The peanuts we Americans use. As they came from the thresher complete with shells, they would weigh about a billion and a half pounds, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service.

Where do they all go? Next time you have a handful of salted peanuts, count out 20 of them to represent the billion pounds of shelled peanuts we use in a year. Eight of these peanuts will become peanut butter; four will be eaten as salted peanuts; three will go into candy; four will be squeezed for oil. Then, add one more to represent the peanuts that go to ball games and carnivals in the shell.

Rep. Langen Conducts Public Opinion Survey

"Whoever said that the average citizen is no longer interested in government should have spent recent weeks in our Washington office," declared Congressman Odin Langen today as he announced the results of his latest public opinion survey of the 23 counties in the new 7th Congressional District.

Langen said everyone can be assured that the people of Minnesota are interested in government and clearly displayed that interest by returning his questionnaires by the thousands.

"One of the most heartening things we learned from the tabulations," said Langen, "is the tremendous interest in fiscal responsibility." The congressman noted that a whopping 94 per cent feel that the federal budget should be balanced during peacetime years, and that an overwhelming majority believe planned domestic programs should be postponed if the country needs more money to support defense and foreign policies.

Langen said he was pleased to note the additional comments supplied by many who returned questionnaires. "These comments indicated a concern by many of our people over the increasing encroachment by the federal government into the affairs of state and local governments," said the Congressman.

Congressman Langen said he was grateful for the great interest shown by the people of the new 7th District. "Your opinions will be very valuable to me in the important days ahead," he concluded.

Entries Present Views on Area Music Festival

Stan Kindzerski, director of the vocal music groups at Roseau, believed that musical groups this year at the state area contest were "as good as last year, perhaps a bit better." He was satisfied with the performance of the Roseau students and with just cause. The District 32 entries from Roseau led all entrants by gathering 28 A ratings, 14 B ratings and three C ratings in the strong competition.

Carolyn Espe, Crookston Central, enjoyed her first year attending a state area festival. A clarinet player since fifth grade, she is now a sophomore and was a member of a clarinet quartet Friday and the Crookston band on Saturday. The long wait from arrival here at 8 a.m. until playing with the band at 5:30 p.m. was the most tiring part of the day. She felt the quartet, which received one of Crookston's 11 B ratings, played as well as at the district level but the competition was stronger.

Grant Torgerson, McIntosh, had a full day on both Friday and Saturday. On Friday he sang tenor with the 'Ten Tones,' a boy's choral group, which gained a B rating. On Saturday he sang with the boy's glee club and played tuba with the McIntosh band. He has been a band member for three years and in the vocal group for two years. A senior this year he was also at the state area contest in 1961 and believed competition to be a little stronger this year.

Maureen Fellman, senior at Red Lake Falls performed with the A rating Lafayette high school band and played in a trumpet trio which gained a B placing. She was also pianoaccompanist for a flute solo played by Mary Lou Kiland. Next year she will be secretary at the high school office and is beginning work this week after school hours and during free periods in the school day. She was proud of the four A's the band has received in state area festivals in the four years she has been a member and the seven A's and three B's received by Red Lake Falls groups this year.

Wayne Brandt is a junior at East Grand Forks Central and was a member of the band in Saturday's competition. In his second year in senior band after one year in the junior band, he made his first trip to the festival here. In addition to competition with other schools, he enjoyed the opportunity to meet students from other towns. The East Grand Forks groups from District 31 captured one A and four B ratings in the festival.

Geraldine Overland of Fertile was one of the many visiting students who enjoyed window shopping in local stores while not in action at the contest. An alto in the school chorus she was also at the contest last year. The chorus gained a B rating in singing "Born to be Free" and "Miserere, Mie." Only 10 boys were in the Fosston chorus, she said, and she believes that the chorus would have had a better chance with a fuller blend of voices.

John Hood of Fosston was a baritone in the Fosston school choir which also gained a B rating at the contest. The District 30 school had four buses bringing students to the contest and gained 11 A, 14 B and three C ratings at the event. John was also a member of the boy's glee club which gained one of the school's A ratings. He enjoyed the chance to meet students from other schools and believed the contest to have better competition this year than last.

Directors who sat in on sessions to watch other groups perform believed the festival to be important to students taking part. It is building the music departments in the smaller schools more each year and selection of contest numbers is becoming of increasing importance, the directors said. Many smaller schools fared better than larger ones in the competition.

Nurses in Area Invited to Tea at NW Hospital

Professional nurses in the Thief River Falls community who are not actively engaged in the nursing profession have been extended an invitation to attend a tea on Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the hospital cafeteria, according to Miss Helen M. Black, R. N., director of nursing service at the hospital.

"Because we feel that you have a continuing interest in the profession that you trained for, we would like to acquaint you with some of our new developments and tell you about our plans for increasing and improving our facilities for better and more complete patient care," Miss Black said in a letter sent to known professional nurses living in the community.

"We recognize that other professional nurses have likely moved into the community and we are not aware of their presence." Miss Black said. "Those who did not receive a special invitation are also invited to attend the tea. We will sincerely appreciate your attendance on May 11.

"It is our opinion that you who have been trained in the nursing profession, although you may not be active in practice at this time, can help us by becoming better acquainted with our problems and plans for the future."

Pilot Speaks at Rotary Monday

Tells of Experiences On Emergency Mission

Major Charles A. Weisel, pilot at the Grand Forks Air Force Base and family friend of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of this city, was guest speaker Monday at the noon meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club. J. M. Roche, president-elect of the organization, reported on the district conference held the previous week in Moorhead.

Weisel read a speech recently delivered in New York by Gen. Powell, commander in chief of the Strategic Air Command, which outlined the role and changes in SAC over the years since its inception.

The pilot then recounted the experiences on his flight in January from Tokyo, Japan, to San Antonio, Texas, to rush a severely-burned Taiwan girl here for emergency treatment. The mercy mission, given preliminary approval by President Kennedy, established six new world records.

In leaving Japan the plane flew through the Russian radar defense net and four Russian fighters accompanied the plane for 20 minutes before turning back to their home bases. The 7,000-mile flight took 12 hours and 5 minutes, with speeds up to 780 miles per hour and an average speed of 680 miles per hour. Altitude was as high as 42,000 feet and the landing was made in snow and freezing rain with 22,000 pounds of fuel remaining in the tanks. In spite of the speed of the emergency mission, the little girl died in the San Antonio hospital several days later.

Fire Damages Airplane Wing in Draper Garage

Touch-up work on an airplane wing being covered by V. M. Draper in his garage at 244 Kneale av. N. at 8:46 p. m. Thursday evening caused a fire which damaged the wing and resulted in burns on one of Draper's hands as he attempted to put out the blaze.

Draper, who has been in the process of building his own airplane for more than two years, reported that he was doing some touch-up work with an iron on the fabric wind covering to tighten the fabric when "dope" used to coat the fabric caught fire. It is not known whether the damage can be repaired or the wing must be completely rebuilt. The local fire department answered the fire call.

Prowler Trackmen 2nd in the Dragon Relays

Coach Rod Max's Prowler trackmen, turning in a surprising 49-point performance, gained second place in the Class A division in the Dragon Relays held at Moorhead State college on Saturday afternoon and evening. The Moorhead high school Spuds, with a total of 52½ points, edged out the Prowlers for first place.

On Tuesday afternoon, on the Lincoln high school athletic field, the Prowlers will defend their Northwest conference track and field title against the squad of Bemidji, Roseau, East Grand Forks and Crookston. The meet is slated to start at 1:20 p. m.

In Saturday's Dragon Relays, the Prowlers accounted for three new records. Paul Klungness sped over the 180-yard low hurdles in twenty seconds flat. And in the broad jump event, Klungness made a leap of 21 feet, ¼ inch to set a new record. The Prowler relay team — Gary Klungness, Rick Wold, Don Nicholson, and Paul Klungness — turned in a mark of 1:35.5 to establish a new mark in that event.

Incidentally, these three records also were new marks for Lincoln high school track records. Paul Klungness bettered his own low hurdle mark of :21.7; and surpassed Ron Ebbighausen's broad jump mark of 20 feet, 8 inches. The 880-yard relay team bested the 1:36.2 mark set by the Al Williamson, Don Anderson, Joe Bradley and Keith Rosengren quartet in 1943 and tied by Al Steenerson, Mike Hajostek, Stan Rosengren, and Jack Erickson in 1951.

Other firsts scored by the Prowlers in Saturday's meet were Brian Lofberg in the discus throw, with a toss of 127 feet, 1½ inches and the sprint medley team of Rick Wold, Gary Klungness, Paul Klungness, and Rolf Wangberg, who turned in a time of 3:48.4 This sprint medley mark also sets a new school record.

Prowler Ball Club Defeats RLF 14-5

With the three Prowler pitchers used in the game — John Aune, Bob Olson, and Tommy Cummings—limiting the Eagles to but three base hits, and with the Prowler batsmen racking the offerings of Bernard Demarais, Jim Poirier, and Bill Phillon for thirteen hits, coach Ralph Skay's blue-and-gold baseball team scored a 14 to 5 win over Red Lake Falls in a district conference game played here Friday night.

This afternoon, with a 4:30 P.M. starting time, the Prowlers will meet the Crookston Central Pirates at Crookston. On Wednesday night, with game time at 7:30 P.M., the Fosston Greyhounds will play the Prowlers on the Fair Grounds diamond here; and on Friday, May 11, the locals will engage in a two-game road trip, playing Bemidji at Bemidji at 3:30 P.M., and then meeting the Bagley Flyers at Bagley at 7:30 P.M.

Coach Mike Hajostek's Eagles scored a pair of runs in the first to take an early lead in Friday night's tilt. Steve Demarais blasted John Aune's first pitch for a double. After Jim Poirier had struck out, and Jim Audette flied out to center field, Bill Phillon and Tony Roy were given walks, and on a wild pitch, Demarais and Phillon scored.

The Prowlers, in their half of the first, scored two runs to knot the score. Gerry Erickson walked, Gary Klungness grounded out to the first baseman, Paul Klungness singled to score Erickson, John Aune beat out a hit to shortstop, and on the throw to first, Paul Klungness came in with a score.

The Prowlers erupted for five runs in the third inning, with John Aune's triple to the fence in left-center being the heavy clout of the rally. Gerry Erickson also contributed an extra-base blow to the rally, banging a double into the corner in left field.

Sophomore Bob Olson took over the Prowler pitching duties in the fifth and sixth innings; and in the 7th inning, eighth grader Tommy Cummings saw action, giving up an unearned run and no hits.

Records in Jeopardy

Given moderate weather conditions, and a fast track, it is probable that a number of records will be broken as the five-team Northwest Conference track squads engage in their annual tournament on the Lincoln high school athletic field here Tuesday afternoon.

The Prowlers won their first con*ference track title last season when* in a meet held at Crookston, the locals edged out the Roseau Rams. Coach Rod Max's squad won the title when Paul and Gary Klungness; tied for first place in the broad jump, the final event on the program. The Prowlers, with those nine points, moved into the championship with a total of 55 points, with Roseau having 49¾ points. The Roseau Rams, with another strong squad this season, will make a sturdy bid to regain the title they held in 1959.

Among the records that are in jeopardy on Tuesday will be the 880-yard relay, the 180-yard low hurdles, the 220-yard dash, the 880-yard run, the broad jump, and 100 and 220-yard dashes.

The meet will start at 1:30 p. m., and sports fans who are interested in athletic competition at its best should make an effort to watch an event or two.

Hockey Coaches on the Move

Prowler hockey coach Gene Sack forwards the information that a number of the hockey coaches in this area are quitting the Region Eight ranks or contemplating making such a move.

Roland Genz, who has coached the Warroad Warriors for the past several seasons, and with good success, will leave the Warroad school to accept a position as hockey coach at Alexander Ramsey high school in St. Paul. Genz, who is graduate of Hamline, will be returning to his home territory of St. Paul.

And Jim Johnson, who coached at Williams last season, is reported as having resigned as the Wolves hockey coach to enter private business.

The youthful Ed Thomlinson, who coached the Little Green Wave at East Grand Forks last season, has requested a leave of absence to continue his college education. The East Side school officials aren't too enthusiastic about this proposal, and they have held interviews with several prospective hockey coaches. Derwood (Swede) Lund, the former Prowler and North Dakota U hockey player, and recently on the coaching staff at Devils Lake, is rumored as one of the candidates being given consideration.

Stan Paschke, the former Grand Forks Central and North Dakota U player, and who coached the St. James high school hockey team last season, has accepted the hockey coaching job at Grafton. Grafton had a splendid midget hockey squad last season, and Paschke should be in a position to develop the school into a North Dakota prep power. Grafton has a fine hockey tradition, with the senior hockey Millionaires being one of the original entries in the States-Dominion hockey league. The need up there is for an indoor rink, and a fund has been established for this purpose. The old rink burned down a number of years ago.

Norman-Polk to Open on May 20

The Norman-Polk league will begin play on its 1962 schedule on Sunday, May 20. That is, the league is ready to open, but whether or not the eight member teams are ready to go is a question. Most of the teams will be relying on high school and college players to fill out their respective rosters, and these players will not be available until the conclusion of the school year.

The league as it has been the past couple of years, will be an eight-team circuit. The Ulen Tigers, a member last season, has withdrawn from the league, but the Fosston team, a welcome addition, has been admitted to the league. The league members, in addition to Fosston, are Erskine, Twin Valley, Ada, Halstad, Thief River Falls, Fertile, and Crookston.

The newly-elected officers of the league are Les Holen, Twin Valley, tile, vice president; and Jeff Balzum, Ada, secretary-treasurer. Balzum has been appointed commissioner for Region 2-B baseball, succeeding Herschel Lysaker of Crookston who had been commissioner for many years.

Trap Shoot League Begins

The Thief River Trap Shoot League will hold its first session of league shooting for the 1962 season on Thursday, May 10.

Eight teams, headed by the league-champion Ben Franklin squad, will begin competition in a double round-robin schedule.

Shooters who attend Thursday evening's opening round will notice the improvements and expansion that have been made in the club house facilities. The club house area has been doubled in size, and a number of conveniences have been added.

Should make a mention, too, that the high-average gunners should pay attention to Lief Erickson of the Times squad. He has a new over-under shotgun, and he is serious about winning the squad high-gun title, and perhaps get up into the upper brackets in the league averages.

Changes Are Noted in Dry Milk Production

Minnesota tops all states in total dry milk output and produces about 25 per cent of the nation's supply.

Dry milk production in the state expanded rapidly, from about 35 million pounds a year in the late 1930's to about 560 million in 1961.

But future growth in the state's dry milk output is likely to be slower, according to E. Fred Koller and J. William Hanlon. The University of Minnesota economists report changes in the Minnesota dry milk industry in the current issue of "Minnesota Farm Business Notes," an Agricultural Extension Service publication.

About 90 per cent of the milk marketed by Minnesota farmers is now sold as whole milk, and only 10 per cent as farm-separated cream. In 1940 only 16.5 per cent was sold as whole milk.

Types of dry milk produced have changed. In the 1930's the state's output consisted principally of dry buttermilk. In the early 1940's production of nonfat dry milk, about half of it the roller type, rapidly expanded. Today about 99 per cent of the nonfat dry milk produced in Minnesota is made by the spray process. Spray dried milk brings about 2 cents a pound over the roller product.

In recent years Minnesota dry milk manufacturers produced a larger volume of milk powders designed for specific customer uses. Formerly, nearly all nonfat dry milk was the standard high heat type, well adapted to uses such as in bakery products.

In recent years more low heat powder has been produced. It has characteristics desired by specific users, such as packagers of instant milk for home use, manufacturers of cottage cheese, and producers of cake mix and other food mixes.

Koller and Hanlon state that probably the most significant changes in the Minnesota dry milk industry are in number and size of plants and in types of drying plant organization.

During the 1940's major expansion was in specilized drying plants which dried milk on a large volume basis and didn't process other dairy products. Few plants received milk directly from farmers, but assembled skim milk from as many as 24 creameries in their supply area.

Twenty-two specialized drying plants were organized in the 1940's and early 1950's. They reached peak operation in the mid-1950's, then producing about half the state's total output, or 175 million pounds of dry milk per year.

By 1960 this group of plants declined to 14, and produced about 100 million pounds of dry milk. Production per plant then averaged about 7 million pounds; the largest plants produced over 20 million pounds.

In the 1950's interest increased in the local creamery butter-powder plants. Such plants usually receive whole milk direct from producers and process cream into butter and the skim milk into powder all in the same plant.

Peak of interest in local creamery driers came about 1957, with 40 plants in operation producing about one-third of the state's dry milk.

During the next three years, many plants expanded, served other local creameries and shifted to a super butter-powder type operation. By 1960, there were only 24 such plants, producing 102 million pounds of dry milk.

The super butter-powder plant has developed rapidly in recent years. Super plants receive large quantities of whole milk directly from producers. Many differ from local butter-powder plants in that they also receive large quantities of whole or skim milk from two or more creameries in their area.

Super plants produce both butter and powder on a large scale. Some are more diversified and produce several dairy products. By 1960 there were 28 super plants, producing an average of about 12 million pounds of dried milk and 3 million pounds of butter per plant.

Further indication of the trend toward large butter-powder organizations is that in 1960 these plants produced 58 per cent of all Minnesota dry milk, compared with 40 per cent in 1957. Koller and Hanlon say the trend points the way to lower costs and better net returns to dairy farmers.

Canadian Dollar Value Is Reduced

Lowered Wednesday to 92½ Cents in U.S. Money

Canada devalued its dollar Wednesday and pegged it at 92½ U. S. cents to give a boost to exports and ease the nation's chronic foreign trade deficit.

The president of the Canadian Manufacturing Association said he was delighted with the export boost but expressed surprise at the new rate, the lowest since Canada adopted a free, floating exchange rate in September 1950.

The Canadian dollar had sold at 95¼ cents on the exchanges for the past two months.

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said in a statement announcing the new rate the govenment had taken progressive steps to bring the exchange rate down. The Canadian dollar in August 1957 was worth $1.06⅛ in U. S. currency.

The drop in the rate is expected to give a strong boost to export earnings and to discourage import buying by raising import prices in terms of Canadian dollars.

It will mean, among other things, costlier vacation trips in the United States for Canadians and cheaper ones in Canada for American tourists.

Begin Erection of New Protestant Center in Mpls.

Fourteen Denominations to Share In Ownership of $1,500,000 Structure

At a special meeting of the board of trustees of the Minnesota Council of Churches held April 30, the board voted unanimously to proceed with the construction of the new Minnesota Protestant Center being built at 122 West Franklin Ave., Minneapolis.

A contract for erecting the first floor was authorized and the Center committee was instructed to plan a long term financing of the entire project. It will report to the board of trustees at the regular meeting on May 17.

Harold W. Jenkins, director of finance for the new Center, reported that 70 area churches have pledged $70,816 since the first of the year. This brings to $436,638 the total—cash and pledges—received to date for the Center. Before the end of 1962 churches from all over the state will be asked to consider their participation.

The million and a half dollar Center is being financed by voluntary gifts from individuals, foundations, churches and church organizations.

Fourteen denominations and church related agencies have contracted for 95 per cent of the space on five floors of the Center. A sixth floor is planned to care for other agencies and future expansion. Footings have been installed for eight stories. At the present time the footings and basement walls of the Center have been completed. Armstrong and Schlichting are architects for the Center, and Adolfson and Peterson, general contractors.

Registration for Boy Scout Camp Totals 579 Boys

Registration of 579 boys to attend 1962 camp at the Boy Scouts Camp Wabaunaquat has been received to date by the Lake Agassiz Council, Boy Scouts of America. Five camping periods are offered and the schedule is nearly filled.

Camp registration fee of $5 per boy is due in the office of the council by May 15. The final fee of $13 per boy will be due on June 15 with the final count of the number of boys which will be attending from each troop. Herb Dill, manager of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge east of Holt, is serving as council camping chairman.

Hetteen Expedition on Final Lap of Journey

CHAPTER TEN

March 19, 1960

We covered a distance of 45 miles today, arriving at Tanana about 6 o'clock in the evening.

The trail conditions were pretty fair, but we did not set out from the cabin near Birches until about 10:30 a. m.

Tonight we will be the guests of the Rev. Melvin J. Jensen, who conducts the Arctic Mission here at Tanana. We will sleep in the chapel that adjoins the Rev. Jensen's residence.

The weather remains quite cold. It was 25 below at 8 o'clock this morning, and the highest temperature we had during the day was zero.

Now that there are only about 250 miles between us and Fairbanks we are pushing to get there as soon as possible.

I sent a telegram back home giving March 23 as the probable day of our arrival at Fairbanks. I may be a bit too optimistic in estimating that we can get there in four days, but we shall see. I telephoned Anchorage tonight to have our luggage sent on to Fairbanks, where it will be waiting when we arrive.

The motor sleds have performed exceedingly well all during this trip. We have not a single breakdown and no repairs have been necessary.

The spirits of all of us are high, for we are not too far from our destination now, and we feel that the worst trials of the journey are behind us.

March 20, 1960 (Sunday)

Strong winds plagued us once more as we left Tanana at 8 a. m., and the wind persisted until nightfall. The temperature was not too bad—5 below zero—when we started.

We had a rough time of it in making our way from the Yukon to the Tanana River at Squaw Crossing, a distance of 15 miles that seemed a lot longer because of trail conditions and weather.

Again we were buffeted by a king-size sand storm.

With winds that rose to better than 30 miles an hour, we made our way for several miles across an area of glare ice and scant snow cover. Clouds of blowing and drifting sand and silt, whipped up from sand bars by the winds, enveloped us and made the visibility very bad.

The wind was strong enough to blow our vehicles this way and that on the glare ice. During the worst part of the storm it took us five hours to cover only a few miles.

In spite of this delay, we made 60 miles in our 14 hours on the trail. Darkness fell, and we still had some few miles to go before we reached our goal, Manley Hot Springs. It was very cold and getting colder, but we pushed on in the darkness.

For the last six miles of our run today, Rudy Billberg stayed out ahead in the darkness, guiding us with his flashlight.

Bessie, meanwhile, drove the Trailblazer, and Erling and I followed close behind Bessie's machine.

Rudy had to guide us carefully because Manley Slough here is narrow and it is not frozen in the center of the stream because of warmed water from the springs.

At this point, and after being without food or drink for better than 14 hours, we were thinking of the comforts of home.

What a welcome sight it was to finally see a light in a cabin window just ahead of us. We arrived at the cabin at 10 p. m. and were asked in at once by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clements, a very hospitable couple. What people!

March 21, 1960

The Clements prevailed upon us to stay with them through Monday and Monday night. Their generosity was wonderful.

They showed a keen interest in our vehicles, the experiences we have had on the trail, and the purpose of our journey from Bethel to Fairbanks.

While we were here in Manley we met and swapped yarns with some gold miners who seem like characters out of Alaska's early-day history.

N.W. School Cow Is High Producer

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced the completion of an outstanding official production record by a registered Holstein cow at Northwest School, Crookston.

Northwest Virginia Supreme, a three-year-old, produced 17,580 lbs. milk and 641 lbs. butterfat in 305 days.

Job Training

President Kennedy has now signed the manpower training act to provide new skills — and new jobs — for the unemployed who have been displaced by automation and other economic change. The program now being launched will make available $600 million, including state maching funds, to train 570,000 unemployed workers in three years.

Our community appreciates the importance of vocational education and the opportunities our vocational school has created for hundreds of young people of our area. The unskilled worker, or the worker who has a skill for which there no longer is a need, should be given an opportunity to learn a trade that will enable him to be self-supporting. This is one form of public assistance that will benefit not only the individual but the economy as a whole.

Our Legislature

In four major money bills the Minnesota legislature appropriated $87,466,004 more in its 1961 session than it had appropriated for the same activities in 1959. The total was increased from $486 millions in 1959 to $573 millions in 1961 according to a report by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association.

Until the taxpayers start taking an active interest in such matters these totals no doubt will continue to grow. There is little pressure on the members of the legislature to economize. There is a lot of pressure on them to be more liberal in making the dollars available for spending.

Next November we will elect the members of both houses of the legislature who will make the decisions on spending in the 1963 session. Between now and then the candidates will be appealing for votes and this will be a good time for taxpayers to make their complaints. Good government requires public interest.

Welfare Fund

Welfare Secretary Ribicoff thinks that the only answer to the welfare problem is the spending of more money. There is little chiseling, he says, and discourages investigations as to need. "All studies indicate the proportion of ineligible persons who receive assistance is not more than 1.5 per cent," he stated recently.

The welfare agency for the District of Columbia takes a different view of the situation, and has been conducting an intensive check on recipients. Their detective-like probes indicate that in the district more than 50 per cent of the reliefers are not entitled to payments. That is quite a contrast coming from the city of Washington.

The investigations have been conducted by a group of sleuths authorized by a Senate District Appropriations subcommittee. They operate independently from the welfare agency. Much of the fraud had to do with aid for dependent children.

Investigations of this kind should be conducted in other large cities.

Bingo and Charity

"Gambling in Minnesota has a respectable front. The gambling is bingo and the respectable front is charity."

So says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, calling attention to some interesting facts about this socially accepted racket. It states that a survey of the operations in St. Paul by the St. Paul Dispatch revealed that little money taken in by bingo operators actually goes for charitable purposes.

According to the Pioneer Press editorial:

"In terms of cash, the amount a charity may get from a single bingo session of four hours often is ridiculous. For example, one St. Paul organization reported gross receipts of $867.80 and a "net loss" of $65.70. For another session, it listed a gross of $1,004 and a net loss of $5.10. On a $1,104 session, the charity had a net profit of $1.30 It had a $295 profit on a $1,444 session, however. In every case, though, the organization paid $85 rent for the hall.

"In terms of returns, it is the owner of the hall who often makes the big profit. If he schedules 14 sessions a week into his hall at $85 a session, his gross receipts from rent will be more than $61,000 a year.

"It is obvious that bingo, as currently operated on a large scale commercial basis in Minnesota with the bulk of the money going to winners, hall owners and operators, cannot be justified on grounds that its primary function is to build the coffers of humanitarian organizations.

"The public should demand that one of two courses be followed to correct this situation. Either bingo should be eliminated entirely in line with the state's anti-gambing law or controls should be drastically tightened to make it unprofitable for the big-scale operator."

The Texas Scandal

Roscoe Drummund, wondering in his syndicated column about the manipulations of the Texas millionaire, Billie Sol Estes, asks:

"Is this Estes scandal just a little something which smells worse than it is, or is it a corrupt mess which is really worse than it smells?"

He concludes that enough facts have already been revealed to indicate that Estes had involved top government officials in his activities and that he, the big Democratic campaign contributor, is the friend of many who are today politically powerful in Washington.

Take a look at what already has come out he says:

"The Attorney-General of he state of Texas, Will Wilson, found that Estes' fertilizer, grain-storage, and financial empire was built on "fraud and loose money."

"Plus dubious business with the Federal government.

"How dubious? We don't yet know. To find out is the duty of a Congressional investigation.

"We do know that in February, 1961, the Department of Agriculture granted Estes a sizeable favor by limiting to $700,000 the amount of bond he was required to produce as a warehouser of government surplus grain. Attorney-General Wilson says the bond should have been $3,500,000.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman named Estes to the National Cotton Advisory Committee.

"The records show that in the single year of 1961 the government paid close to $3 million to Estes for the use of his storage facilities in Texas at a time when, according to Mr. Wilson, other West Texas warehouses were idle.

"Simultaneously Estes was engineering a windfall of $300,000 from the government from a cotton crop on 3,000 acres of farm land in five states which was illegally cultivated.

"Some people in the Department of Agriculture evidently became suspicious. In the course of a secret investigation, a department employee working on it died near Bryan, Tex., of four gunshot wounds in the chest. A local sheriff quickly ruled the death a "suicide." Doesn't it seem a bit unusual for a man to commit suicide by firing four slugs from a pump gun into his own chest? by the Texas Attorney-General, one

Following the hearings conducted Agriculture Department official resigned, another was fired by Secretary Freeman, and a third is being transferred to the Philippines — some 8,000 miles from Washington.

"During it all Billie Sol Estes was sprinkling $17 shirts and $12 neckties to Washington bureaucrats the way Goldfine once rained Christmas checks on the desks of White House secretaries."

Exporting Negroes

Much publicity has been given to the few Negroes who have been provided with a one-way ticket to a northern city by southern whites. A "Freedom Train" loaded with Negroes might create a problem at the destination, but a few stragglers should not be a cause for alarm—or publicity.

Estimates by the Bureau of the Census indicate that during the ten years ending in 1960, approximately 1,457,000 Negroes left the southern states without help from the whites. The Bureau guesses that about 400 leave every day to find new homes in the north and in the west. During that ten-year period 4,000 of them settled in Minnesota. California attracted the largest number, an estimated total of 354,000.

It is interesting to note that the plan of New Orleans segregationists to pay the fares of Negroes who want to go north is not being encouraged by southern newspapers. Here are three typical samples of the press comments from that region:

"Dumping unemployed Negroes in the North causes a certain amount of embarrassment there, but these people are our responsibility, unless they choose to leave on their own initiative. Thousands have, in fact, done so, and, as a result, the North and West are learning many things about the race situation that they never knew existed."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

"This thing of raising money to export Negroes from the South is negativistic. It's like trying to dip out the ocean with a tin cup. It's vindictive, it's weak and it's an admission to failure . . . Let's stop exporting and start solving our problems. Let's look at this nation as a whole and not in a narrow regional sense. And let's judge people and their capabilities on an individual basis."—Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

"The Citizens Council seems to be adding its penny weight to pushing an avalanche already under way. And the Urban League is building a will-o'-the-wisp which could lead many Negroes into the swamp of Northern slums. What should concern any citizens in the South or League in the North are efforts to find a way to make a decent living for many Negroes and white people, too, where they are."— Raleigh News and Observer.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"What does this mean?" howled the customer in a greasy spoon cafe. "There's an insect at the bottom of my cup!"

"Listen, Bud," the proprietor said. "If you want your fortune told go see a Gypsy."

Family Faith Festival

I have designated the time from Mother's Day (May 13) to Father's Day (June 17) in Minnesota as a Family Faith Festival in Minnesota.

During this period I hope all organizations, but particularly our churches and synagogues, will plan special services and programs focusing attention on the importance of the family and how to improve and strengthen family life.

I do not believe there can be happy, secure, successful families outside of a close personal and family church relationship—so I called it the Family Faith Festival.

The strength of our nation depends upon family solidarity. Most of our ills come from family breakdown. Any child who is denied the love and security of a happy family experience enters upon life with a serious handicap. Any child who does not learn love of God, loyalty to country, respect for the rights of others, obedience to law and acceptance of discipline at home, will find it mighty hard to learn anywhere else.

Traveling together builds family unity. Minnesota is particularly beautiful at this time of year. It's a wonderful time for a family outing. Visit some part of Minnesota you've never seen before. You'll find fascinating changes.

This festival season would be an excellent time for counselling programs to young people — "Your Greatest Adventure" — could be the theme.

Encourage family reunions, honor the old folks — gather around them — sing the old songs — invite the pastor, priest, or rabbi. Let the young people perform, let the old people reminisce, let the travelers show their pictures.

Please don't wait for someone else to start something in your town, church or organization. If you read this, please feel commissioned to do something during Family Faith Festival.

Who has the biggest family in your community, or the most generations, or has lived there the longest? Single them out for recognition. How about your family physician or other trusted counselor — have a special dinner, just your family with the doctor, pastor, lawyer, extension agent, banker, employer, supplier, shop steward, veterinarian or whoever else has had a special family relationship with you — your family and their family. Let everything be on a family basis.

During this time let us renew our faith — and put special emphasis on family life. It could be an enormous lift to the well being of all our people. Wherever you are — please do something.

of Rhyme & Reason

BY MARV LUNDIN

UNTIRING EFFORT HAS AGAIN BEEN REWARDED. Thanks to the efforts of a number of local individuals and the cooperation of many others, Thief River Falls will be the site of a new processing plant this year. Valley Feed and Supply company of Spring Valley, N. Y., has contracted for millet and sunflower acreage in the area and will process seeds from these crops for sale as wild bird seed.

On the surface this may appear to be insignificant. The plant will initially employ, perhaps, only several persons. The crop acreage covered by contracts is not exceptionally large. Prices paid for these crops, though adequate to provide a profit to the growers are not exceptionally high on the average. In essence, it is not a "get rich quick" proposition.

But there are other factors to be considered. Sale of its feed plant by Farmers Co-Op Grain and Seed association has permitted that firm to build a new plant—one which will have a certified seed cleaning operation to better serve the agricultural needs of the community. This will help in further establishing Thief River Falls as an agricultural center.

Furthermore, the establishment of the processing, storage and packaging plant in this city holds tremendous potential. There is nothing to limit the company from expansion, contracting for more acreage, accepting other adaptable crops, branching into other fields and expanding the market from this central location between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. In securing the plant, this community has gained a firm toe-hold on the ladder of progress.

Farmers in the community are to be congratulated for far-reaching thoughts in accepting contracts for the new cash crops. Without this cooperation, the plant here would be impossible. The company is operated on strong corporation principles. It is not adverse to making investments and improvements where there is opportunity for progress and profit.

More sunflower acreage is needed to make the venture a complete success. It is nessary to see the urgency in this problem. The plant will be here for this season. Planting of the crops must take place in the next few weeks. Further information on methods of planting, cultivation, weed control and harvest as well as fertilization and anticipated yields may be received from the county extension office. Contracts are available there as well as at the Chamber of Commerce office.

An angry husband confronted his wife with a large handful of canceled checks, all bearing the wife's bold signature. "You mean the bank saves all those things and sends them to you?" she frowned. "What a sneaky thing to do!"

The owner of a metropolitan parking lot called his three attendants together. "It's been a week now since we have had a complaint about a dented fender," he said quietly, and let the sentence sink deep. Then he shouted, "Now, tell me, how can we make any money leaving that much space between cars?"

Know what disease has taken an upswing during the first 13 weeks of 1962? Measles. A total of 171,000 cases of measles were reported during that time in the United States, about 20,000 more than the first quarter of 1961 and about 4,000 above the median figure for 1957-1961. In other diseases nationally, hepatitis dropped from 23,000 to 18,000 cases; polio declined from 103 to 76; strep throats and scarlet fever fell from 124,000 to 115,000; and diptheria dropped from 200 to 134. If you've been seeing spots before your eyes lately, maybe they're measles.

Today's poem is one which received an honorable mention award at Bemidji State college recently and was written by Chuck Anderson, senior at Lincoln high school. Other winning entries will be published in forthcoming columns.

TODAY

Today I can laugh and today I can sing.
Why bother myself what tomorrow may bring.
Live for the present, be happy and gay
For even tomorrow will still be today.

The past is something you cannot relive,
And no one can tell what tomorrow will give.
Today is the one thing you know that you've got—
Make you life full by wasting it not.

Life is not measured in days that you spend;
It's how much you live that counts in the end.

Don't call me a fool by the chances I take.
Life is worth risking for happiness sake.
I would much rather die in action today
Than tomorrow, while sleeping, let life slip away.

19 Cases Tried Monday In Municipal Court

Nineteen cases were brought to trial in Thief River Falls municipal court before Judge Stanley N. Mortenson last week. Many of the cases had to do with possession and drinking of liquor by minors with the others covering a variety of offenses.

In county sheriff's cases brought to court Monday, Leona Gudmundsen, Mentor, pleaded guilty to issuing a fraudulent check and was sentenced to 30 days in jail with the sentence suspended upon restitution of the check; Elmer Ulrich, city, pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support of a minor child and was sentenced to 60 days in jail with the sentence suspended on various conditions; and John A. Taylor, city, was found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor and was sentenced to 30 days in jail with the execution of the sentence stayed for two weeks.

Police department cases included the following:

'U' M. to Conduct Course in Heart Massage May 12th

Minnesota Physicians Urged to Participate In Study Next Saturday

A one-day course for Minnesota physicians in closed chest cardiac resuscitation will be conducted by the University of Minnesota Saturday, May 12, in Mayo Memorial auditorium on the Minneapolis campus.

This course will mark the start of a state-wide education program by the Minnesota Heart association co-sponsors of the course, to train medical groups and non-medical persons such as rescue workers in newer resuscitation techniques.

The program calls for statewide medical leadership and assistance in training non-medical or para-medical groups in heart message methods.

Under the direction of Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, University professor of surgery and chairman of the heart association's sub-committee on resuscitation, the course will have a two-fold objective:

(1) to instruct physicians in the newer concepts of cardiac message and

(2) to provide them with information on how to instruct such persons as firemen, policemen and other rescue workers on the use of closed chest massage methods in an emergency when a physician is not present.

Dr. Lillehei urged statewide physician representation at the course in order to achieve future success in training semi-medical and non-medical groups. Application may be made by writing: Director, Center for Continuation Study, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 14. Fee is $5.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a. m. on the day of the course in the foyer of Mayo Memorial auditorium. Sessions will run through 4 p. m.

Tells How to Avoid Travel Sickness

State Medical Group Offers Suggestions

Vacation-planning time is here, and it's a safe bet you don't want that trip to be marred by motion sickness. To help prevent this common travel bugaboo, the Minnesota State Medical Association has several suggestions:

Try to keep your head steadied against a headrest or brace it into position with pillows. It's best to tilt the head slightly backwards. In a plane or bus tilt your seat back and use the headrest without an additional pillow. Always keep children seated instead of letting them bounce around. Simple games and books will help keep them quiet and amused.

If you feel sick, keep your eyes on the horizon; they'll let your body know which way to hold your head. If you read, pick only books and magazines with large type. Avoid focusing your eyes on a fixed nearby object.

Light meals for adults as well as children are desirable before starting on a trip and while traveling. Avoid "trying" rich, new foods when you'll be on the road again soon after.

If you generally suffer from motion suckness, see your physician about the excellent new drugs which can help you prevent motion sickness or control it after trouble has started.

More Honeybees Needed to Boost Forage Seed Yield

'U' Entomologist Says Cross Pollination Lack Accounts for Poor Yield

Lack of cross pollination is the main reason for low seed yields in Minnesota red clover fields, a University of Minnesota entomologist said today.

Alfred Dietz told the 20th annual Beekeeper's Short Course being held Friday and Saturday on the St. Paul Campus, that honeybees are one of the farmer's greatest assets and, in most cases, the insect which can best provide the needed service of cross pollination.

And, although Minnesota leads the nation in honey production, it still doesn't have enought honeybees to transfer pollen from flower to flower in clover fields.

Dietz said Minnesota studies during the past nine years show that abundance of honeybees and seed yields decreased as the distance between red clover fields and apiaries increased. In other words, the more honeybees, the more seed.

Pollination by honeybees accounted for yields of 193 to 456 pounds of seed per acre when bees were located adjacent to one field of medium red clover. But at a distance greater than one mile from the nearest apiary, pollination by honeybees was insignificant.

The entomologist recommended that at least 2 to 4 colonies of honeybees be provided per acre of a forage seed crop. More bees are needed in alfalfa. Colonies should be placed at the margin of the seed field, at intervals along the side of the field, or as close to the field as practical, he said.

Hospital Week Surprise!

Mrs. Vigness Honored for Service to Local Hospital

What appeared to be a rather routine staff meeting and lecture on the observance of National Hospital Week turned out to be something more for Mrs. Oscar Vigness at Northwestern Hospital on Tuesday. She was the surprised recipient of several gifts and recognition for her long period of service to the hospital.

Mrs. Vigness was introduced to hospital work here in 1943 by Mrs. A. W. Swedenburg, wife of one of this community's early doctors. She worked in the laundry and dietary departments before moving to the housekeeping staff in 1947 and continuing to serve there and part time in the sewing department until her current switch to semi-retirement.

She received a corsage and bouquet of flowers, an end table from the hospital board and a basket of odds and ends from the nurses at the hospital. The following letter was read by Norman Peterson, hospital administrator, from Dr. George B. Martin, chief of staff at the hospital:

"Dear Mrs. Vigness:

"On behalf of the medical staff I wish to express our sincere appreciation for the many years of service which you have given to Northwestern Hospital. There are no members of the medical staff who haven't had patients directly benefitted by some of the special work which you have done in the manufacture of slings and special appliances.

"The routine, daily duties of your position in maintaining a clean and neat hospital have almost been taken for granted—but when one stops to consider what our physical plant might look like if it weren't for your persistence, we appreciate even more your worth to Northwestern Hospital.

"I am sure that you will find things to keep you busy and active after your retirement, and I hope that these shall satisfy you, and wish you to remember that the medical staff will continue to remember the multitude of things which you have done for improved patient care, and that your successor shall have a very high goal to strive for to maintain the same standards that you have consistently kept."

Mrs. Vigness will be succeeded in her position by Mrs. Lottie Bjornlie.

SURPRISED upon being honored for service to Northwestern Hospital on Tuesday was Mrs. Lester Vigness, shown above with James Winjum, hospital board chairman, after having served nearly 20 years in several departments of the local hospital. The gathering, attended by about two-thirds of the hospital staff, was held as part of National Hospital Week's observance in this city. Mrs. Vigness was presented with the end table, flowers and sewing basket filled with sundry items shown in the above photo.

Co. Board Is Asked to Share Hospital Insurance Costs

County Employes Request County to Participate to Extent of 50 Per Cent

Altho there was considerable discussion of ditch and other matters at the May session of the Pennington county board Tuesday, little concrete action resulted.

A request was made by representatives of county employes that the county pay one-half of the cost of hospital insurance. They pointed out that most Minnesota counties are now participating. The matter was tabled until the June 5 meeting of the board.

A certificate was presented to the board stating that School District 1551 in Star township, formerly No. 56 had voted in favor of dissolving the district and being attached to Goodridge District 561. The board set a hearing on the matter for Tuesday, June 5.

Gene Sjoberg, who is erecting a TV relay tower northwest of the city, was granted permission to install a cable in a ditch along the road on which the Catholic cemetary abuts. He stated that the cable will carry no voltage and will be buried to a depth of two feet.

A lengthy discussion was held with a delegation from Sanders and Norden township concerning a petition for the cleaning of County Ditch 68. It was ultimately agreed that the petition should be dismissed for the present, and that the cleaning of the ditch should be spread over a period of several years.

Dr. and Mrs. Dan Greene of Warren were Saturday overnight guests at the Gordon Dow home, and Susan and Carol Greene were guests at the Mrs. Willard Kelly home. Sunday the Greene family were dinner guests at the Mrs. Willard Kelly home, and afternoon visitors at the Alvin Anseby home.

Two School Board Members Will Be Elected Tuesday

Voters in School District 564, which comprises a large part of Pennington county will elect two members of the local board of education next Tuesday, May 15, with the polls open in Lincoln high school from 5 to 9 p. m. Candidates include Dr. J. O. Disse and Dr. Ralph incumbents; and Howard Hoel Jr., president of the Northern Woodwork company, and K. Russell Anderson, local architect.
